End of Rent Curbs Voted By Virginia Assembly

Eleventh-Hour Plea To Exempt Area Near D. C. Lost; Battle's Signature Awaited

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Richmond, Va., Feb. 20.—The Virginia General Assembly voted today to abolish rent controls everywhere in the State.

The hotly disputed decontrol measure, which lifts Federal controls and repeals the State Rent Act, went to Governor Battle for his signature after failure of an eleventh-hour plea to exempt the area near Washington.

It carries June 10 as effective date, but the State must give the Federal Housing Expediter 15 days' notice before controls are actually removed.

That Governor Battle will sign the bill is a virtual certainty.

Delegate J. Maynard Magruder of Arlington today made a desperate attempt in the House to keep his county—Fairfax, Alexandria and Falls Church under State controls until July 1, 1951. His proposal, offered as an amendment to a Senate amendment repealing the State law, was smothered by a 75-11 vote.

Asks "Local Option"

Magruder promptly introduced another "local option" rent control measure in the House.

Cosponsors were Delegates George Damm, Arlington, Armistead Boothe, Alexandria, and Edwin Lynch, Fairfax.

It would permit the governing bodies of localities to recommend to the Governor that ceilings be restored only in those localities. The Governor, if he found an emergency existed, could direct that State controls be imposed with the guarantee of a "fair return" to landlords and property owners.

While the House completed action on the rent decontrol bill, a sharp verbal exchange on the subject occurred in the Senate.

Senator Charles R. Fenwick, of Arlington, who led the unsuccessful fight for local option decontrol in the Senate last week, took issue with a ruling of Lieutenant Governor L. Preston Collins, President of the Senate.

Their remarks underlined for many observers the fact that Fenwick and Collins were both candidates for the lieutenant governorship in 1944. Collins won the nomination after challenging the vote by which Fenwick was apparently named the party candidate in the Ninth District.

On Friday, the Senate killed a Fenwick amendment to exempt Arlington, Danville and Warren Counties from decontrol under Federal law. It also voted to repeal the State Rent Act, which gives the Governor discretionary authority to retain controls in localities after the Federal law expires June 30. The amendment to make decontrol effective June 10 was then adopted.

When Fenwick proposed still

Two Science Kits Yield $2400 to Baffled Students

Two University of Maryland students, buying science kits at the student supply store on the campus, got much more than they bargained for—to wit, $2400 in cash.

The students, Robert H. Preisinger of College Park, and Alan Sulder of Baltimore, were among the hundreds who jammed the book store during last Friday's post-registration rush. The rush had forced store employes to use the science kits as overflow cash drawers.

Preisinger found $1531 in his kit and Sulder drew an $889 surprise. The money was returned to the surprised and grateful owners within the hour.

Senate 'Compels' a Quorum For McCarthy 'Red' Charges

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate last night for the first time in nearly five years dispatched its sergeant-at-arms to "compel" Senators to attend a night session during a row over alleged communism in the State Department.

A speech by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), reciting the "case histories" of 81 unnamed persons he charged were card-carrying Reds touched off the night session antics.

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) demanded McCarthy "name names." McCarthy retorted with a point of no quorum.

In the resulting party-line skirmish the angry Lucas (1) moved to instruct the sergeant-at-arms to produce a quorum (2) tried and failed to adjourn the Senate and (3) moved to "compel" Senators to attend.

McCarthy declined to name the alleged Reds except in executive committee session but said he later will name a Communist "Big Three" in the department. Another of the 81, he said, is presently employed is a White House speech writer.

"If we can get rid of the Big Three," he told the Senate, "we will have done something to break the back of the espionage system in the State Department."

The Senate finally recessed at 11:43 p. m., after McCarthy completed his six-hour speech. Before moving for a recess, Lucas told the Senate a committee will be "formed at once" to investigate McCarthy's charges.

Death Penalty Is Demanded For Vogeler

Verdict and Sentence Expected Today for American in Hungary

Budapest, Hungary, Feb. 20 (AP).—A possible death sentence faced Robert A. Vogeler, American businessman, at the end of his trial on spying and sabotage charges today.

His British aide, Edgar Sanders, and three Hungarian codefendants faced the same possible sentence. Two other Hungarians were liable to maximum sentences of 15 years.

The five-man people's court will hand down its verdict at 1 p. m. (7 a. m., EST) Tuesday. If the procedure of the treason trials of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty and Laszlo Rajk, Hungary's No. 2 Communist, is followed the sentences will be pronounced at the same time.

All the defendants made renewed confessions of guilt in their final statements today and heard their lawyers enter pleas which only listed some extenuating circumstances.

Vogeler, 39-year-old assistant vice president of the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., speaking in a low, calm voice, himself renewed his plea for a "mild sentence."

Prosecutor Gyula Alapi, whose pleas sent Cardinal Mindszenty to prison for life and Rajk to the gallows, then declared Vogeler and Sanders "great spies" and demanded the "severest punishment" for all the defendants.

This is a customary demand

State Department Withdraws UPWA Recognition

The State Department yesterday joined the Veterans Administration in withdrawing recognition of the United Public Workers Union as a representative of State Department employes.

The CIO last week expelled the UPW on grounds it followed the Communist party line. The Veterans Administration on Friday withdrew recognition of the union.

State Department officials said the UPW never had more than 60 members in their department and that number is believed to have dropped in the last two years.

The State Department said that, "all personnel are hereby ordered not to enter into negotiations of any kind with this union." They said employes could join the UPW, however, or any other union without fear of reprisal.

Underground Federal Offices Near Capital Contemplated

Dispersion of Federal facilities, and underground shelters for them, are being proposed by the new chief of the Office of Civilian Defense as measures to protect Washington.

Dr. Paul J. Larsen, newly appointed to the job, said yesterday he considered prompt defense measures for the Nation's capital his most urgent duty.

He made his comment from Albuquerque, N. Mex., where for more than two years he has been the head of the Atomic Energy Commission's Sandia Laboratories, where the atomic bomb is assembled. He will leave for Washington Friday, preparatory to assuming the civil defense job on March 1.

"Our first job will be the relocation and redesign of the present governmental office setup in the Capital," he told the Associated Press.

"Dispersion, even out of the Washington area, and underground installations either in or out of the Capital, will be our chief means of defense."

Larsen's comments came at the same time that a House member of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee introduced a resolution in Congress to create a commission to study the possibility of a "substitute Capital."

Representative Holifield (D., Calif.) offered a bill to set up a seven-man commission, headed by

PUC Grants 9 Pct. Phone Rate Boost

Revenue Increased $2,250,000 Yearly; Firm Disappointed, May Ask New Hike

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

An average 9 percent increase in local telephone rates was approved last night by the District Public Utilities Commission.

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. petitioned last September 16 for an average 13.9 percent rate boost, which, in terms of increased revenue would have added $3,249,000 to the annual gross payments.

Yesterday's PUC action authorized the company to increase its rates enough to bring in an additional $2,250,000 annually.

If this lump increase were shared equally among the company's approximately 220,000 subscribers, the new rate hike would mean about a $10.23 higher phone bill for each annually.

But company officials last night emphasized increases definitely would vary among different classes of subscribers.

The PUC rate decision, handed down after lengthy hearings, concluded the $2,250,000 added revenue is "necessary" to place the company in a "sound financial position, and to enable it to attract additional capital."

The company was directed to submit a new rate schedule—designed to raise the authorized 2.2 millions revenue—not later than Thursday. These schedules, the PUC said, will be subject to public hearings at the District Building, starting at 10 a. m. next Tuesday.

Less than a half-hour after the ruling was made public, C. H. Johnson, vice president and general manager of the company, said he was "disappointed" PUC granted the company $1,000,000 less than it requested.

Officials even intimated they might consider filing immediately for another rate boost or curtail its vast expansion program.

The PUC granted in full the company's 1947 rate increase. That average 10 percent boost took effect early in 1948.

Under the company's 13.9 percent boost, specific rates would have been boosted as follows: Private unlimited service—up 86 cents a month. The rate now is $4.75. Unlimited 2-party lines—an increase from $4 to $4.50. Party lines limited to 45 calls monthly—from the present $2.25 to $3. Private lines limited to 50 calls—a boost from $3.75 to $4.25. There would be a 50-cent increase on individual business lines. The rate is now $6.

In addition to filing a revised rate schedule, Johnson said: "We will also give study to what further action the company should take in order to raise the earnings to a satisfactory level."

One action might be a request for another rate boost, a company official said later.

"Even with previous increases granted," Johnson said, 'it is ap-

Many Congressmen have had free drinks in the stagecrafters' afterhours club, its secretary Edward "Patsy" Meserole, told the House District crime inquiry committee yesterday.

"You'd be surprised how many Congressmen I got come up and get it (free liquor) for nothing," Meserole testified. "You'd be surprised how many people right here in this room come in there and free load."

As the three-hour hearing ended at 5 p. m., Acting Committee Chairman Olin E. Teague asked Meserole if any members of the crime inquiry committee or of the House District committee are members of his club.

"No, sir," said Meserole.

Had he ever served liquor to any of the Congressmen present? asked Teague.

"No, sir," said Meserole.

The other committee members at yesterday's hearing were Representatives Sid Simpson (R., Ill.) and James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) They said later they had not been in the place, as did Chairman James C. Davis (D., Ga.).

Davis said he missed the hearing to attend another meeting on pending legislation.

The crime hearing will resume at 2 p. m. today for more testimony on the operation of after-hour clubs.

UMW Cited for Contempt, Told to File Reply Friday; District Rations Soft Coal

Home Consumption Not Affected as Commission Moves To Conserve Supply

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

District Commissioners yesterday rationed commercial use of soft coal to conserve the city's dwindling supply.

Coal dealers, who pledged support of the rationing program, reported only a week's supply in their bins.

The Commissioners, terming the shortage "critical," set up a five-class priority system for distribution.

Dealers agreed to set aside 2000 tons of the coal for the sole use of consumers falling within Priorities 1 and 2 and for "future emergencies."

In asking the dealers to cooperate in the program, the Commissioners said that rationing is "essential to the health and welfare of the city."

Homes Not Included

Home owners were not included in yesterday's order since only a "negligible" number use soft coal. Most private residences burn the still-plentiful anthracite.

Dealers said that domestic users of soft coal will continue to receive it in limited quantities but that an effort will be made to persuade these consumers to purchase hard coal during the emergency.

Priorities were set up as follows:

1. Hospitals, orphanages and homes for the aged.

2. Dairies, bakeries and other institutions essential to the welfare of citizens.

3. Apartment houses; boarding, rooming and lodging houses, dormitories of colleges and schools, hotels, hothouses, laundries, office buildings, monasteries and convents, agencies of publicity, including newspaper offices and radio stations, restaurants.

4. Churches, colleges, stores, department and related shops, nonessential industry.

5. Amusement establishments.

Federal and District office buildings, including public schools, were not included in the rationing program.

The Federal Supply Services Fuel Yard, which furnishes coal for the agencies, had a two-week supply on hand. Conservation measures were continued in effect with inspectors enforcing the Commissioner's order of last week that no building be heated above 68 degrees.

The District's Fuel Coordinating Committee was ordered by the Commissioners to issue to individual dealers certificates covering consumers falling in priorities one and two.

Priority-one users are to receive 100 percent of normal usage up to three weeks' supply.

Priority-two consumers are to receive not more than three days' supply in any one delivery and no second delivery will be made to the same user within three days of a previous delivery.

Priority-three orders will be filled up to 80 percent of usual demand and not more than three days' supply in any delivery.

Dealers will refer all orders from users falling in priorities four and five to the fuel committee and are to fill orders only after

Miners Say They Stand Firm In Face of Court's Citation

Pittsburgh, Feb. 20 (AP).—Rebellious soft-coal miners tonight shrugged off the Government contempt action against them as their "no contract, no work" walkout went into its seventh week.

"It doesn't make any difference," declared veteran miner Frank Harper at Library, Pa.

"Nobody is going to pay any attention to a contempt citation. The men are determined not to work without a contract. They figure the Government isn't going to put 370,000 of them in jail."

The Government wants the miners adjudged in contempt for failing to obey a week-old Federal court back-to-work order.

Sentiments of miners in both the central and western Pennsylvania mine fields were the same.

Gus Carnevale of the Arcadia local near Johnstown, Pa., said:

"Let them fine us until our money is gone. We'll have a union. It is better to have a union with no money than to have money without a union."

In previous strikes the U.M.W. has been assessed $2,130,000 in fines.

Declared Joseph Leorchic, president of the Barnesboro, Pa., local:

"As far as fines are concerned, we are not worried about them. All we want is a contract."

The fact that the contempt action cannot become a reality until after a court hearing Friday drew the ire of at least one mine operator.

The operator, who declined use of his name, said bitterly:

"What is the Government trying to do? Let Lewis write his own ticket in contract negotiations? By next week we will have insurrection of the first order. The country will be so hard up for coal that it will be impossible to deny Lewis

Heat Engineers in 6 Theaters Vote Strike in Wage Dispute

Stationary egineers who fire the boilers in six Washington theaters have voted to strike at 12:01 a. m. today, their union announced last night.

The theaters involved are the Warner, the Metropolitan and the Tivoli of the Warner chain; the Capitol and the Palace of the Loew's chain, and the Trans-Lux.

The stationary engineers at the Trans-Lux, only one of the six theaters with a midnight-to-8 a. m. shift, walked out on schedule.

Jese West, business agent of Local 99, International Union of Operating Engineers (AFL), said 26 stationary, or watch, engineers employed at the theaters met last Saturday and voted unanimously to strike because of a wage dispute.

The strike would not only affect the theaters themselves, but in four cases would have an effect on office buildings owned by the theaters.

The three Warner Brothers houses and the Trans-Lux occupy their own buildings and rent office space to other interests.

For example, WTOP and the Columbia Broadcasting System rent space in the Warner Building. WRC and the National Broadcasting Co. and WMAL and the American Broadcasting Co. have space in the Trans-Lux Building.

A. Julian Brylawski, Warner Brothers executive and chairman of the theater operators' wage-scale committee that has been negotiating the wage issue with the union, said his committee last night asked the union to continue negotiations.

He stated he would not know definitely whether the walkout had actually taken place until this morning because the Warner the-

Air Force to Cut Its Pilot Strength To 24,000 by July

The Air Force reported yesterday it would trim its rated pilot strength down to 24,000 by next June 30 to conform with economy cutbacks in military spending.

Before the reductions were begun last September, the Air Force had 30,000 rated pilots.

Total flight crew personnel, including bombardiers, navigators, enlisted radio operators and flight mechanics, will drop from 35,000 to 22,000 over the same period.

Many of those dropped from flight ratings will remain in the Air Force on nonflying status, which means a pay loss. Others, particularly reserve officers, will be discharged from active duty.

1948 'Roosevelt' Group Decision Is Reversed By 'Truman' Tribunal

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The "Truman Supreme Court" yesterday reversed the "Roosevelt Supreme Court" in a case involving the search and seizure provisions of the Constitution's Bill of Rights.

In a sharp dissent to the overturn of a 1948 decision, Justice Frankfurter concluded:

"Especially ought the court not to reenforce the instabilities of our day by giving fair ground for the belief that law is the expression of chance—for instance, of unexpected changes in the court's composition and the contingencies in the choice of successors."

There was no doubt that the "unexpected changes" to which Frankfurter referred were the deaths last year of Justices Murphy and Rutledge, appointed by President Roosevelt. They were succeeded by Justices Clark and Minton, named by President Truman.

It was Minton who yesterday de-

9 Jurors Selected

Dr. Sander's Defense Counsel May Avoid Mercy-Killing Plea

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 20 (U.P.).—Dr. Hermann N. Sander's "mercy murder" trial opened today with the selection of nine men jurors—six of them members of the Catholic faith which steadfastly opposes euthanasia.

The choosing of twice as many Catholics as Protestants among the first 9 of the 13 jurors for the murder case against the 41-year-old physician indicated the defense planned to dodge the controversial issue of mercy killing.

Adjourning after a seven-hour session, Superior Judge Harold E. Wescott said he hoped the jury would be completed Tuesday with the selection of three more jurors and an alternate to hear the trial of the doctor accused of easing a suffering woman cancer patient into death.

The only woman among the 40 veniremen questioned during the day was dismissed by the court. Eighteen other veniremen were excused by the court, eight were challenged by the defense and four by the State.

Attorney General William L. Phinney was asked by reporters whether he would ask the death penalty for Dr. Sander.

"We will take that up when we come to it," he said.

Reluctance of the defense to bring the euthanasia controversy into the courtroom became apparent when Dr. Sander's counsel ap-

Lewis Not Named; Civil and Criminal Charges Are Listed As Cold Wave Hits

By The Associated Press

Federal Judge Richmond B. Keech yesterday hurled a criminal contempt of court citation at John L. Lewis' striking union for defying the court's order to dig coal.

The United Mine Workers, which twice before has paid heavy fines for flouting a judge's command, must appear Friday and explain why 372,000 soft coal workers have refused since last Monday to obey.

If the union's story doesn't satisfy the court, a trial will be held next Monday.

Lewis himself was not named in a Government petition that asked the court to take action against the union for civil and criminal contempt. The UMW chieftain has publicly called on his men twice to bow to the court's directive issued under the Taft-Hartley Act.

East in Nip of Cold

The action came as the East suddenly found itself in the grip of bitter cold with many a householder's coal bin nearly empty. The Nation's pile of bituminous coal for all purposes was below a normal 10-day supply.

Keech signed the citation at the request of the Justice Department a few hours after he had renewed his back-to-work order for another 10 days.

The original restrainer was signed Saturday, February 11. The extension allows time for the judge to rule on President Truman's request for an 80-day national emergency injunction against the strike under the Taft-Hartley law. The renewal followed a two-hour conference in the judge's chambers with both sides.

Elsewhere another session of the extended negotiations between union and operators over a new contract ground to a fruitless recess. Federal Mediator Cyrus S. Ching, an observer, said he saw no sign of progress.

'Rule to Show Cause'

Technically the citation is a "rule to show cause" why the union should not be punished.

Assistant Attorney General H. Graham Morison indicated that the union could "purge" itself of the charge by returning to work before Friday.

Apparently the only chance of this was an unexpected agreement between Lewis and the operators. The miners were angry and defiant, insisting on a contract to replace the one that expired last June 30.

Thus there was a prospect of another heavy fine on the United Mine Workers. Their treasury, now worth between $13 million and $20 million, has given up $2,130,000 for two contempt convictions. The first fine was $710,000. The next one was doubled.

The Federal court can make the fine as heavy as it likes, but there

Cold Wave Hits East, New Low Expected Today

A bitter cold wave yesterday swept down to Washington from Hudson Bay, sharply dropping temperatures over much of the coal-hungry East.

A record here of 19 for this winter set at 7:10 a. m. yesterday was scheduled to be lowered further early today. A low of 14 degrees was forecast for the city—10 degrees in the outlying areas. Some cloudiness and a high of 34 were predicted. Warmer weather was forecast for Wednesday.

Maryland temperatures skidded lower than in Washington yesterday. Cumberland had an official reading of 11 above. Baltimore recorded 17.

New York and Philadelphia also recorded lows for the winter, with new records forecast. New York City shivered in 8-degree temperature.

Even Florida was chilly. Weekend frosts dealt heavy damage to truck crops after 53 frost-free days.

The cold air swung into the coal saving midwest, too.

By contrast, temperatures went up sharply in the southern plains. Southward from Kansas and Missouri, the mercury jumped to the 60s and higher.

Mine Workers Cited For Court Contempt

was a question whether a fine would get the mines back into production. There was some talk that President Truman might ask Congress for powers to seize the mines, although he has said he does not want such power.

No Comment from Lewis

White House secretary Charles G. Ross said Mr. Truman had received a report yesterday on the situation, but Ross had nothing to say about seizure possibilities. He said he was unable to forecast what Mr. Truman might do.

Lewis had no comment on the developments.

Mediator Ching told reporters that Lewis and the operators are standing on their previous positions, without budging.

He said the operators have placed "no offer on the table," merely continuing to say they are willing to extend present contract terms without any wage boost or increase in payments to the miners' welfare and pension fund.

Ching was asked if the negotiations were a case of the union making a series of proposals and the operators "saying 'no, no, no'."

"I think that's substantially correct," Ching replied."

The talks will resume at 10:30 a. m. today.

It is understood that the UMW chief is requesting a $15.50 daily wage as compared with the present $14.05, a boost in the 20-cent welfare tonnage royalty to 35 cents, and a reduction of the 8-hour day to 7½ hours.

One of the winter's worst cold waves moved into the heavy coal-using States just as supplies were shrinking to record low levels. It has taken two strikes and a three-day work week to bring down the huge reserves that were above ground when negotiations started 10 months ago.

In Newark and Philadelphia low temperature marks were set or the winter. The weatherman predicted below-normal temperatures for the next three weeks from lower New York State to New Orleans. Rain or snow also was in the picture.

Again there was violence in the coal fields.

At Barbourville, Ky., a band of men in 25 automobiles swarmed into the offices of the Richland Coal Co., a processing plant, and beat up the owners, broke furniture, tore telephones from the wall and backed a truck into an elevator shaft. The owners, Douglas Noonan and Douglas Blair, were attacked after they informed the invaders their plant was operating "under the Taft-Hartley law."

Everywhere the miners were calling for a contract. Lewis had abandoned the traditional "no contract, no work" policy last July 1 when he put the miners on a three-day week instead of striking with the expiration of the old agreement. He extended terms of the 1948-49 contract in the meantime.

Idled by the increasingly bitter dispute were 42,000 workers in industries dependent on coal.

what he wants, if it means putting the coal industry out of business."

In Illinois, where 19,000 United Mine Workers are idle, a union official declared:

"The men are more together than ever before. It's hard on everyone concerned, especially the men who work the mines, but this is a showdown."

The Chicago Coal Merchants Association said the city's retail coal supplies will be exhausted this week.

Illinois will suffer a new blow tomorrow when the 10,000 members of the Independent Progressive Mine Workers begin a full-scale strike of their own.

The PMW has been unable to reach a contract settlement with operators after months of negoiations. Several thousands members started a walkout last week in advance of the deadline. Others have been idle in sympathy with the United Mine Workers.

Over the Nation, schools have been forced to close in several communities, electrical power has been reduced to commercial and industrial users and many public buildings are going unheated.

St. Louis public schools will close after Tuesday's session and will not reopen until next Monday. School officials say they have less than a three-day coal supply on hand.

Only Crew to Work on

The Trans-Lux, Brylawski said, is the only theater with a crew working from midnight on.

WTOP officials were assured last night, however, that there will be no cold radiators in their offices today. The Warner Building is oil-heated. And WRC and WMAL, after expressing fears they might have to go without heat, were promised arrangements to supply heat will be made.

West, business agent of Local 99, said the union asked the theater operators to pay stationary engineers $77 a week and chief engineers $112 a week for a 40-hour week.

He declared this was the union's standard rate in other contracts with department stores, hospitals, dairies and bakeries.

At the present time, West added, stationary engineers at the three Warner Brothers theaters are paid from $64 to $78.60 (based on the type of work done) and chief engineers $100.86. All the men work a 48-hour week.

The men work a 40-hour week at the two Loew's theaters, with the stationary engineers receiving from $54 to $69.50 and the chief engineer $85.

A 40-hour week is also in effect at the Trans-Lux and stationary engineers are paid $63 and the chief engineer $85.

The union announced it has been negotiating with Warner Brothers and Loew's since last July and that their contracts with these theaters expired last September 15.

The Union said it began negotiations with the Trans-Lux management last October and that its contract there lapsed December 10.

West said that last Thursday union negotiators went to New York City to confer with high-level executives of the theater chains.

The best offer, he stated, was a flat 5 cents an hour across-the-board increase. The 26 engineers then rejected this offer and voted to strike.

elementary and junior high school teachers to keep close watch on all pupils today. If any show symptoms of infection and a temperature above 99.2 today, they are to be sent home immediately, he said.

It was disclosed that United States Public Health Service doctors have been studying the malady since it first was discovered last Friday. At that time, 44 pupils were absent.

The Woodmont school is the only one in Arlington known to be affected by the virus, although absenteeism throughout the county has been exceptionally high in recent days.

In Fairfax, Assistant Superintendent J. H. Rice reported an increase in absences from Mount Vernon High school last week because of a virus infection. No schools have been closed in the county or in Alexandria, however.

There have been no reports of severe illness as a result of the infection, school authorities said. The only constant symptom of the infection has been abnormally high tempartures. Some pupils have shown other symptoms, including sore throats, headaches, and nausea.

USPHS doctors were called in last Friday after school health authorities found many of the pupils still in classes to be suffering from high temperatures. Three physicians from the USPHS virus section spent the weekend visiting patients and making tests to determine, if possible, the cause of the infection.

Dr. R. J. Huebner, head of the virus section for the Public Health Service, said it was too early as yet to determine if the infection is similar to others encountered in the Washington area this winter.

He said an analysis of blood specimens and throat cultures taken from patients, along with other laboratory tests, would have to be completed before it can be determined.

Dr. Ralph G. Beachley, county health officer, said although the virus apparently is of short duration and brings no severe illness, warned that there is the possibility of complications, including ear and chest infections. He warned parents of children affected to consult their physician and to "follow instructions implicitly."

receiving a certificate from the committee.

The Commissioners said they set up the priorities after consultation with coal dealers and after a careful study by the District Health Department.

"It is vital," the Commissioners said, "that our dwindling stocks be stretched, for the benefit of essential users of priorities one and two. This can be accomplished by a reduction of the normal usage of other priorities.

"The reductions ordered for priority three have been determined by the health officer to be such that normally healthy occupants of buildings of these categories will be in no danger of ill health."

The Potomac Electric Power Co. said that there is no immediate danger of a "brown-out."

The company reported it had a 65 to 70-day supply of coal, needed in the manufacture of electricity, at its three plants. It normally keeps an 80 to 90-day supply on hand.

A. Julian Brylawski, president of Motion Picture Theater Owners of Metropolitan Washington, said that movie houses are heated by oil or anthracite and that no hardship will result from the low priority granted places of amusement.

In Prince Georges County, the Cheverly Elementary School was closed down yesterday and the 480 students sent home when engineers experienced difficulty in getting anthracite to burn in the furnace. The school is to reopen today.

Coal dealers in the county generally were limiting home deliveries to one ton.

Montgomery County officials reported a four-day supply of coal for public buildings but said that additional deliveries have been promised.

In Fairfax County all schools had sufficient soft coal to heat the buildings for two weeks. Some of the schools have enough for the winter.

Alexandria schools also were assured of coal. The city had received two 70-ton cars from the Virginia State Emergency Commission and two additional cars are on the way.

Arlington County Manager A. T. Lundberg said the county has sufficient stockpiles of coal at present but that if the strike continues assistance will be sought from the State commission.

U. S. Reported Pushing Plan For Atom Sub

By The Associated Press

An informed source yesterday disclosed that the United States is pushing plans to start construction of what it hopes will be the world's first atomic-powered submarine.

This source said that discussions are under way between the Navy and the Electric Boat Corp. at Groton, Conn., in regard to construction of a submarine hull in which could be installed an atomic energy reactor that may be developed by the Atomic Energy Commission. The company built many of the Navy's submarines in World War II.

The discussions were described as so far advanced that quite likely Congress will be asked to add an appropriation for the work to the 1951 Navy budget for the year beginning July 1. Some lawmakers said a week ago that a race between the United States and Russia to be first to develop an atomic-powered sub was a possible complication in efforts to produce a hydrogen bomb.

The Atomic Energy Commission in a report last month revealed that considerable progress has been made toward developing reactors suitable for submarine or ship propulsion. Study is also being made on a proposed reactor for aircraft.

Point 4 Task Could Go to New Agency

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The Point Four program of helping the world's backward areas can be taken out of the State Department's hands by a bill introduced in the House yesterday.

The bill, already approved informally by the Foreign Affairs Committee, would let the President set up the new program anywhere in the executive branch of the Government.

Ever since President Truman propounded the idea of a "bold new program" in his inaugural address last year, the State Department has kept a firm and sometimes jealous control of planning it. It has worked patiently with other Government agencies, but State Department officials have assumed that they would control and direct the program when it got under way.

As originally drafted under the direction of Willard Thorp, Assistant Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, the bill provided that "the Secretary of State may establish an Institute of Technical Cooperation within the Department of State."

Now the House committee has pushed the State Department from the inside track, and has substituted the following:

"To further the purposes of this act, the President is authorized to establish an Institute of International Technical Cooperation and to prescribe its powers, duties and organization which shall be consistent with the provisions of this act."

The new bill, like the original draft, says the President may exercise any power conferred on him by this act through the Secretary of State or through any other officer or employe of the United States Government."

When the European Recovery Program was launched in 1948, Congress felt the State Department could not and should not direct and manage such a vast enterprise. The result was creation of a separate agency, ECA.

A possible pattern for Point Four is the existing Institute of Inter-American Affairs, a government corportion which operates independently but has five directors appointed by the Secretary of State. But as the bill now stands, the President can by-pass the State Department altogether if he wants to.

The bill, introduced by Chairman John Kee (D., W. Va.) of the Foreign Affairs Committee, fixes a ceiling of 45 million dollars on all spending for technical assistance in the fiscal year starting July 1.

By The Associated Press

A Quaker leader yesterday branded President Truman's order to make the hydrogen bomb "unwise and immoral," contending that first there should be strenuous new efforts to make peace.

Samuel R. Levering of the Friends Committee on National Legislation told a Senate-Foreign Relations Subcommittee that Americans want a great moral crusade for peace through world control and reduction of all armaments, "and through generous use of our economic resources to improve world living standards."

Levering said there is a chance that Russia might accept a disarmament plan and might join the United States in a world welfare program.

Mr. Truman's decision to press for development of the new weapon should have been withheld until there had been "an exhaustive effort to build atomic peace," Levering asserted.

The Administration view is that Russia has shown she will respond only to strength and that our task now is to correct weaknesses in the non-Communist world.

Various Views

Witnesses alternately hammered and upheld proposals for Atlantic union of world federation. The subcommittee is weighing several resolutions aiming at peace through international measures. One would authorize the President to bring together the Atlantic democracies to consider a union. Another suggests a world federation as the main objective of American foreign policy.

Levering, who said his committee represents almost all Quaker groups in the country, backed the world federation idea, saying the committee viewed an Atlantic union as a partial step which might lead only to dividing the world into armed camps.

Mrs. William D. Leetch, representing the National Society of New Engand Women, opposed either Atlantic union or a world government. She proposed a psychological campaign to supply a Russian underground movement with money, printing presses and radios.

"We of the patriotic societies know that the United States can best serve the world by remaining a solvent, free, strong and independent Nation under the inspired Constitution of the United States," she said.

Marvin L. Goldberger, national legislative director of Amvets, World War II veterans organization, urged that the United Nations be strengthened and broadened into a world federation.

Goldberger supported a resolution backed by Senator Tobey (R., N. H.), and a group of Senators who would make this objective, the basic aim of United States foreign policy.

One Alternative

"There can be only one other alternative to the ultimate objective of a world federation," Goldberger said, "and that is of a world of nationalistic nations all armed to the teeth, fearful of one another's military advantages and a resulting continual arms race which can only eventually result in one war following another."

Ruled Sane

Mrs. Madsen Collapses as Trial Is Set

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
MRS. YVETTE MADSEN
. . . Carried from courtroom

Frankfurt, Germany, Feb. 20 (AP).—Mrs. Yvette Madsen, 22-year-old Brooklyn, N. Y., mother, collapsed twice in court today after denying she murdered her Air Force husband.

The court had ruled, after hearing a report by a military medical board, that the pretty mother of two children is sane. United States District Judge Fred G. Cohn ordered her to stand trial March 6.

When she first collapsed, she was carried from the courtroom by her father, Alfred Noack, Brooklyn carpenter who flew here for her trial. She cried faintly as they went through the door.

A few minutes later she walked back and stood as the court entered a plea of not guilty on her behalf and set the trial date.

A few minutes later Mrs. Madsen broke down again and wept in the arms of her Women's Army Corps guard.

Mrs. Madsen's lawyer, Elmo Gower of Cumberland, Md., who reserved his formal defense plea, told reporters later he would contend in her trial that she was insane the night of last October 20 when she is alleged to have shot Lieut. Andrew E. Madsen of Oakland, Calif., after a quarrel over her husband's attentions to another woman at a party.

The ruling today merely held that Mrs. Madsen is now sane and able to stand trial.

Underground Federal Offices Near Capital Contemplated

the Secretary of Defense, to study and report by January 31, 1951, on:

Possible sites for a second Capital; the buildings to be constructed "on or under" any site; what duplicate copies of documents and records should be prepared; and procedures to be followed in naming successors to high officials if that should become necessary.

Cites Effect of Bomb

In a statement, Holifield declared that one atomic bomb—not even a hydrogen bomb — could destroy "the heart of Washington" with all the key Federal agencies.

On November 18, last year, The Washington Post disclosed the existence of a confidential document prepared by the National Security Resources Board entitled "Plan for the Security of the Nation's Capital."

It was described as "a plan for planning" the dispersion of the city's population. It included consideration of the question of alternate seats of Government in the event it was decided to abandon Washington.

As of some months ago, however, President Truman was hostile to the idea of moving all or part of the Government from Washington. In mid-November he emphatically told a news conference that he would not request Congress for funds for any such move.

Move Nonessential Offices

Larsen, however, told a United Press reporter in Albuquerque that he would ask Congress to move nonessential Government agencies outside of Washington to avoid "complete paralysis" in the event of an atomic attack.

Larsen emphasized that he does not anticipate early hostilities. But added: "I certainly believe that a plan for decentralizing these agencies should be formulated before an emergency occurs, and much of it should be put into effect prior to any such emergency."

"I hope these plans are never needed, but we shouldn't be twiddling our feet during this period of peace."

"In case of a sneak attack, we would have no time," he warned.

The scientist said he would not favor establishment of a new national capital in some inland city, such as Kansas City or Denver.

"I don't believe a complete new capital would be necessary or advisable," he said. He favors dispersing the various governmental agencies among many cities or towns "any place 10 miles or more from Washington."

As for New York, he believes critical Government agencies in that city should be transferred inland. He emphasized he had no specific locations in mind.

"However," he said, "I hope that relocating governmental agencies will not become a political football. I think Congress should act on the basis of what is best for the Nation, not what is best for any one section of it."

The defense chief said he assumes he will be asked to appear before Congress to outline his plan. He expects to have a better picture of the defense strategy "within a week" after he arrives in Washington at the end of this week.

Agencies That Could Go

Larsen listed the Postoffice Department as one of the nonessential agencies which could "definitely" be moved out of Washington. Others picked at random included the Department of Agriculture, the Veterans' Administration, and possibly the Treasury Department.

"These would have very little to do with the operation of our Government in a national emergency," he said.

He listed the Defense Departments, Congress and the top executive offices as those which should remain in Washington.

"I would recommend that Vice President Alben Barkley stay out of Washington as much as possible," he said.

Larsen emphasized that his ideas were his own and not necessarily those of President Truman and other high officials. He also admitted that the cost of such a large-scale movement of offices would be heavy.

"It will be up to Congress to decide whether the Nation should take such a step," he said.

Sale or Lease

U. S. Offers New Defense Plant Terms

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Government yesterday offered new, liberalized terms for the sale or lease of 56 idle defense plants required for arms production in time of war.

The object, Munitions Board officials said, is threefold: To economize on maintenance costs, stimulate business and still assure availability of the plants in an emergency. For whether sold or rented, they would have to be maintained available for reconversion to munitions output in case of war.

Besides the 56 plants—valued at $733,593,000—put up yesterday for public sale, another 100 plants worth about three billion dollars are available for sale or lease under liberalized negotiated terms.

Discussions are under way for the sale of about half a dozen of the 56 plants and officials hope they can be sold for from 15 to 20 million dollars, cutting annual mantenance costs by about a million dollars.

Meanwhile, a move to get the Government out of the synthetic rubber business by selling or leasing Federal plants to private industry ran into a snag on Capitol Hill. Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer outlined the Administration plan before a House Armed Services subcommittee. It would authorize the sale of the war-built plants—some of which are now operated by private firms acting as agents of the Government—but keep Government controls for ten years over the production and use of synthetic rubber.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) and Representative Paul W. Shafer (R., Mich.), opposed the plan. Vinson declared "current world conditions make it dangerous" to let go of the plants and urged extension of the present law for three to five years.

Sawyer said he saw no danger to national security in selling or leasing the plants as the plan provides adequate safeguards to assure the necessary rubber production if the overseas supply of natural rubber is cut in war.

The 56 aircraft, chemical, oil, metal, motor, explosive and shipbuilding plants put up for sale or lease yesterday are part of 470 plants valued at $7,300,000,000 which make the "National Industrial Reserve." Close to 40 of these are under long-term lease now to private business and nearly 150 others have been sold with a "national security string" requiring that they be available for quick reconversion in time of war.

A munitions board spokesman said the old contract was found to be "overly restrictive" by an advisory board of industrialists and that military and civilian officials concerned agred with them. They took the view that a plant which is in operation could be more quickly converted from peace to war use than a idle plant could be put in operation, if proper Government safeguards are taken.

Principal changes under the new contract give lessees the same rights as purchasers and permit them to continue to operate the plants as a Government contractor if the plant is recalled. Also purchasers and lessees can make more extensive alterations than before. Red tape is to be eliminated and inspection procedures liberalized.

Churchill Taunts Labor on U. S. Aid

London, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—Winston Churchill said tonight that after 4½ years of Labor rule Britain is able to keep going only "because of the generous subsidies of dollars given our socialist government by the capitalistic United States."

Ripping unmercifully into his opponents in Thursday's parliamentary election, the Conservative leader called his Labo ropponents "doctrinaire planners, many of whom are the cleverest half-wits we have ever produced."

The Laborites, Churchill taunted in his speech at Manchester, have spent two billion dollars on defense and "were not even able to make an atomic bomb before the Russians did."

"There is a big story to be told about that when the time comes," he said ominously of the atomic bomb "failure."

Churchill accused Labor leaders of acting like Communist commissars in rejecting his proposal for a Big Three conference to stop the atomic arms race.

Entering the home stretch, the campaign exploded in a burst of oratory all over the country.

It appeared more and more likely that the election may be dramatically close.

"It is neck and neck and it is going to be a great and exciting finish," Conservative Campaign Manager Lord Woolton said

Prime Minister Clement Attlee defined his party's philosophy in a speech at West Walthamstow. The government, he said, had had brought a leevling up for the working man.

"If you were right at the top, you were leveled down," Attlee said. "If you were down here, you were leveled up. If you were in the middle, you are about where you were."

Labor received a blow today when left wing Laborite Prof. Lancelot Hogben, internationally known physiologist and mathematician, resigned the presidency of the Birmingham University Socialist Party "because the threat of atomic warfare has made party politics out of date." Hogben is known in the United States for his books, "Mathematics for the Millions" and "Science for the Citizen."

under Hungarian court procedure, however.

Vogeler, Sanders, Imre Geiger, Hungarian manager of the Standard Electric Co., the I. T. & T. subsidiary here, Zoltan Rado, a department chief in the Ministry of Heavy Industry and Klemen Domokos, Standard Electric accountant, all were prosecuted under an act of 1930 which provides the death penalty for espionage. They also were charged with sabotage, another offense punishable by death.

The other two Hungarian defendants, Edina Doery, hotel barmaid and telephone operator, and the Rev. Istvan Justh, a Catholic priest, were charged with espionage under another article of the act, which provides for a maximum sentence of 15 years imprisonment.

The lawyers for both Vogeler and Sanders argued today, however, that their clients were foreigners and that the law could apply only to Hungarian nationals.

These statements came after nine more witnesses, six of them arrested employes of Volgeler's company, had testified against the defendants.

"I know I have to suffer punishment," he said.

Vogeler declared he had made his confession "freely without any pressure or insults" and was well-treated during the investigation and trial.

His lawyer, jovial, middle-aged Imbre Bard admitted Vogeler had "caused blood and tears." But he said consideration should be given by the court to the circumstances that the defendant had been under military discipline from his youth, had spent only 8 to 10 weeks in this country altogether and regretted his acts.

"I hope that the wisdom of the court will find the sentence which he deserves," he concluded.

Vogeler testified Saturday he was a professional spy who used his conncetions with the Standard Electric Co., as a cover. He said he was a specialist in gathering technical intelligence with headquarters in Vienna and that the Standard company was under United States "military control."

(Vogeler was not permitted the services of an American lawyer, Morris Ernst, New York lawyer, arrived in Vienna Monday, but failed to get a visa to enter Hungary from the Hungarian Legation.)

Vogeler Case May Lead To Break in Relations

The Vogeler case may yet lead to a rupture of American diplomatic relations with Hungary, a State Department official said yesterday.

So far a break has not been considered, but it is by no means ruled out. The department will decide its future steps when it learns of Vogeler's sentence and gets further details of his treatment by Hungarian authorities.

It is a serious thing, in the Department's view, when a foreign government arrests an American citizen, deprives him of American counsel, and apparently tortures or drugs him to extract a confession.

The United States has already threatened to break relations with Bulgaria because of "trumped up" charges against Donald Heath, the American Minister. Officials said yesterday an announcement on American relations with the Bulgaria might come within 24 hours.

An American note threatening a break and demanding withdrawal of the charges against Heath has gone unanswered for a month. Dispatches from Sofia said Sunday American diplomats there had been alerted for a possible diplomatic break.

Both Bulgaria and Hungary are former enemy states which signed peace treaties with the United States early in 1947. The peace treaties set up a council of ambassadors, with American representation, to settle disputes over interpreting the terms.

A break with Bulgaria would remove this American representation which, in any event, has been useless in insuring observance of the treaty. The same would be true in the event of a break with Hungary.

La Rochelle, France, Feb. 20 (AP).—French armed forces were called out today to load a cargo ship with trucks and food for troops in Indo-China. Civilian dockers had refused to handle the shipment.

U. S. Mormons Pulling Out of Czech Mission

Prague, Feb. 20 (AP). — Eleven Mormon missionaries left Czechoslovakia tonight in the first mass move by the Mormon Church to liquidate its American-directed activities here.

The Communist-led government ordered two of the missionaries expelled on the charge they constituted a "danger to the safety and security of the state." They are Dale T. Tingey, Centerville, Utah, and Richard W. Winder, Salt Lake City. They were the fourteenth and fifteenth American Mormon missionaries ousted since last May, all on the same charges.

The nine other missionaries departing tonight joined the exodus because the Ministry of Church Affairs had refused to exempt the Mormons from Czechoslovakia's church laws, said Wallace Toronto, head of the church's mission here.

Only three missionaries are left here, including Toronto. The two others have been held by the state police since January 28 on charges of having entered a "prohibited area." They are Stanley E. Abbott, 23, of Lehi, Utah, and C. Aldon Johnson, 22, of Idaho Falls, Idaho.

(In Washington, Government officials said the United States has made a new representation to the Czechoslovak government for the release of Abbott and Johnson.)

Eight of the departing missionaries are returning to the United States, two to England, and one is being transferred to the church's West German mission.

Toronto said his wife and six children will leave by March 1 but that he hopes to remain here "as long as possible."

State Urges $1 Million Cut In Phone Bills

Baltimore, Feb. 20 (AP).—The State argued before the Maryland Public Service Commission today that Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. ought to cut the bills of its Maryland customers by about one million dollars a year.

The company countered with a contention that it needs to increase them by $2,500,000 in order to make a fair profit.

Richard W. Case, a special attorney employed by the State, made the argument for the rate reduction and against the proposed increase.

He said the company uses faulty figures in setting the value of its facilities. He pointed out that company experts talk about reproduction cost of the telephone plant. If it were to be built again, he said, it would never be built the way it is now so reproduction figures are no good.

Case said the company's figures on original costs were based on estimates, so "now it is arguing for reproduction costs which would be estimates based on estimates."

The attorney also asked the commission to take into consideration profits made by Western Electric Co., the Bell System subsidiary which makes and installs telephone equipment.

Western Electric, he said, makes large profits which are passed on to the parent firm. These profits, he argued, are part of Chesapeake & Potomac rate base.

Case also objected to an item for working capital in the telephone company's rate base figure. He said this was not money put up by investors, but money collected from customers for telephone equipment an dservice. Customers, he declared, shouldn't have to pay a profit for this money.

proximately $2,000,000 less than the annual cost to the company of general wage increases given employes since the war."

The PUC action almost exactly coincides with the recommendation of its chief accountant, V. A. McElfresh, who testified an 8.75 percent rise would be proper.

In reference to American Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s investment in the local company, the PUC added: "The Commission is not unmindful of the expressed desire and intention of the Bell System to reduce its existieng debt ratio, as expeditiously as possible, from its present level of slightly more than 50 percent to what it considers to be a more conservative ratio of about 33 1/3 percent.

Ching Summons Negotiators For Telephone Meeting Today

Union and management representatives of key telephone industry units agreed yesterday to meet Federal Mediation Chief Cyrus S. Ching here today in a new effort to avert a Nation-wide telephone strike Friday.

At Ching's request, Ernest Weaver, representing Western Electric Co. installation and sales workers, and Joseph R. Bransford, W.E. financial vice president, will join Ching at his office here at 11 a.m.

Ching's conference call came yesterday as the telephone workers' union, Communications Workers of America (CIO), reported to him that "no progress has been made" in negotiations over the wages of 100,000 telephone employes threatening to strike Friday.

The union says another 220,000 telephone workers will respect picket lines.

Among the latter are some 6000 employes of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. here, whose representatives discussed the union's 15-cents-an-hour "package" wage increase demand in negotiation meetings yesterday.

No answer or counterproposal was made by the local company yesterday to the "package" proposal of the union. Company negotiators continued to ask more details, and for justification for the union demand.

In New York the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said virtually all of its telephone operating subsidiaries would be compelled to apply for additional telephone rate increases if wage boosts are granted to their employes.

A. T. & T., which provides 90 percent of the country's telephone service, said rate increases already obtained do not compensate for wage increases and other employe benefits granted since the war.

Division 36, which represents about 3500 plant, commercial and accounting workers here, will meet company officials for further talks at 10 a. m. today. Division 50, speaking for some 2500 operators and clerks, is scheduled for further negotiations at 2 p. m.

Spokesmen for these two divisions, which are not legally eligible to strike until March 2, have said their members will not cross picket lines if the Western Electric installers walk out Friday.

The WE installation workers include about 150 Washington employes, represented by the New York division of CWA, and who are expected to picket the local telephone exchanges if the strike comes off.

Ching was told yesterday by H. Randolph Maddox, president of the C. & P. Co. here, that the firm will continue to bargain in good faith in the 10 days left, though it has been unable to get from the unions "any reasonable justification for changing the basic wage rates."

Meanwhile, the CWA's Maryland traffic division, which contends it was damaged by recent statements in press releases and advertisements of the telephone company said it would sue the firm for damages. The suit will be filed probably this week, Division President Margaret Weiss said.

Fresh Cabbage Juice Suggested For Peptic Ulcers

Washington, Feb. 13—The above heading appeared in an (AP) newspaper article which reads as follows: A remarkable speedup in the healing of peptic ulcers when treated with raw cabbage juice was reported today by a California scientist.

In the first test of its kind on human beings, 31 patients, some with ulcers of long standing, received the cabbage juice treatment. Each drank about a quart of juice daily. In 11 cases the ulcers disappeared in six to nine days, said the scientist. He reported the tests in California Medicine, an official journal. One case required 23 days of treatment.

The tests indicate, but do not prove, the scientist said, that raw cabbage juice contains an unidentified substance which plays "a specific role in the healing of peptic ulcers."

Pure fresh cabbage juice may be had in Washington from the Vita Food Co. at 503 12th st. nw., or 3040 14th st. nw., or at the C & O Food Store, 519 11th st. nw., CO. 2980.

State Urges $1 Million Cut In Phone Bills

Baltimore, Feb. 20 (AP).—The State argued before the Maryland Public Service Commission today that Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. ought to cut the bills of its Maryland customers by about one million dollars a year.

The company countered with a contention that it needs to increase them by $2,500,000 in order to make a fair profit.

Richard W. Case, a special attorney employed by the State, made the argument for the rate reduction and against the proposed increase.

He said the company uses faulty figures in setting the value of its facilities. He pointed out that company experts talk about reproduction cost of the telephone plant. If it were to be built again, he said, it would never be built the way it is now so reproduction figures are no good.

Case said the company's figures on original costs were based on estimates, so "now it is arguing for reproduction costs which would be estimates based on estimates."

The attorney also asked the commission to take into consideration profits made by Western Electric Co., the Bell System subsidiary which makes and installs telephone equipment.

Western Electric, he said, makes large profits which are passed on to the parent firm. These profits, he argued, are part of Chesapeake & Potomac rate base.

Case also objected to an item for working capital in the telephone company's rate base figure. He said this was not money put up by investors, but money collected from customers for telephone equipment an dservice. Customers, he declared, shouldn't have to pay a profit for this money.

Zionists Protest Flow Of British Arms to Arabs

New York Herald Tribune News Service

A delegation from the American Zionist Council tried unsuccessfully yesterday to persuade the State Department to try to stop British arms shipments to Arab states surrounding Israel.

The delegation, headed by Louis Lipsky, chairman of the American Zionist Council, heard Raymond A. Hare, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State, repeat the State Department's stand that i has assurances he arms are being furnished for domestic use. Secretary of State Dean Acheson recently said Great Britain is sending arms to the Arab states to insure internal law and order.

Nationalists Threaten Li With Ouster

Taipei, Formosa (Tuesday), Feb. 21 (AP).—Nationalist China's long-brewing political crisis neared an explosive climax today.

Premier Yen Hsi-shan's office disclosed he was trying to resign, and the supreme war cabinet issued an ultimatum to Acting President Li Tsung-jen to return home by Friday or lose his job.

Li went to New York in December for a stomach operation. Yesterday he sent word he wanted to return to China but that his doctor advised against a long journey. Even if he should start immediately by air, he would have difficulty meeting the Friday deadline.

The telegram demanding his return said that if he did not, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek would be asked to resume the presidency without further ado.

Chiang "retired" 13 months ago to let Li make an unsuccessful attempt to negotiate peace with the Chinese Communists. Chiang has remained the dominant figure in the government, however, and has continued to direct the war against the Reds almost without interruption.

Sharpening the crisis, Premier Yen Hsi-shan's office announced he had tendered his resignation a week ago and was determined to quit once and for all. Rumors of his resignation have circulated for months.

Yen is under attack by both the Chiang and Li factions. Li supporters accuse him of being a stooge for Chiang. Chiang followers say he is an incompetent daydreamer. Both blame him for reverses in the civil war.

Actually, Yen reluctantly became premier only last June, when the Nationalist military defeat was all but accomplished.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, will be the guest speaker at a father-and-son dinner sponsored by the Prince Georges County YMCA and to be held at 6:30 tonight in the university dining hall.

Sander Trial Jurors Picked proved the selection of Catholic jurymen.

Some 85 percent of Manchester's 85,000 residents are members of the Catholic Church.

The defense was expected to attempt to prove that Mrs. Abbie C. Borroto, 59, died of cancer last December 4, and not from air injections which Dr. Sander allegedly administered to ease her from suffering into an easy death.

Dr. Sander, seated beside his wife, Alice, 37, watched calmly but with interest as the jury-selection proceeded with unexpected speed.

Senators 'Spank' Boston Council for Barring Japanese

Senators gave Boston city council a verbal spanking yesterday for refusing to permit 14 members of the Japanese Diet to visit a council session.

The Senate made amends by giving the delegation the unusual privilege of going onto the Senate floor.

Senator Tobey (R., N. H.) told his colleagues that the Boston council's action was "unchristian and un-American."

Senator Saltonstall (R., Mass.) said that the council's action "was not indicative of the general feeling throughout the State of Massachusetts."

Senator Johnson (D., S. C.) promised the visitors "good old-fashioned Southern hospitality" during a visit to his State that he said Gen. Douglas MacArthur has urged them to make.

Tributes were paid the group also by Senators Knowland (R., Calif.), Smith (R., N. J.), Chavez (D., N. Mex.), Langer (R., N. Dak.) and Lehman (R., N. Y.).

Applause broke out in the usually sedate chamber as the Japanese visitors entered, walked before Vice President Barkley's desk and up an aisle to seats in the rear of the room.

They sat there while Senators carried on the routine business of introducing bills and placing various matters in the official record. Then there was a 20-minute recess while individual Senators greeted the Japanese group.

Half of $75,000 Heart Fund Reported Raised

Nearly half of the $75,000 fund sought in the present campaign by the Washington Heart Association has been raised, workers were told yesterday at a luncheon at the Washington Hotel.

John M. Howard, campaign chairman, said that the appeal has resulted in contributions or pledges of $32,470, thus far. However, he pointed out that more than half of the allotted time of the drive has passed.

You've read all about the wonderful new anti-histamines that can stop a cold in hours, not days. But remember, all anti-histamine formulas are not the same. Then why not demand the formula preferred by patients in the U. S. Naval Hospital Tests, Great Lakes, Illinois?

In this famous Naval Hospital research, the KRIPTIN formula (Pyranisamine Maleate) was preferred by patients over all other anti-histamines tested. (U. S. Naval Medical Bulletin—Vol. 49—No. 1.)

Taken at the start, KRIPTIN Tablets can stop a cold at the first sneeze or sniffle! Doesn't just "ease" the symptoms—but knocks out the cold the way no previous "cold tablet"—no aspirin, quinine, or chest rub could ever do!

Keep KRIPTIN Handy

Prompt treatment with KRIPTIN is the key to the most spectacular results. So always keep KRIPTIN Tablets handy. Remember, KRIPTIN is recommended by thousands of doctors. EFFECTIVE FOR CHILDREN.

High Court Upsets Own Ban On Search Without Warrant

livered the majority opinion in the 5-to-3 split. Justice Douglas, still recuperating from an accident, took no part in the case. Frankfurter clearly appeared to feel that Murphy and Rutledge would have been on his side, for they were with the majority in the 1948 case.

The case involved Albert J. Rabinowitz, arrested in 1943 in the New York office where he sold stamps to collectors. He was arrested on a warrant charging him with selling altered stamps. Officers, who did not have a search warrant, searched the premises, confiscating thousands of stamps, of which 573 were the basis of a second charge again him. Yesterday's action reversed the Circuit Court of Appeals, which had thrown out the second case based on the 573 seized stamps.

The Fourth Amendment to the Constitution says the people shall be "secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures" and that warrants for searches or seizures shall only be issued "upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized."

Search Held Reasonable

Minton and the majority held that "what is a reasonable search is not to be determined by any fixed formula. The Constitution does not define what are 'unreasonable' searches and, regrettably, in our discipline we have no ready litmus-paper test. The recurring questions of the reasonableness of searches must find resolution in the facts and circumstances of each case."

The majority then declared this particular search was reasonable for these reasons: It was incident to a valid arrest (a long-recognized legal doctrine); the place searched was "a business room to which the public, including the officers, were invited"; the room was small and under "complete control" of Rabinowitz and the search did not extend beyond the room and the possession of the forged and altered stamps was a crime.

Minton then referred to the 1948 Trupiano case in which the court held, he said, that "search warrants must be procured when 'practicable' in a case of search incident to arrest." This was the case in which the late Justice Murphy wrote the majority opinion in a 5-to-4 split.

A Rule of Thumb

Minton called this theory a "rule of thumb" but said the present court majority "cannot agree that this requirement should be crystallized into a single qua non to the reasonableness of a search." Hence, Minton said, that 1948 doctrine is now overruled. Then he said:

"The relevant test is not whether it is reasonable to procure a search warrant but whether the search was reasonable. That criterion in turn depends upon the facts and circumstances—the total atmosphere of the case. It is a sufficient precaution that law officers must justify their conduct before courts which have always been, and must be, jealous of the individual's right of privacy within the broad sweep of the Fourth Amendment.

Joining with Minton in the majority were Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Reed, Burton and Clark. All but Reed are Truman appointees.

Frankfurter, in a dissent joined by Justice Jackson, declared that "it makes a mockery of the fourth amendment to sanction search without a search warrant merely because of the legality of an arrest."

He denied that the search warrant, requirement, as ordained in the 1948 decision, was a "rule of thumb" but said instead that "it is a rule of the fourth amendment . . ." The main aim of that amendment, part of the Bill of Rights, "is against invasion of the right of privacy as to one's effects and papers without regard to the result of such invasion."

Frankfurther contended that to assume that search incident to arrest "permits a free-handed search without warrant is to subvert the purpose of the fourth amendment by making the exception displace the principle." He added that arrest under a warrant for a minor or "trumped-up" charge is "a commonplace in the police state of today" and the "progress is too easy from police action unscrutinized by judicial authority to the police state."

Justice Black, who was with the minority in the 1948 case, yesterday wrote his own dissent, declaring it would be "wiser judicial policy" to stick to that ruling "at least long enough to determine how it works."

Decisions in Other Cases

In other actions yesterday, the Supreme Court:

1. Ruled, 6-to-1, that the Immigration Service violated the Administrative Procedures Act in deporting a Chinese seaman. Justice Reed dissented.

2. Held, 5-to-3, that an alien is entitled to citizenship even though he is unwilling on religious grounds to bear arms for this country. Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Reed and Clark dissented.

3. Rejected, 7-to-1, the claim of a Georgia prisoner, condemned to die in the electric chair, for a court hearing on his insanity plea. Justice Frankfurter dissented.

Supreme Court Refuses Ruling On Health Law

The Supreme Court yesterday gave the District's health inspection law a dubious new lease on life.

The court refused to rule on the law's constitutionality after the lower appeals courts had held it invalid. The high court indicated the regulations ought to be rewritten in more specific terms.

If that is done and a new case arises in which a householder objects to an inspection by a health official without a warrant, then the court probably will take another look at the law's validity. Meanwhile, it may stay on the books, at least to permit inspections which are not objected to.

At the same time, the high court upheld the Municipal and the United States Courts of Appeals here in throwing out the District Court conviction of Mrs. Geraldine Little for interfering with a health officer by refusing him entrance to her home at 1315 10th st. nw., back in 1947. She was fined $25.

Justice Black delivered the 6-to-2 opinion. Justice Reed argued that Mrs. Little had interferred with the officer and Justice Reed concurred. Justice Douglas took no part in the case.

Validity In Doubt

The net result of the decision was to leave the law's validity in doubt.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester H. Gray, who argued the case, said afterward he did not know just what should now be done. He said an effort probably will be made to rewrite the regulation in line with the decision's hints. Then another test case probably will be necessary to determine if a health officer may enter a home without a warrant.

The health inspector went to the Little home after complaints about its unsanitary condition. He had no warrant. Mrs. Little refused to unlock the door.

Black indicated that the court was greatly influenced by the appearance, as a friend of the court, of the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers. The group said that if the District law were struck down "a vast field of public health and safety will be closed," referring to routine inspections to find fire, health and other hazards.

Black said neither the facts of the case nor the District law itself "provide a basis for a sweeping determination of the Fourth Amendment's application to all these varied types of investigations, inspections and searches. Yet a decision of the Constitutional requirement for a search in this particular case might have far-reaching and unexpected implications as to closely related questions not now before us."

The majority held that, even if the inspector had a right to inspect the house without a warrant, Mrs. Little's refusal to admit him was not an "interference" under the health law with the inspector in the performance of his duty.

The majority opinion said "mere remonstrance or even criticism of an officer are not usually held to be the equivalent of unlawful interference." It added:

"The right to privacy in the home holds too high a place in our system of laws to justify a statutory interpretation that would impose a criminal punishmen on one who does nothing more" than did Mrs. Little.

Black pointed to the fact the health regulation "does not even prohibit" hindering or refusing to permit lawful inspections "in sharp contrast" with a District inspection law concerning the condemnation of insanitary buildings. buildings. This is an act of Congress whereas the health inspection rules were passed by the Commissioners many years ago.

Black noted that the building law "expressly limits inspections to the hours from 8 a. m. through 5 p. m.," for example, whereas the health regulation "has no limitation of this or indeed of any other type" though the District admitted "a requirement of 'reasonableness' should be read into it."

Only 3 Nations Said to Oppose Uniting Europe

New York, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—Gen. William J. Donovan said today his poll of European leaders indicates only Switzerland, Austria and the British Labor Government are holding back on the idea of uniting Europe.

"Distinctions and reservations" in the 32 replies to his queries from top European government officials convinced Donovan "work remains to be done in winning full support for the idea" of a united Europe.

Donovan is chairman of the American Committee on United Europe. He told the leaders he polled that forthcoming debate on Marshall Plan funds in Congress would hinge on progress toward European unity.

"Only the British Labor Government, the traditionally neutral Swiss and the Russian-occupied Austrians hold back," he said, after studying the statements.

Pope Is Recovered

ing committee still wants to question Washington Attorney Charles E. Ford. The committee sought Ford first for testimony last Friday, then learned the next day he had gone to Miami Friday.

Ford was back in town yesterday, but Chairman Davis said "we don't have any pressing need for Mr. Ford right now."

United States Attorney George Morris Fay is being briefed daily on the after-hours clubs hearings, his assistant John W. Fihelly said yesterday. Particular attention is being given, Fihelly said, to the possibility of bringing civil action against any club which was chartered for one purpose and actually exists for a different purpose.

Most of the after-hours clubs were chartered to conduct religious, social, educational fraternal or similar activities only.

Yesterday's hearing brought into the inquiry the fourteenth "after hours" club to be hit with committee subpenas. It was the Atlas Club of 1349 E st. nw.

Garrett Francis Quinn, 47, 5026 Dana pl. nw., made a brief appearance and testified he is president and general manager of the club.

Quinn said he returned from a Boston vacation early yesterday and was told the police were looking for him. He went to see Capt. Howard V. Covell of the First Precinct, he said, and told the officer he was anxious to testify, but had not been able to collect all the club records.

Fischbach asked Quinn to return at 2 p. m. today with all the records. Quinn left membership cards and roster, club literature, check and bank books and Social Security records with the subcommittee.

Other subpenas may still be served, it was indicated.

Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the police vice squad, was called to comment on two clubs whose officials testified—the United Nations Social Club of 1132 18th st. nw., and the Villa Pia, 2019 19th st.

Thomas N. "Danny" Nickles, president of the U.N. Social Club, testified to two brushes with the police, and at one point he flared up sharply at Lieut. Blick.

He said Blick once took him to No. 3 Precinct to pay $25 "taxes"—on a charge or disorderly conduct.

Later he said Blick knew about the kind of club it was.

Blick said the front door of the club has a peephole and the times the police went there they had to crash two doors to get in.

One of the times, said Blick, was in the last 16 or 18 months. The police tried to get in. The lights were turned off, and the people went out the back door, and "we caught them coming down the back stairs and that's how we got in." He said the police heard there was a "barboot" game going on there, "a Greek crap game."

Nickles angrily told the committee he was glad Blick was sitting there "so I can hear him and he can hear me."

What happened, said Nickles, was that Blick sent some of his men to the club. They were refused admission because they were not members.

"Then," Nickles went on, "they call up Blick and the whole police force and surround the whole building. I was asleep. They called me and I got up and came over and opened the door for Blick myself. Somebody makes a remark the police surround the place and they're going to throw tear bombs, and they all run down to the basement."

"Anybody throw tear bombs?" asked Committee Counsel Hyman I. Fischbach.

"No sir," said Nickles. "They was very nice about it."

Nickles testified he was given a suspended sentence, 1 to 3 years, in 1943 on a charge of setting up a gaming table. The court at the time was told the club netted $600 a week from poker tables. Nickles' attorney, Samuel Bogorad, who is also secretary of the club, was with him at the hearing.

Mrs. Ambia Roey, 2019 19th st., said she ran a "private, social, membership club" at that address, called the Villa Bia.

She told Fischbach she was unable to produce the club records because "I was robbed on the third of February this year and they lifted the whole safe with all my personal records." She said the club was open seven days a week from 6 p. m. to "about 5" in the morning.

She testified she had "about $15,000 or $20,000" invested, but it had not been "too lucrative." "I knew it was a nonprofitable venture but I wanted to give Washington and my people something respectable they could go to as an after-hours club." She said she screened her membership closely and operated a "legitimate club."

Fischbach then asked her if she had been arrested January 28, 1950, and charged with illegal possession and unlicensed sale of alcoholic beverages.

"I pleaded not guilty and the matter is still pending," she answered.

Blick was then asked about the Villa Bia. "Weetaoinshrdlcmfwy couple of times," he testified, "and she always condemns us for entering and she said she didn't want persons to think she was running a dive."

Meserole figured in the news in January, 1949, with a proposal that after-hours clubs be licensed by the District. Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West said last week he has legislation in rough draft form to regulate and license after-hours clubs and that the proposal may be sent to the Capitol shortly. Meserole's idea had been sent to key District officials. He suggested a $1500 liquor license and a $400 dancing permit, and a 3:30 a. m. deadline on admissions.

Appearing with Messerole were Dominic Ferrone, who testified Saturday as president of the Stagecrafters' Club, and Attorney Jack Bonner.

Messerole said he promoted the club, raising about $30,000—"everybody's (money) but my own"—to set it up. Now he has the title of secretary, and gets $50 to $60 a week from the checking and tobacco concession. He said he can't live on that, and has other income.

Was Meserole ever fined for bootlegging? asked Fischbach.

Maserole said he had been about 20 or 25 years ago.

He said he also set up the Gold Key Club, now headed by Albert W. Glickfield, who moved up to the press table to hear Meserole's story.

He said Glickfield "didn't have to buy me out and didn't have to throw me out either—he and I could not get along."

He said the club now has no bank account, that 40 to 50 lawsuits are pending and a bank account would be attached and "we'd be stuck."

Fischbach sought to pin Meserole down on whether the club was organized to make a profit or not, and Meserole told him:

"Well, if it comes in, you can't throw it out in the street."

He testified too that there were two kinds of membership — $20 with insurance, and $10 for social membership. How did the customers to take to the insurance. Fischbach asked? "They didn't like it, they just want to drink," said Meserole.

Judiciary Committee Gets Report on Crime Bill

The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday formally received a subcommittee report on the Kefauver resolution calling for a $100,000 Nationwide crime inquiry. But the full committee took no action.

Aides said the resolution had been altered by the subcommittee, headed by its sponsor, Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.), to prevent the proposed inquiry from passing on the merits or demerits of State laws pertaining to gambling or racketeering.

Cost of Peanut Props Put at $100 Million

Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.), ranking minority member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, yesterday predicted that peanuts will cost Uncle Sam 100 million dollars this year—the same as potatoes.

Aiken's statement came as Senator Clinton P. Anderson urged the Senate to vote restrictions on potatoes this year, although he admitted the proposal was "discriminatory and unjust."

Anderson spoke for an amendment to a cotton acreage law offered by Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.), which would refuse price supports to all potato areas that refused to vote for marketing quotas.

The former Secretary of Agriculture admitted that the law would not become effective in time to apply to much of the early potato crop. The Government is already buying 1950 potatoes in the South.

Because it would apply only to the late potatoes, Anderson said it discriminated in favor of the early growers. He urged passage, however, to protect the entire farm price support program.

"The chance of damage to the potato grower," he said, "is far less than the damage to all agriculture."

Aiken laid the blame for the high losses in the potato program this year on Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan. He said Brannan had power to apply marketing agreements in many potato areas that would have saved huge sums.

If applied on the 1949 crop, Aiken said, they probably would have saved the Government 50 million dollars.

At the Agriculture Department it was stated that marketing agreements are in effect this year wherever possible. It was impossible to apply them last year, it was stated, because of lack of time.

Anderson disputed Aiken's figures on the prospective cost of the peanut law. He said peanuts would cost "only" about 35 million dollars this year. That is half as much as the cost of the legislative branch of the Government.

ECA Request Cut By Administration; Hearing on Today

By The Associated Press

The Administrtaion yesterday lopped 150 million dollars off its request for Marshall Plan funds for fiscal 1951, beginning next July 1.

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee revealed that the Administration wants $2,950,000,000 as a third Marshall Plan aid installment, instead of the $3,100,000,000 requested in President Truman's budget.

Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson and Marshall Plan Administrator Paul G. Hoffman will kick off the drive for the new appropriation today before a joint meeting of Senate and House Foreign Affairs Committees.

Connally said he and Chairman John Kee (D., W. Va.), of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, will introduce the Administration aid bill in their respective Houses today.

Indonesian Envoy Thanks U. S. for Aid to Freedom

Indonesia's new ambassador here thanked President Truman yesterday for American help in winning Indonesian freedom after 300 years of Dutch rule.

Presenting his credentials at the White House, the Ambassador, Dr. Ali Sastroamidjojo, said, "America's role in the negotiations leading to the final and peaceful settlement of the Indonesian question is cherished in the hearts of my people."

An American diplomat, Merle Cochran, was chairman of a United Nations commission which brought the Dutch and Indonesians together. Cochran is now serving as the first American ambassador to the new republic.

President Truman answered the Indonesian envoy with the assurance that the American people "will ever be sympathetic" to the new republic's efforts.

Lane Asks $915,324 For State Agencies

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 20.—Maryland State agencies in the Washington area would get a $915,324 slice of State funds under the supplemental budget proposals forwarded to the General Assembly tonight by Gov. W. Preston Lane.

Lane's proposals are twofold: He wants a $3,872,700 construction loan for projects of emergency nature and for current projects which must be carried forward, and he wants to add $596,963 to the budget already submitted to the Legislature and now under consideration.

$898,000 to Md. U.

In the Washington area $898,000 of the construction loan would go to build an industrial arts building and a physics building at the University of Maryland—which Lane termed "essential construction."

In addition, four hospitals near Washington would benefit to the tune of $17,324 as their additional share in the medically indigent program over the State.

This money represents a restoration of the budget requests made for the operation of the program in the voluntary hospitals. Lane said he restored the funds because of the request of the general hospitals of the State. He warned, however, that State appropriations will bring total aid to hospitals to $1,724,714 "or almost quadruple the amount appropriated for this purpose in 1946."

Hospital Funds Listed

The restoration would give these additional sums to four hospitals near Washington: Montgomery County General Hospital, Inc., $4237; Prince Georges General Hospital, $6491; Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, $6596; Washington Sanatorium and Hospital, Takoma Park, $1164.

Largest item in the supplemental budget proposal which Lane sent to the Assembly tonight is a million-dollar item for the "first tage of the building of an institution for defective delinquents."

Lane said he had been "importuned" by State agencies to restore a total of $1,129,792 in reductions made in requests for appropriation in the original budget measure.

Aside from the program for aid to the medically indigent, Lane's requests lists only $265,158 in supplemental appropriation on the original budget.

Sales Tax On Food Seen As Irritant

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Feb. 20.—The sales tax on food eaten in Maryland restaurants is arousing antagonism against the State and is driving Washington-bound tourist trade out of nearby Maryland areas.

These were arguments brought out in a joint hearing of the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee here today by proponents of two identical Assembly measures which would lift the 2 percent sales tax from all food for human consumption.

During the hearing, the charge was made, and promptly denied, that some eating-place owners divert part of their sales tax collections into their own pockets.

Governor Lane, in a press conference at the same time, dashed cold water on the whole proposal.

Lane Sees No Cut

"The budget does not contemplate any reduction in the sales tax," Lane said.

Charles A. Della, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland Industrial Union Council (CIO), testified he had "heard" that some proprietors "make $40 or $50 a week profit on the sales tax."

Spokesmen for the Maryland Restaurant Association vigorously denied the claim.

Miss Marjorie Hendricks, operator of Normandy Farms in Montgomery County, told the legislators she had received "innumerable complaints" from residents of other states and the District over the tax.

Robert A. Wilson, executive vice president of the Washington Restaurant Association, said tourists with large families will "eat elsewhere" rather than pay the Maryland sales tax on food.

D. C. Plan Acceptable

Joseph A. Bertorelli (D., First Balto.) asked Sidney Friedman, a director of the Restaurant Association of Maryland, how his group would feel if Maryland patterned its food sale tax after that in Washington, and taxed restaurant eaters only on meals costing $1.25 or more.

"If that is the best relief the State can give to its citizens, we would not be happy but we would be forced to accept it," Friedman said.

The Maryland State comptroller's office has estimated the sales tax on food accounts for $3,500,000 annually. But Reginald Dunnock, president of the Oriole Cafeterias in Baltimore, said estimates were nearer two million dollars.

Emanuel Zalzack, owner of the Varsity Grill in College Park, testified "I don't believe food should be taxed if persons consume it to live."

He said University of Maryland students, "on a very strict budget," are spending $1 a week in taxes in his restaurant.

Existing Maryland law calls for a two percent sales tax on any food costing more than 14 cents which is eaten in a restaurant. Food to take out is not taxed.

Jail House Blues

There must be some deep and obscure principle that Representative Fred Crawford was seeking to prove during his two-day sojourn at the Upper Marlboro Jail, but somehow it escapes us. If the Michigan legislator was seeking to demonstrate his equality before the law, that point was driven home in his arrest on an assault charge. Indeed, the arrest may have been a kindness, for it may have spared Mr. Crawford the indignity of having to learn the hard way not to strike a former professional boxer. If the Congressman was attempting to illustrate that the Upper Marlboro justice of the peace was mistaken in refusing a cash bond, that point, too, was successfully made. One may assume that, after all the embarrassment, with sundry Congressmen offering to go bail and Mr. Crawford turning a deaf ear to entreaties please to leave the jail, Prince Georges County officials are assiduously boning up on their law.

All this was apparent, however, without Mr. Crawford spending a second night in jail—a decision which, incidentally, neatly turned attention away from his original indiscretion. Certainly it could hardly have been the jail food—ample but scarcely epicurean—or the quality of associates that held such an attraction for Mr. Crawford. Could it be that he was gathering material for a congressional investigation or has a secret yearning to join the best-seller lists with My Life Behind Bars? Or was it merely that Congressmen are harassed and a little vacation is welcome, no matter where—and that the newspapers are still suckers for a headline?

Potatoes In The Soup

Congressman Daniel Reed of New York draws some remarkably misleading conclusions about the potato glut in his letter appearing elsewhere on this page. Mr. Reed implies that it is not high support prices for potatoes, but imports from Canada that are primarily responsible for the present mess. This is ridiculous in light of the fact that imports from Canada will be at most 12 million bushels for the 1949 crop, whereas the domestic crop will run about 402 million bushels, and the Government probably will be forced to buy 70 million bushels. Actually imports are a small factor in the surplus.

Where Mr. Reed goes astray, it seems to us, is in his comparison of present prices of $1.36 a bushel with the 1943 price of $1.31 and only slightly lower prewar prices as evidence that farmers now are getting a fair price. In determining a fair price he apparently takes no account of the effects of mechanization and increased use of fertilizer in lowering costs to producers. The significant fact is that under the stimulus of high supports more potatoes have been grown on progressively less acreage. In Maine alone, for example, the 1935-44 yield per acre was 275; in 1948 it was 370 and in 1949 it was 450!

The tariff on Canadian potatoes is 37½ cents per 100 pounds on amounts up to one million bushels of table stock and 2½ million bushels of seed potatoes, and 75 cents a bushel on all above that. Out of the 12-million-bushel import figure quoted by Mr. Reed must come the Canadian seed potatoes which have been used in the Carolinas for years. The United States, of course, exports some potatoes to Canada from the West, and there is no Canadian tariff. The real point, however, is that Canada imports large quantities of other fruits and vegetables from the United States. If this country raised the tariff on potatoes, Canada could reciprocate on other commodities with harmful effect.

The potato problem cannot be treated in isolation. It is a part of the whole price support issue, and it is a graphic illustration of the disastrous consequences of past rigid supports unrelated to supply. The 1949 Anderson law, to be sure, adhered to the principle of variable supports, and this is a distinct gain. But it is apparent that even the 60 percent of parity floor provided by the Anderson law is too high for potatoes—and the Department of Agriculture has repeatedly called the potato problem to congressional attention. The Brannan Plan formula of production payments to farmers and removal of price supports would be preferable to the present system. Here, however, the difficulty would be that farmers who have no business growing potatoes would be kept producing. The production payments and strict marketing quotas which are being mentioned in Congress will be no solution unless there are concurrent efforts to direct potato farmers into more useful production.

The Miners' Defiance

An open revolt against the Government in the coal fields is pushing the country ever closer to the brink of disaster. Yesterday Judge Keech recognized this fact in issuing his contempt citation to the United Mine Workers requiring the union to show cause why it should not be punished for its defiance. From the struck mines come reports of violence to prevent men from going back to work and of determination on the part of the strikers to force the Government to seize the mines and enter into a contract with them. Obviously the miners are acting under a misapprehension. They seem to think that they can defy the United States with no more serious consequences than is entailed in defiance of the mine operators. And the Administration's easy-going manner in meeting this defiance up until yesterday had tended to encourage that belief.

It is time to put illusions aside. This is no longer an issue between the United Mine Workers and the coal operators. It is a question of enforcing the law in the national interest. Under an act of Congress, a court has ordered the mine workers to cease their strike. That order must be obeyed. No combination of workers or employers can be allowed to defy the Government of the United States and get away with it. Justice Brandeis used to say that "power must always feel the check of power." In this instance the miners are acting as if no power exists to prevent them from inflicting disaster upon their country as well as themselves. In these circumstances there is no rational alternative to using the superior power of the Government to break up this conspiracy.

One should not be diverted from the main issue by the interesting speculation as to whether John L. Lewis has issued his return-to-work orders with tongue in cheek. Certainly his order of last week had the ring of sincerity. Unless some sly double-talk is concealed in the message, Mr. Lewis appears to have safeguarded himself against punishment for contempt. But Mr. Lewis is an individual. This offense against organized government and society is being committed by an organization. Its contempt of court is open and flagrant. To permit such outrageous defiance of law and order to continue would rock the foundations on which our political system rests.

There is no need to fear that the Government is powerless to deal with the situation if it has the courage to do its duty. It is true that the miners claim there is no strike—that each man is individually exercising his right to stop working. But this is a nonsensical fiction that the Supreme Court has declined to recognize in previous cases. Indeed, Mr. Lewis himself has recognized the nature of the strike by ordering the miners back to work "for the protection and welfare of our union." If the union continues its lawless conduct in spite of Mr. Lewis, it is obviously no less culpable than if it were acting under his instructions.

The difficulty is that the Government until yesterday was waiting for Mr. Lewis to compel the miners to obey the law. Apparently he cannot. Now the Government has begun to speak for itself. If the miners cannot show justification for their conduct—and it is obvious that they cannot—a stiff fine on the UMW mounting sharply every day that the strike continues would, in all probability, makes its officers and members see reason. If not, the Government will have to go as far as is necessary to bring this rebellion against law and order to an end. More than fuel for stalled factories and railroads and frigid homes and schools is at stake; it is the standing of the Government against those who would hold it up to contempt.

Modern Investigator

The investigator who knows how to bring to light all the facts about scandal, corruption, or wastefulness in government without unfairly maligning any individual is rare enough to deserve a special type of recognition. Such a man is William P. Rogers, who has resigned as chief counsel for the Senate Investigating Committee. Following the tradition of the Truman Committee, which it succeeded, this investigative arm of the Senate has given us a good demonstration of the restraint, judgment and persistence that constitute the investigative art. The appointment of Francis D. Flanagan, former assistant counsel, to the head of the investigative staff is a further tribute to the quality of the work the staff has done under Mr. Rogers' direction.

The departing counsel has served the committee under both Republican and Democratic chairmen. Apparently the change in the chairmanship when the Eighty-first Congress assembled made no appreciable difference because the committee's investigations were being conducted on a level above partisanship. Conscious of the necessity of respecting the rights of citizens, the committee formally adopted rules of fair procedure to guide its activities. Witnesses were given a right to be accompanied by counsel, to defend themselves against accusations and to cross-examine other witnesses through questions submitted to the chairman. Investigations were undertaken only with unanimous approval of the subcommittee or majority approval in the full committee, and reports had to have the unanimous approval of the subcommittee.

The care exercised by Mr. Rogers to avoid smearing any citizen unfairly was well illustrated last August when he stopped a witness after he had brought Major General Vaughan's name into the deep-freeze scandal. There was not a trace of whitewash in this action, as the committee subsequently gave us the full story of the "5 percenters" and their friends. The chief investigator was simply taking precautions against the careless listing of names until the background facts could be carefully checked by his staff. That this method is effective against corruptionists (as well as protective in the case of innocent citizens) is indicated by the part Mr. Rogers played in exposing such scandals as those involving Maj. Gen. Bennett Meyers, Representative Andrew May and the Garsons. Probably far more important are the changes brought about in governmental machinery as a result of the committee's efforts to prevent the development of fraud and waste in the future. Mr. Rogers has helped to set standards that should long be a potent influence in investigations on the Hill.

Trujillo's Turnabout

Two constructions may be placed on the sudden decision of Dominican President Trujillo to relinquish his extraordinary power to declare war. The first is that Trujillo is sensitive to the outpouring of foreign criticism that followed his broad demand for authority to make war on any nation harboring enemies of the Dominican Republic. This was clearly a departure from the principles of the Rio defense treaty, and it may be that Trujillo now is anxious to counter the appearance of illegality. The second and more cynical view is that the request for repeal of the war powers is a slick device by which Trujillo hopes to soften the findings of the Organization of American States. The Dominican Republic is a party, along with Haiti and Cuba, to the conflict which a five-nation OAS commission is now investigating.

In any event, the retraction of the threat is a welcome move, and certainly an essential step in the restoration of confidence in the Caribbean. In a sense it is tacit acknowledgment of respect for the OAS. The danger, however, is that because Trujillo has recanted, his friends on the OAS Council may be inclined to make light of the Dominican Republic's part in the Caribbean unrest and come up with a general denunciation of sin after the investigating commission has reported.

Very probably the investigating commission will find some guilt on all sides. The objective, however, should not be to call a plague on all the houses, but to assess degrees of guilt and fix responsibility for specific acts. When the parent OAS Council considers the facts as disclosed, it has an obligation to go beyond wrist-slapping and lectures on principle and focus attention on the conditions which have kept the Caribbean turmoil boiling. The Council should make it plain that unless the recommendations are punctiliously observed, enforcement machinery will be brought into action.

Job In China

The American job of combating any good effect of the Mao-Stalin agreement upon the Chinese people has presumably been given to the information and psychological branches. The first gun was fired in the Acheson statement of last week. Mr. Acheson belittled the aid to China that would be forthcoming. But there are other considerations that our psychological warriors should indicate to the Chinese people with all the resources at their command. One is the continuing interest of the United States in seeing that the Russians live up to their pledge to China to hand back the ports and railroads in Manchuria, the other is the reminder that Japan has been disarmed. Both points should be hammered home without cease.

An alliance against Japan surely connoted the existence of a dangerous Japan. The fact is, of course, that Japan is not only disarmed, but also is prevented from having either an army or a navy by the terms of its new constitution. Japan's teeth in this respect have been drawn so effectively that the police and the customs police are handicapped in their respective functions. The absurdity, then, of banding against Japan is patent, though nothing can be taken for granted by propagandists, and in these matters propaganda is the art of reiteration.

As to the reminder about the Russian pledge to withdraw from Manchuria, this should figure in all the American propaganda in China. Traditionally the United States is dedicated to the territorial integrity and administrative independence of China. There was a deviation from that policy at Yalta, where the United States agreed to Manchurian concessions to Russia which limited China's sovereignty. In this respect, of course, the Russians were sinners along with the Americans and the British. The mistake insofar as it embroiled America could have been redeemed by denunciation of Yalta on the basis of Russian nonperformance. Russia made the Yalta agreement what the lawyers call a frustrated contract by such misconduct as the looting of Manchurian industry. However, we not only failed to denounce Yalta, but let the Russians virtually do it themselves, and the only way now that the United States can hope to retrieve its position in this respect is to show that it welcomes any prospect that China is going to get the ports and railroads back. In so doing we would also furnish a perpetual and uncomfortable reminder to the Russians.

This activity on the part of the United States should foment the disillusionment which the Chinese people are bound at some time or other to entertain when the Mao-Stalin alliance fails to fill their rice bowls or to fulfill any other beneficent expectation.

Cold War Strength

Mr. Churchill's proposals recall another recently proposed solution to the cold war. Henry Wallace a few years ago thought it would be a good idea to "draw a line" demarking respective "spheres of influence" in respect to Russia and ourselves; then, Wallace said, we could both enter into friendly competition to prove the success of each other's system.

I didn't like Wallace's plan; I don't like Churchill's. They smack of appeasement. My price for peace isn't someone else's liberty.

The real war is the cold war—the ideological war. Only when it is won will Russia agree to control of armaments. We can't win this cold war by focusing our energy and wealth on defensive concepts exclusively. If all our substance is devoted to the development of arms and other defense measures, we abandon ECA, Point Four and other positive cold war stratagems. Russia knows this and for that reason doesn't want control of armaments. They want us to feel insecure.

Nor does Russia want a hot war, and, for that reason, it is unlikely that one will occur. Incidents don't provoke wars—they are excuses for wars that are desired.

If, then, any attempt to reach an armaments control agreement with Russia is made it will fail. What are the consequences of that failure? Possibly disastrous. The determination Americans have shown in the ideological war can be so weakened as to play directly into the hands of the Russians. Americans in despair might abandon the ideological war for defensive measures in anticipation of the seemingly inevitable atomic war. Europeans, too, would be affected by such a failure. They, in contemplation of the "inevitable" conflict, might start choosing sides and thereby confirm their contemplation. Mr. Churchill's division of the world would then occur—without armaments control, however. And then we'd really have our wars: cold and hot.

Armaments and strength, yes. But positive measures in the ideological war are our real weapon. Diplomatic support of democratic and socialist elements in Asia and Europe and economic reconstruction coupled with armed strength is the solution to today's international problems.

Red Cruelties in China

"A communication" appeared in your issue of February 13 signed Emmanuel S. Larsen, "Director, Far Eastern Information Service," Washington. The telephone listed under that name at 814 17th st., nw., has been disconnected and no further information as to the so-called "Far Eastern Information Service" was known by the telephone company.

It would appear from what was learned that Mr. Larsen has some private enterprise rendering service for compensation on behalf of special interests concerned with Far Eastern affairs. In such capacity it may well be understood that by writing such a letter he best serves those by whom he is employed. The views and recitals expressed are indeed of interest but he can hardly claim that they are entitled to more credence than those of the correspondent on whose letter he comments, namely, Grace Divine Liu now in China where she has lived for the past 15 years.

Mr. Larsen states "As far as is known, the Chinese Reds have killed no Americans since they came to power over all of China." Can that be said for the Chinese Nationalists after the recent air-bombing of Shanghai? One is much inclined to infer that Mr. Larsen in some way is trying to induce Congress to aid Chiang Kai-shek and the Nationalist forces, whereas the simple statement of facts in the letter of Grace Divine Liu leads us to believe it is for our own Nation's best interest, not to aid Chiang, but to let the Chinese work out their own salvation. They now seem to be doing just that in the only way they can be assured of future self-government.

Prohibiting Strikes

Is our national economy to be endangered and hundreds of millions of dollars lost to individuals and business and millions of people reduced to possible starvation because of the unwillingness or incompetence of Government to protect the general welfare?

Mass stoppages of work in essential industries and transportation should be prohibited, and a Government tribunal be established to render factual decisions in all cases where collective bargaining fails.

It appears that conciliators and trouble-shooters or what-have-you are largely ineffective.

Why should organized forces be immune to criminal practices which would quickly land an individual in jail? The percentage of disgusted citizens is rapidly increasing. E. M. PETERSON.

Transit Finances

I would like to refer to the comments made in the February 13 letter to you from Ruth D. Groesbeck.

The statement compares operating expenses in 1948 with those in 1943. This is an inappropriate comparison since the present need is based upon the present situation and is best indicated by the conditions during the last half of 1949 and the trends shown during that period and up to the present time.

There is another fallacy in her statements in the fact that operating expenses at the present time reflect some reduction in vehicle miles operated, compared with 1943, so that her comparison does not show the true cost per passenger or the cost per mile of rendering service at the present time.

Youth's Rejoinder

I am writing in answer to "Old Timer's" letter of February 15.

Maybe "Old Timer" is tired of hearing the younger generation complain. Because her generation did not complain stands as no reason the youth of today should not complain. It has been clearly pointed out that the youth of today has a much more rugged world to face as did the youth of her time.

Today it is not enough to wait for someone to complain to improve conditions and surely in the event complaints are received it is time to alleviate the difficulties and problems constituting such complaints. As a matter of fact, I would go so far as to say the reason for many of our most acute problems is that too many old timers are afraid to leave the horse and buggy days and ride in automobiles.

"Half-Baked Potato"

Your February 14 editorial, "Half-Baked Potato," was very interesting. It is a credit to our national press that a paper that has always backed the State Department in its tariff-cutting program should not hesitate to lambast that agency when it goes too far.

You are, of course, well informed about the very high incomes of industrial workers and neither you nor I would advocate slashing those incomes. Can we then urge the farmers to cut their incomes? The inference in your editorial that farmers' incomes are being "held at ridiculous levels" and that imports are resulting from high farm prices is somewhat out of date. Are you aware that the farmer is presently receiving only $1.36 a bushel for potatoes and that the December price to the farmer was $1.31 per bushel, exactly the same as the average price in 1943? Compare this with the average price during the 10-year period 1920 to 1930 of approximately $1 and the immediate prewar price of 90 cents to $1.20 per bushel. Considering wage increases and the costs of the things the farmer must buy, the higher price of potatoes is very moderate indeed.

Just what line of reasoning points at this as ridiculous unless it also points to 100 percent wage increases in the same manner?

Canada has a large surplus of potatoes and will export at almost any price. The United States itself has offered potatoes for as low as 5 cents a bushel. Has it occurred to you why some of those 5-cent potatoes were not shipped to Canada? We took a very large part of the Canadian surplus, why do we not send them some of ours? If you examine this proposition you will uncover some very interesting data.

The White House, both Houses of Congress, and all the Government departments are controlled by the majority political party. Why is it that the unbridled actions of one department are constantly embarrassing the others, the President, and the American people? Does the State Department have, or is it assuming, too much authority when it dictates what our domestic agricultural policy shall be?

You are not entirely right about the Administration being able to do nothing about limiting imports of potatoes without looking ridiculous. Is it not true that, to both producers and consumers, the Administration looks so ridiculous now that almost any change would be an improvement?

The President could "save face" by a very simple, though temporary expedient. Imports of potatoes could be stopped right now—until next September 15, in complete conformance with our foreign commitments and without contravening any existing domestic law.

We have already imported about six million bushels of potatoes, and the experts tell us another six million bushels will come in before the next crop is ready to harvest—unless the President takes action. In the meantime we are shelling out about 100 million dollars to paint our own blue so they can't be used.

Administration And The Press

By Marquis Childs

Increasing Drift

IT IS fair to assume that President Truman foresaw the kind of rumpus his interview with Arthur Krock would raise. One would have had to have far less experience with the machine of publicity not to have appreciated the squall which has now blown up.

Therefore Mr. Truman must have had a purpose in departing so radically from a fixed tradition and granting the kind of "scoop" that would be the envy of every other correspondent in Washington. A bold strategist might decide to send up a trial balloon by this method to project a new and startling idea which could later, if necessary, be repudiated.

But there is nothing new in the interview. You can't create a trial balloon with the same old gas. As a consequence it is impossible to see, on the surface at least, the President's motive.

There exist perhaps some very human motives. Mr. Truman has been smarting under the sting of criticism. As was said in this space recently, he has come to believe that the press is obtrusive, unfair, irresponsible and even, at times, insulting. To give an unprecedented exclusive interview was one way of paying back some of his attackers and one, in particular, whose sharpness he had especially resented.

A shrewd, longtime observer of the Washington scene, Mr. Krock was prepared to take advantage of the President's attitude. He is to be congratulated on a coup that enhances his already great prestige.

But as for the President, it seems to me that this curious interview actually compounds the disaster of the stubborn silence he has maintained since November 1, when the hydrogen bomb was first projected into public notice. The vacuum of silence is, if anything, more empty and more painful.

THIS HAS little to do with the reaction of the Washington correspondents. That will be forgotten. Far more important is the way in which the default of leadership is accentuated. Historians in the future may well assign to the days between November 1 and the present the date of the failure of America in the leadership of the Western world.

That is a melancholy reflection, and it may be refuted day after tomorrow. The cynical will say, "Well, what did you expect?" But it seems to me we had a right to expect more.

In any crisis, time is of the essence. Winston Churchill's suggestion in his Edinburgh speech of a new Big Three meeting may be cynically written down as electioneering.

But consider how late in the British campaign Churchill made this suggestion. It would have served him better to have made it earlier, thereby giving the voters a longer time to consider the potentialities of Churchill's leadership at such a meeting. Isn't it possible that he was waiting for a lead from this side of the Atlantic? And not until the time had passed for that lead to be truly meaningful did Churchill speak out.

Perhaps if he again becomes Prime Minister of Great Britain, he may supply the kind of leadership the Western world so desperately wants. While the outward manifestations are less advanced, the present is as critical as 1940, when Churchill rose so magnificently to the challenge of total conquest. This must today be in the minds of many British voters.

IN THIS country there is scarcely even the rudimentary information on which others might base a policy of leadership. The Administration seems to regard information as something to be withheld as punishment or given as a favor.

Recently, a Midwestern newspaperman was having a talk with Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson in the course of a visit to Washington. He asked Johnson about the criticism directed against him by the Alsop brothers. Johnson's reply was to turn and dramatically pull aside a curtain, revealing a white telephone.

"Do you see that?" he demanded of his visitor. "That phone, when my predecessor, Mr. Forrestal, was in office, was attached by a direct line to the Alsops' house. One of the first things I did was have it disconnected. Naturally, they didn't like it."

The Midwestern visitor was not entirely convinced by this bit of drama. It occurred to him to wonder why the phone was still kept there nearly a year after Forrestal's departure and also to wonder with whom the line might now be connected.

This may be a singularly petty example of the prevailing attitude. But it does illustrate the atmosphere of ever more hostile divorcement between press and Government in this time of tragic drift.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Frozen Policies In The Cold War

THE PRESSURE which is building up for a conference of some sort with the Soviet Union is embarrassing and dangerous. It is increasingly hard for the President and Mr. Acheson to resist it. Yet a conference of the kind suggested, for example, by Mr. Stassen would not only be bound to fail. Its failure would aggravate enormously the despair, the defeatism, the fear, the hatreds and suspicions which make any agreement, any modus vivendi, so tragically difficult.

Lippmann

THE DILEMMA in which the Administration finds itself could have been avoided and it can still be resolved. It is the direct and immediate result of the way in which the President and Mr. Acheson dealt with the controversy, among their own advisers, over the hydrogen bomb. I am not referring to the decision to proceed with the hydrogen bomb. That was inevitable and necessary once the controversy had become public knowledge,—as soon as the controversy could no longer be dealt with dispassionately by the professionals as a military and scientific problem.

But when the President was compelled to announce publicly that we would try to make this fearful weapon, it followed as night follows day that mankind would be horrified and frightened and would cry out for some hope of salvation from a war of extermination. Here the Administration misjudged American and world opinion and for the time being lost touch with their fellowmen. Whether they meant it or not, the net impression of the Truman and Acheson press conferences was that they had slammed the door. Both the President and Mr. Acheson failed to realize that if they did not provide some kind of leadership of their own, they would lose their leadership of popular opinion.

THE PRESSURE which is now building up is another example of what happens when you make a very hot fire under the boiler and then tie down the safety valve. The announcement of the hydrogen bomb was a very hot fire. The announcement that our own solution to the threat of atomic warfare was still the rejected and outdated Baruch proposals was to tie down the safety valve.

It would have been so simple, and so much wiser, to have accompanied the announcement of the H-bomb with the statement—which would have been as reassuring as it would have been true — that American policy would now have to be revised and reconsidered in the light of the new situation. That would not have committed the Administration to rush off to Moscow for an unprepared and unpropitious conference. But it would have satisfied the American people, would have made sense to our friends and allies abroad, and would have told Stalin that if eventually he wishes to negotiate seriously, our position will not be frozen where it was in 1946.

MR. ACHESON is right, it seems to me, in his general theory that he cannot negotiate successfully except in a strong situation. But I get the impression, which I hope is mistaken, that he has not examined thoroughly all the elements which make a situation strong or weak. In the case of atomic energy it is not a strong position but a very weak position to give the impression that the rejected proposals of 1946 are all that we have to offer in 1950.

Mr. Acheson would be stronger —with the American people, with our European allies, and he would not be a bit weaker in Moscow—if he exhibited the self-confidence and the courage to reconsider the proposals. When it could be said of the Bourbon kings that they learned nothing and forgot nothing, they were at the end of their power and influence.

IN OTHER fields there is manifesting itself the same tendency to mistake flexibility for weakness, and to regard immovability as strength. The effect is a tendency to reduce our foreign policy to the question of how much money and how many weapons Congress can be induced to vote in order to strengthen the weak situations. This is an attempt to conduct foreign policy without resorting to diplomacy.

IN INDO-CHINA, for example, the situation is weak. To make it stronger we are proposing to send some arms and some money to Bao Dai and the French authorities. That may be advisable. But the fact is that the key to Indo-China is Mao as the key to the Greek situation was Tito.

The amount of money and military help needed to make Indo-China strong will be ever so much greater if we are going to wage an undeclared war against Mao than if we recognize him, admit him to the United Nations, and try to defend Indo-China by diplomacy in Peiping as well as by material aid, and not solely by subsidizing resistance to a guerilla war in Indo-China.

GERMANY is another example of a situation which is weak, in Mr. Acheson's sense, and is deteriorating at an alarming rate. It will not be made strong by money, though money is needed, nor by military measures, though American military preparedness is essential. The weakness of our position in Germany is due to the fact that our over-all conception of the German future is unworkable by and unacceptable to the Germans. We shall steadily lose influence in Germany and our power over the future of Germany as long as we identify ourselves with partition, occupation, and the subordination of our part of Germany as a second-class member of a Western coalition.

The strengthening of the German situation requires above all,—not more money, not more arms, and certainly not more rhetoric—but a diplomatic reorientation to the realities of the German position.

IN ALL these situations—atomic warfare, Southeast Asia, Germany—the increasing weakness is directly related to our frozen policies.

Defense Rests In Christoffel Perjury Trial

By the United Press

The defense rested yesterday in the second perjury trial of Harold R. Christoffel, and Federal Judge F. Dickinson Letts said the fate of the former Milwaukee union leader may be placed in the jury's hands Thursday.

Defense Attorney O. John Rogge said he had "gone as far as I can go" because some of his scheduled witnesses were "scared to testify against the Government."

Government prosecutors declined to call rebuttal witnesses, and Letts announced that final arguments would be heard today.

Christoffel, former head of the CIO United Auto Workers local at the Allis-Chalmers plant in Milwaukee, is accused of lying when he told the House Labor Committee on March 1, 1947, that he was not and never had been a Communist.

His first trial ended in conviction, but the verdict was set aside by the Supreme Court on the ground that the Government failed to prove that a quorum of the committee was present when Christoffel testified.

Letts explained that he probably will wait until Thursday morning to instruct the jury because Wednesday — Washington's birthday — is a legal holiday. He said it would be "bad policy" to send the jury out late that day.

The Government and the defense will have two hours each today to sum up their cases.

The final defense witness was Mrs. Roy John Israell of Washington, who said she was a spectator at the committee hearing when Christoffel allegedly lied.

She testified that only six members of the 25-man committee were present when Christoffel was sworn in as a witness, and that only five were present when he denied Communist ties. A quorum would be 13 members.

Government Prosecutor John S. Pratt had previously called 13 Congressmen — present or former members of the Labor Committee —who swore they heard Christoffel's statements. Some of them said a fourteenth member, the late Representative Thomas L. Owen (R., Ill.), also was there.

Rogge said he had found other spectators who asserted privately that fewer than 13 Congressmen were present, but that he could not get them to stand up in court and repeat the story.

"When you ask witnesses to testify against the Government, they're scared to death," he said.

Referring to Congressmen's claims they were present, Rogge said that Mrs. Israell's testimony indicates that "the perjury is on the other foot."

"This matter of wholesale perjury on the part of members of Congress should be referred to the District Attorney," he said.

Letts said he would not pass on that suggestion until "we see what the jury has to say" about the evidence.

In addition to challenging the presence of a quorum, Rogge has called character witnesses—including several former Allis-Chalmers workers—to testify that Christoffel was not a Communist but " an honest labor leader."

The Government witnesses included former Communist Louis F. Budenz, who told of having seen Christoffel with known Communists. Others said Christoffel plugged Communist publications at union meetings will be invited to come before it and tell who those people are," Lucas said. "The Senator has done an injustice to members of the State Department who are loyal and patriotic and are attempting to carry on. It becomes absolutely necessary to clear this up as soon as possible."

Lucas had ordered a night session of the Senate on the cotton quota bill. But when McCarthy claimed the floor for a long speech Lucas told Senators there would be no important votes and a great many of them left.

McCarthy accused Lucas of "dismissing his audience" and told the Senate he would continue at some other time.

Lucas said he would support a Senate Foreign Relations Committee investigation into the charges, proposed earlier by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., (R., Mass.) on condition McCarthy "give us names, under oath."

McCarthy snapped that instead of investigating Communists Lucas wanted to investigate him, and the parliamentary fireworks started.

McCarthy decided to continue his speech, but demanded a quorum call. When only 23 showed up after 30-minutes of roll-calling, Lucas moved to instruct the sergeant-at-arms to produce a quorum.

When a majority (49) still failed to appear, Lucas moved to adjourn. Republicans, solidly backing McCarthy, demanded a roll call. By a party-line vote of 18 to 16, the Senate licked Lucas' motion.

Thoroughly aroused, Lucas asked the Senate to direct the sergeant at arms to "compel" a majority of the Senate to show up, the next step to the rarely used motion to "arrest" Senators.

It was the first time a quorum had been "compelled" since June 28, 1945, when Southerners filibustered an FEPC amendment to the war agencies bill.

This time, Senate Sergeant-at-Arms Joseph C. Duke retired to his office and did most of the "compelling" by telephone. A quorum showed up in about 40 minutes.

When the Senate resumed, Lucas made a point of order that McCarthy had lost the floor, since he had failed to ask unanimous consent to continue. The chair sustained the point, but Republicans appealed the decision.

More Republicans than Democrats were on the floor, and Lucas decided not to press the point. He yielded the floor to McCarthy, who went on with his speech.

Later, Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), caled back to the chamber in dinner clothes, closely questioned McCarthy on the extent of his information.

He said the Wisconsin Republican had failed to produce anything but derogatory information allegedly in the State Department files and suggested the complete file might contradict McCarthy's other data.

He said it might have been better if McCarthy had taken his information to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee before discussing it on the Senate floor. McMahon offered to second a motion Lodge said he would make to have the committee investigate McCarthy's charges.

McCarthy replied that members of the Foreign Relations Committee had "substantially the same knowledge I had."

When McMahon pressed for more complete information McCarthy said: "I don't have a counter-espionage organization of my own."

McMahon declared: "The star chamber is not the practice in the United States Senate."

Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.), jumped into the fray to say the Administration was using the "star chamber" method by denying Congress and the public access to the records.

Senator Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.), jumped into it, too, urging McCarthy not to accept McMahon's advice. If McCarthy held up presentation of his case until he had the full files Mundt said it would "cover-up every Communist in the Government."

New Coplon Lawyers Charge Palmer Hung One on Client,

New York, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—Judith Coplon's new lawyers charged today she fired Attorney Archibald Palmer because he hit her. Palmer said it wasn't so.

The charge was aired in court as Federal Judge Sylvester Ryan granted a week's adjournment in the Coplon-Gubitchev espionage-conspiracy trial so Miss Coplon's three new attorneys could study the case.

Samuel Neuberger, her new chief counsel, disclosed she had complained to the judge in a conference in chambers last Thursday that Palmer had struck her.

"This did not happen before me," Judge Ryan remarked.

Neuberger replied it was in the record of Miss Coplon's conversation with the judge.

Judge Ryan said Palmer had "denied this strenuously." He said he thought Palmer had a "fatherly affection" for Miss Coplon.

Palmer was fighting mad when he heard the charge that he had struck the former Government girl.

"I know nothing about it," he spluttered. "When was I supposed to have struck her? What business would I have to strike a client. It's a synthetic excuse. They're trying to make up a cat-and-dog fight. They want to find excuses for an adjournment. It looks like a stupid business to me, a strange concoction of junk."

Palmer charged that the three new lawyers—Neuberger, Leonard Boudin and Sydney Berman—were "associated with the Leftist groups in the CIO."

He said Miss Coplon had been friends with Boudin and Neuberger for a long time.

"And she knows Berman from Washington," Palmer said. He takes her out. He's a bachelor, naturally. She goes out with Berman continually."

Neuberger had sought a 60-day adjournment of the trial and when this was refused asked permission for himself and his two colleagues to withdraw as Miss Coplon's defense. The court also denied this request.

The Pearl and the Price

Most people know the parable about the "pearl of great price," and the man who sold all that he had to buy it (Matthew 13:46).

Have you ever asked yourself what it meant?

The "price" is our surrender of the afflictive human thinking causing our troubles. But how to give up these human fears, how to grasp and follow and find freedom — that has been the difficulty. To find the way would indeed be "the pearl" of which the Bible parable speaks.

There is a great body of people who will testify today in heartfelt thankfulness — and for that reason they are subscribing these advertisements for the benefit of others — that Christian Science is this "pearl," this promised Comforter.

This liberating understanding is explained fully in the Christian Science textbook

Drunk Court: A Daily Tragi- Comedy Scene Where Judge's Wit Is Sharp, But Not Cruel

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

You'll travel a long way before seeing tragedy and humor mixed in a greater degree than is offered daily in Drunk Court.

The man with the shattered face keeps shifting his weight from one foot to the other. He's from Arlington but was picked up in the District.

"How much did you have to drink?" asks Judge Frank Myers.

"One drink."

"What kind of liquor?"

A pause to figure this tough one out. Then: "Liquor, liquor."

"That's a great help," says the judge as a low tide of laughter sweeps the spectators and the two-score or so policemen waiting to testify.

Brought in in Relays

"Well, I will tell you this much," says Judge Myers. "You'd better wait till you get to Arlington for those liquor liquor drinks. I'm letting you go this time—next time it'll be 30 days."

There are a couple of dozen seats—not nearly enough—for the defendants. So they are run in in relays.

They sit leaning forward or slumped back, hats in hand, shabby overcoats on, their eyes listless, their faces marred though not by blows.

Some of them make queer, shaking movements. A quiver rides suddenly through their bodies.

They make a startling contrast to the modern courtroom, the paneled walls, the indirect lighting.

Mr. Taylor's name is called, and that isn't Old Taylor. Matter of fact, it was more likely smoke. Denatured alcohol, bay rum . . . quite unbonded.

Just Out of Jail

Two big holes are in the elbows of Mr. Taylor's grease-spangled coat. His hand has a tick, flicks like a nervous pendulum over the table.

"Still drunk," murmurs a spectator.

Judge Myers looks at Mr. Taylor's record, which a court attendant has just handed him.

"Mr. Taylor, you've just gotten out of jail—what's your hurry?"

"I don't know."

"What's the reason for your drinking, Mr. Taylor?"

"I don't know."

The judge sighs. "60 days—60 dollars."

The phrase is the melody of this tragi-comic symphony. Ten days—$10 — 30 days — $30 . . . They will have a choice and nearly all will serve the sentences, what money they get their hands on being reserved for liquor-liquor.

Sixty days — $60. That means Mr. Taylor is an old, old devotee of the bottle.

Doesn't Miss a Month

Most are. The judge reads the record of the next man before him. Then just looks at him for a while. His face says only that he is trying to find answers to those baffling questions that must be much in the mind of a man who handles the fate of 80 drunks a day.

The judge reads from the man's record.

". . . August . . ." his voice picks up . . . "September . . . October . . . November . . . December . . . Have you been out of jail at all in '49, Mr. Bowman . . . January . . . February . . ."

"No more, Your Honor," the man promises stanchly, with a strange laugh. The judge envisions the future months of that same man, same face before him . . . "March, April, May . . ." The judge shakes his head, sighs . . . "I don't see how you people keep it up."

"No more, Your Honor."

"What were you drinking?"

"Beer and whisky."

"Beer and whisky," the judge sighs. "A boilermaker. 30 days—$30.

Charwoman Sings of Love

It's a woman past middle-age now, stringy hair, stringy blouse, sagging figure. A charwoman.

"I was singing," she says. "I warn't drunk."

"Now, how much had you had to drink?"

A pause. "A little spoonful," the woman decides. A refrain of laughter comes back from spectators and policemen.

"What were you singing?" asks Judge Myers.

"Some love song."

"Sounds like you ought to have been singing some good old drinking song instead of a love song that time of night . . . Well, I'm going to give you a chance. But the next time, I'm going to send you down to Lorton where they can use your voice."

Judge Myers' wit is often sharp but never cruel. The old faces look up to him and battered as they are, they seem like the faces of children shamefaced before their father for some nasty prank. The laughter that so frequently greets Judge Myers' observations is the kind that lies warm in the chest. A good number of the most amused spectators look as if they are taking a few days off from previous appearances themselves at that bar of justice.

Party His Mistake.

"Why were you drunk?" Judge Myers asked the man.

"I went to a party."

"Then you'd better cut down on parties."

And: "What do you do for a living."

"I work."

"Yes, we all work," this briskly. "What kind of work?"

"I was trying to catch a bus."

"You weren't in condition to catch anything."

One man pleads not guilty. The officer testifies that he was picked up staggering against the tables in a restaurant, there was whisky on his breath.

Now it's the man's turn to testify. A slight-built man with hair turning white. His story amuses the officer who arrested him as much as anyone else:

He was not drunk. He was just angry because the waitress served others before him. True, he had had some beer last night to get in the mood for a turn in a hillbilly band he plays in. But after 3 a. m. he and his friend had sat up the rest of the night just talking—not drinking.

When he was arrested he was just on his way to follow his trade of decorator—he was doing a job in St. Patrick's Church.

"Just as well they caught you when they did," snaps Judg Myers. "I hate to think what would have happened to that church if you'd started decorating it in your condition . . . 15 days—$15 . . ."

The melody of Drunk Court lingers on.

'Inventor' Studies Her Blueprints

MRS. LILLIARD BARKER
Has new "wrinkle"

Dressmaker Says She Invented 'Notcher' To Aid Sewing Because of Her Laziness

By Judy Spivak
Post Reporter

Mrs. Lylliard Barker of Arlington is just plain lazy. She says so. And because of this, she has invented the latest wrinkle in home dressmaking—the notcher.

Mrs. Barker, who's a trained nurse, as well as the mother of two young girls, got tired of the "boring procedure" of snipping 60 to 70 triangular cuts in the process of cutting out a dress.

These notches are the signposts which tell a dressmaker where she must stitch her material together.

"It became an obsession with me," says Mrs. Barker, of 3446 N. Wakefield st. "But I'd try to eliminate the notches and I'd get the pattern all mixed up."

Her answer (patent pending) is a tiny triangular clip of flexible metal with a tooth in one side and an eye in the other. In bright eye-catching colors, it can be clipped on in a hurry, removed as easily, leaving nary a trace in the material, says Mrs. Barker.

The notcher is particularly helpful on pinked seams, where it "stands out like a beacon," Mrs. Barker claims.

Not only will her invention save one-third to one-half the time usually spent in cutting patterns, but it will solve the problem of rapidly fraying seams when notches are made in fine fabrics, according to Mrs. Barker.

And the uncut seam allowances will make it a lot easier to let that skirt out if a couple extra pounds creep up on you, the gadget's inventor points out.

The "notcher"—now being manufactured in Connecticut, will be on the market by the end of March, she says.

Foreign Affairs Held Not for Einstein

Chicago, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—J. Anthony Marcus, president of the Institute of Foreign Trade, said today that Albert Einstein and other scientists should "keep their tongues out of" foreign affairs.

Marcus' talk before the American Legion's Midwest area conference on subversive activities followed Einstein's recent warning that the bomb could destroy all life on earth.

American Oil Concern To Build Venezuela Plant

Bartlesville, Okla., Feb. 20 (A.P.).—The Phillips Petroleum Co. has agreed to construct an oil refinery and wax plant in eastern Venezuela, according to President K. S. Adams. The agreement is in compliance with terms of the firm's concession contracts with the South American country. Construction is expected to begin in 1951, with completion set for 1952. No estimate of cost was made.

Same Couple Near Spot As Death Strikes Again

Joliet, Ill., Feb. 20 (U.P.).—When Mrs. Neida Schwartz was killed in an auto collision south of here in December, 1948, Kenneth Mastin of Joliet and Rosemary Steffes of Minooka, Ill., were first to reach the scene.

Friday night Mrs. Schwartz' husband, Peter, of Channahon, Ill., was killed when his car plunged through a guard rail and overturned one half mile from the spot where his wife died.

Mastin and Miss Steffes, driving by, found Schwartz' body.

Over 350 Seek Damages For Nazi Imprisonment

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—More than 350 former inmates of Nazi concentration camps have filed claims for damages for their internment.

The displaced persons, all Jews, had answered questionnaires sent to the Canadian Jewish Congress. They were to be answered by former inmates who were in the American zone of Germany as of January, 1947.

Executive Director H. Frank said the German government had agreed to pay an equivalent of $28 in Canadian money for each month spent in camp. He added that payment would be held up indefinitely because the German foreign exchange board did not permit the transfer of money abroad.

Wants More U. S. Films

London, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—The British Film Council, in a move designed to improve the quality of British moving pictures, has asked the Board of Trade to import more American movies.

The council recommended that the board reduce the quota of British theater showings guaranteed British films from 40 to 30 percent of the total and use American films to bridge the gap.

No Women In His Work, Keleher Says

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

John B. (Dapper Jack) Keleher, 68, a "retired" bookmaker who says he habitually smiled when he lost bets, testified yesterday that women can't handle his "line of business."

Keleher had a few angry words to say as he took the witness stand in District Court to accuse his estranged wife, Mrs. Anna T. (Dolly) Keleher, 51, of deserting him in 1946 when he was locked out of their Woodley Park Towers apartment.

He flatly denied he allowed Mrs. Keleher to aid him in his work. Also, he said Mrs. Dorothy S. Blake, 46, the "other woman" in the case, never helped him in gambling activities.

"No woman could take care of affairs like that," he testified. "Did you ever hear of a woman in that line of business? If you have, I never have."

Keleher denied he was motivated by his "pocketbook" rather than by his "heart" in his marital difficulties with Mrs. Keleher. The husband accuses Mrs. Keleher of lifting $80,000 from their jointly-held safe deposit boxes here shortly before they parted without ever making a satisfactory explanation.

"I've always lost my money with a smile," he said. "I have always paid off every obligation and debt cheerfully. Many a gray hair has come from my work."

He said his difficulties over the $80,000, were largely a matter of "principal."

He denied that the parting was because of his association with Mrs. Blake, but acknowledged that he was with her in Florida shortly before the splitup with Mrs. Keleher.

Keleher denied he had anyone "threaten to bump off" James J. Laughlin, Mrs. Keleher's lawyer.

Wife of District Slayer Asks Court for a Divorce

Floyd Page Wilson, now serving a life sentence in Atlanta Penitentiary for the slaying of a grocery employe in an attempted holdup February 8, 1947, yesterday was sued for divorce by his wife, Betsy Ross Wilson, on grounds of felony conviction.

At Wilson's trial in District Court, June, 1947, he pleaded he attempted the holdup because he was in debt trying to support his wife and five children.

Milton E. Lowe, employe of the Giant Market, 3924 Minnesota ave. ne., was shot to death by Wilson in the attempted holdup.

Wilson's death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by President Truman August 6, 1948.

The five children, the oldest 12 years old, have been placed in foster homes, said Joseph Sitnick, her attorney.

another amendment—to exempt Arlington, Danville and Warren from repeal of the State act until July 1, 1951—Collins ruled him out of order. Collins said the Senate had in effect just voted against such a proposal.

Fenwick, speaking on a point of personal privilege, told the Senate today that the two amendments were separate and distinct.

He called attention to the Magruder "local option" bill offered in the House today, saying "the Senate may be called upon again to consider these points I raise."

Quotes Jefferson

Then he quoted from Jefferson's Manual on parliamentary procedure:

"If an amendment be proposed inconsistent with one already agreed to, it is a fit ground for its rejection by the House, but not within the competence of the Speaker to suppress as if it were against order.

"For were he permitted to draw questions of consistency within the vortex of order, he might usurp a negative on important modifications, and suppress, instead of subserve, the legislative will."

Visibly ruffled by the unexpected charge the Senate president replied that he did not "want to argue with the gentleman from Arlington."

He said Fenwick's second amendment "had been encompassed" by the Senate's action in voting down an amendment "to get around the general import of decontrol."

Collins added that Fenwick "strove again to get these areas eliminated from general law and in substance to let these areas violate what would be the general law."

Here's where Thrift and Glamor meet

Recognize this sprightly traveler?

Yes, it's the Buick SPECIAL 6-passenger Sedanet that has caught the public fancy not only on its sleek lines, but on its easily-reachable price.

But notice anything new on it?

That's right—gleaming trim and the name plate "SPECIAL" brightening up the fenders. Brightwork around the windshield and windows, too. And when you swing the door open you'll see still other touches of added luxury—side armrests, front and rear, a robe rail, an extra ash tray.

It's all still mighty thrifty, because this strapping straight-eight sells for less than many sixes.

Frugal in other ways too—gas mileage, for instance, is surprising so many people they are writing us in delight about it.

But here we've added extra glamor. Stepped up, at small step-up in price, the luxury look and surroundings of cars that would normally be much higher.

Why not drop in and see for yourself, both how these added touches dress up this SPECIAL and how close it is in price to cars of much less room, riding comfort, standing and performance.

Hotel Trade Hits Tipping, Blames Public

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The American public alone is responsible for the continuance of tipping.

Bartenders, waiters and other hotel employes and their bosses are all opposed to it, they told the Senate Finance Committee yesterday. The hearing on Social Security legislation involved whether or not tips should be counted as earnings for Social Security tax purposes.

Charles E. Sands, Hotel and Restaurant Employes and Bartenders International Union president, told the committee tips should be included as earnings for Social Security purposes. Without that, he said, most hotel employes will not have enough Social Security credits to provide a worthwhile retirement benefit.

Contributions "Impractical"

Daniel J. O'Brien, vice president of the American Hotel Association, said hotelmen condemned the practice of tipping, but maintained it would be impractical to make Social Security contributions on the basis of an employe's tips. He said neither employers nor Federal income tax collectors have been able to get a very accurate idea of an employe's tips.

Senator Eugene Millikin (R., Colo.) asked Sands what the tips were on these "500-a-plate" dinners. His query reflected the current GOP-Democrat spat over whether or not the Democratic Party should pay taxes on its Jefferson Day $100-a-plate dinner. Republicans are holding that either the tax should be paid or if the $100-a-plate is regarded as a contribution, the solicitation of Federal employes for such contributions was a violation of the Hatch Act.

Amid laughter, Millikin said he would change his query to tips on $100-a-plate dinner. Sands as cheerfully replied that "we Democrats" understand these matters.

Tips Figured on Actual Cost

Seriously, the answer is the tips were figured on the basis of the actual costs of the meal, Sands said, and not on the $100-a-plate figure.

A spokesman for the Southern Baptist Relief and Annuity Board followed the bartenders. He was Walter R. Alexander, executive secretary, of Dallas, Tex. Alexander asked that employes of nonprofit religious organizations be kept completely exempt from the Federal Social Security system.

Under the House-passed measure, coverage of the old-age and survivors insurance system would be extended to employes of nonprofit institutions other than ministers and members of religious orders.

Alexander contended the proposal would "violate the American principle of separation of church and state."

Chicago, Feb. 20.—The National Association of Home Builders, here for its annual convention-exposition, today demanded a congressional investigation of housing cooperatives before a final vote is reached on the pending "middle-income" cooperative housing proposal.

The proposed legislation would aid cooperative groups in the planning, financing and construction of homes and apartments on a cooperative basis. The Government would make available loans at 3 percent interest with up to 63 years to repay.

"Congress does not want to underwrite another housing fiasco like the Lustron deal without knowing all the facts," declared Rodney M. Lockwood, Detroit, NAHB president.

He said a congressional investigation would find that housing cooperatives in this country have proven generally to be failures when compared to privately built housing.

"If the books of the cooperatives were thrown open to congressional investigators, telling evidence would be available immediately as to the dangerous financial risk these projects provide, either for the Government or for their individual participants," he charged.

Lockwood said the congressional group which visited Sweden and other European countries last summer to study housing should have discovered first what United States cooperatives were doing.

Lockwood asked that Congressmen visit nearby Bannockburn, a project of cooperative single-family homes on the site of the former Bannockburn Golf and Country Club. A union-sponsored project in Front Royal, Va., was also suggested as a congressional visiting point.

"Many cooperatives have lost money in producing dwellings at higher cost than the same dwellings being sold by private builders," he said.

"Furthermore, this has happened in spite of the fact that some cooperatives have had the advice and guidance of the self-styled experts from Government housing agencies."

Gay Wallenda Takes Poison; Will Recover

Los Angeles, Feb. 20 (U.P.)—Gay Wallenda, 24, member of the famous family of circus aerialists, took poison today because doctors had given her only a year to live, police reported.

At a receiving hospital, where her stomach was pumped out, doctors said she would recover.

She said she left Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus in Miami last December. She had been injured in a circus truck accident and also suffered from a heart ailment. She said doctors had given her a year to live.

Gross National Product Down 5% From '48 Peak to $257 Billion in '49

By the United Press

The Commerce Department reported yesterday that the gross national product—the total of all goods and services — was valued at 257 billion dollars in calendar 1949, which kept the economy operating at a "very high level."

This was about 5 percent under the all-time dollar peak of 262 billion dollars in 1948.

"When allowance was made for lower prices in 1949," the department said, "the change in physcial volume of production was slight."

National income, which dropped about the same percentage as production, totaled $221,500,000,000, as compared with 226 billion dollars the previous year. Personal income was 210 billion dollars, down about 2 billion dollars from the record 1948 high.

The department said the decline in the economy was concentrated for the most part in the first half of the year.

It also noted that in 1949, for the first time since the war, most current production went directly into sales channels rather than into inventories. Net 1949 inventories average $2,500,000,000. In 1948, the figure was $6,500,000,000.

The department said 1949 consumer spending, which stood at 179 billion dollars, was little changed from the year before. Durable goods spending increased to 24 billion dollars because of bigger automobile sales.

McKinley, Western Win to Gain Interhigh Playoff

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

MAYOR O'DWYER of New York has now authorized the hiring of a meteorologist to prod the reluctant clouds into springing a leak, the New York Times reports. Insufficient rain has been falling into the lives of New Yorkers, it seems, and reservoirs are dangerously low.

The mayor's plan to engage a rain-maker is well intended, no doubt, but he may be taking the wrong tack in this crisis. He might better authorize a search for Prof. C.A.I.M. Sykes, if that heavily-initialed gent is still alive, and learn what the good professor may be up to these days.

POVICH

Professor Sykes is the bane of the rain-makers. His business is to keep rain away from the area in which he sets up shop as a repellant of the elements. Wherever he operates, he is not to be taken lightly, nor paid cheaply. Belmont Park's race track owners will vouch for the professor.

They hired Sykes to keep the rain away from their track during the fall meeting of 1930, the better to coax the customers out, and not a drop fell after the day he went to work. If the professor is in operation for another client in the area, Mr. Mayor, there may be your answer for the New York drought.

THINGS WERE breaking badly for Belmont in the September meeting of 1930, because of the dratted rain that was keeping the fields small and the customers home. And then Mr. Joseph E. Widener introduced a goateed little gentleman who owned an ambulatory weather-control bureau and had promised to dry up every cloud that hovered over the area.

The professor didn't want a dime if it rained on any day when he was on the payroll. He'd made a unique bargain with Widener. He'd get $1000 for every dry day during the rest of the meeting; he'd pay the track $2000 for each day it rained during his contract. Ultimately, the professor wound up with a profit of $8000 net, for his eight-day show.

He set up the damndest-looking contraption smack in the track infield with which he said he could control the weather—make rain or keep it away as suited his whim. His apparatus was housed in a little shack, from which extended myriad attenae and he said it was radio control of the clouds, or something.

THE PROFESSOR'S scientific and meteorological background, if any, was slightly vague but somehow he had convinced the Belmont Park officials, no dopes themselves, that he had control over the weather. His rain-chaser looked like a Rube Goldberg gadget—or something Rube wished he might have been the first to think up.

To the unscientific eye, the professor had whipped up an infernal machine comprised chiefly of dismantled curtain rods, odd parts of alarm clocks that had ticked their last, a slew of dislabeled tomato cans and an old bike sprocket. Certainly it looked like nothing ever seen before.

The horse-writing press, summoned to the weather-control shack to watch how the professor worked, took the lazy way out and called it "a Whatzit." The professor said that he needed only to adjust the thing as the need arose and there would be no rain.

He'd tug at his goatee, mutter some strange incantations while he worked, and he whole thing looked like voodooism come to the races. But for eight straight racing days there was no rain, and Belmont Park was happy.

HIS FIRST DAY on the job, the professor was going good. The morning of the Lawrence Realization Stakes dawned misty and rainy. The professor went to work, and by high noon the sky was cloudless, and the track was drying out. The customers began to descend on Belmont.

Where he got all those initials, Prof. C.A.I.M. Sykes confessed he, himself, didn't know. "I was orphaned before I could find out," he glibly explained. His interest in the weather began, he said, when at the age of 13 he was caught in New York's famed blizzard of '88.

"That's when I felt something must be done about the weather," the professor said. "And now I am apparently the only person in the world who is showing that the only way to prove the impossible can be done, is to do it. "If you don't believe that the professor had a charm over the weather, he at least came up with a new way to beat the races.

Yanks Sign Joe Page For $30,000

By Jack Hand

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Fireman Joe Page, 32, signed his "best contract ever" with the New York Yankees today for an estimated $30,000 plus.

"It's a hell of a contract," said Joe. Like George Weiss, Yankee general manager, the ace relief pitcher refused to disclose exact figures.

Reports on the money ranged between $30,000 and $35,000. In any case, it was a healthy increase over the $20,000 he was supposed to have received last season.

Obviously tickled by his new contract, Page grinned widely as he helped Weiss "break" the story at a press conference.

Signing Surprises Everyone

"It even surprised me," said Page to newsmen, "I wasn't exactly a holdout, just wanted to negotiate. I only got one contract before this one and I mailed that back from home (Springdale, Pa.).

"Next thing I heard was a call from Red Patterson (Yankee publicity chief) telling me to be here today. When I walked into Mr. Weiss' office, I certainly was surprised. It only took us about 10 minutes to get together."

It was generally agreed that Page became the highest priced pitcher in Yankee history with his new contract.

"Weiss and I started something new," said Joe, "I think this is the first time a relief pitcher is getting paid like a starter."

Page, who appeared in 60 regular season games and three world series games for the 1949 world champs, said he was in good shape—about five pounds overweight at 212. He had the first finger of his right hand in a bandage because of a slight infection received while working around his house.

"I guess Boston is the team to beat," said Page when asked about the pennant race. "But how about us? We'll be in there hustling the full 154 games again. Are we going to win again? I sure hope so.

Page didn't say so, but a repeat of his own 1949 job would be more important to the Yanks than anything else. Day after day the husky lefthander strod from the bullpen to save a shaky starter. His season record was 13-8, but of the 60 games in which he appeared the Yanks won 42, lost 17 and tied one. His earned-run average was a low 2.60.

In Gym Class

Ray Espenan, Irish End, Breaks Neck

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 20 (U.P.).—Notre Dame football end Ray Espenan suffered a broken neck today while showing a high school gym class an acrobatic stunt. His condition is critical.

Notre Dame authorities summoned his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Espenan from New Orleans. They were reported to have left immediately by plane.

Espenan, 24, a senior in physical education, suffered the injury while showing 30 boys at Central High School how to do a back flip. He and Jerry Ramsberger, 25, Dunellen, N. J., were at the school doing practice teaching for credits toward graduation in June.

Espenan performed the stunt on a trampoline, a springy canvas about the size of a double bed, which is used in acrobatics to give the performer added bounce.

"He didn't make the back flip fully," Ramsberger said. "His head must have hit the canvas. He just lay there. He was fully conscious, but he was paralyzed. He complained of pain but he didn't cry."

Ramsberger said a doctor told him that Espenan was fighting eight to one odds for his life.

Notre Dame authorities said a doctor described Espenan's injury as a dislocated neck vertebra which paralyzed him from the neck down.

Weintraub's 36 Points Set Record

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Center Hal Weintraub's 36 points set an Interhigh scoring record yesterday and carried Western to an easy 64-40 victory over Chamberlain at Uline Arena.

In the other "playoff for the playoffs," McKinley Tech weathered a late Coolidge rally to win, 52-47.

Both winners yesterday reversed earlier decisions.

Western now meets Tech in Wednesday night's opening round of the playoffs at Uline. Coolidge still has a chance to qualify, meeting Central this afternoon at Uline. Winner of today's game will play Eastern Wednesday night.

Beats Pantos' Marks by 10

Weintraub's sensational scoring performance dominated yesterday's action. He smashed the previous mark by 10 points. Record-holders were Central's Jimmy Pantos who made his 26 points last year and Coolidge's Jim Gradijan who tied it Saturday.

Western was off to a 26-18 halftime lead with Weintraub, 6-foot-2 redhead, scoring 16 of his points. He came back strong with 20 after intermission, rolling up his 36-point total on 10 field goals and 16 of 18 free throw attempts.

Lou Snouffer was a distant runnerup to Weintraub with 12. High for Chamberlain, which beat Western earlier, 46-37, were Jack Flaherty, with 14 points, and Joe Kolley, with 10.

Kernan Lead Tech

Tony Sgro and Snookie Kernan enabled Tech to keep ahead of Coolidge throughout with 19 and 12-point performances, respectively.

Coolidge, led by Don Eslin, high man with 21 points, made a desperate attempt to catch up and came within two points, 41-39, but Sgro and Kernan went to work again.

Coolidge beat Tech in their only other meeting, 41-36. This time, though, high-scoring Jim Gradijan was held to eight points after tying the old scoring record in his last appearance.

Gradijan, only a soph, may have been flustered because he was celebrating his sixteenth birthday.

GW Meets Virginia in Return Game

George Washington U., already assured of a Southern Conference playoff berth, is out to spoil Virginia's last home basketball stand tonight at Charlottesville.

The Cavaliers hold a 68-64 upset victory over GW. In that game here, Barney Gill and Frank Allen lent valuable offensive support to high-scoring Joe Noertker.

Caps Meet Royals In Rochester Tonight

The Caps open a three-game road stand tonight at Rochester. They meet New York tomorrow night and Boston Friday before returning for a Uline engagement Saturday with the Philadelphia Warriors.

Rochester, tough to beat at home, holds four decisions over Washington. Currently, the Royals are in second place in the NBA's Central Division.

Cooper Scores TKO in 9th Over Sanchez

Washington Featherweight Champion Jimmy Cooper scored a technical knockout over Cuba's George Sanchez in the ninth round of the main event last night at Turner's Arena. The fight was scheduled for 10 rounds.

Cooper knocked Sancheg mouthpiece out in the beginning of the eighth and proceeded to pound the latter's face to a crimson pulp. Sanchez was unable to answer the bell for the ninth.

In the semi-windup, Little Dynamite, 127½ pounder registered a split decision over New York's Johnny Lemons.

Dynamite floored Lemons, who outweighed him by a pound, in both the first and third rounds. Both times Lemons took a count of seven.

In a six-round featherweight preliminary, Washington's 18-year-old Gene Smith disposed of Nick Romanelli, Philadelphia, in one minute and 17 seconds of the first round.

Lee Stoll, Washington, and Art Harris, Baltimore, won decisions over Baltimore's Billy Coefield and Washington's Billy Hickerson in welterweight four round preliminaries.

In the other preliminary, Bobby Busick of Baltimore, battled to a four round draw with Washington's Bobby Rupard. It was the second

Elkins Brothers Loses Decision to Cestas

Baltimore, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—Abel Cestas, 223¼, of Argentina, tonight won a unanimous 10-round decision over Elkins Brothers, 189¾ of Washington, in the main event at the Baltimore Coliseum.

It was only the third loss for Brothers in the last two years.

American U. Wins Easily, Ties for Lead

American University routed Randolph-Macon, 63-35 here last night and tied Loyola of Baltimore for the Mason-Dixon Conference lead with 10 victories against one defeat.

Bob Lamon, who starred by intercepting passes and dashing the length of the court for layups, led the Eagles with his biggest scoring night of the season, 21 points.

The victory was American's 17th of the season against 7 defeats, while Randolph-Macon's three-game winning streak was broken and they dropped back to a 7-8 standing in the Conference.

Lamon had scoring help from Roy Ishman who dominated the backboards plus tossing in 12 points.

The Eagles entertain Western Maryland tomorrow night in their last home game of the season.

The American University Frosh routed the Randolph Macon Frosh, 59-28, to run their record to 18 victories against five defeats.

Cass Michaels Turns Down 5th Contract From Chisox

Chicago, Feb. 20 (AP).—Star Second Baseman Cass Michaels has rejected a 1950 Chicago White Sox contract for the fifth time.

General Manager Frank Lane said Michaels wrote from Detroit he could not accept the latest Sox offer. "My playing," Michaels was quoted, "is worth more."

Lane said Michaels "never mentioned a figure in our salary discussions. I have no idea of what he thinks he's worth. He wrote me once that our latest terms were very fair. Now he doesn't like them."

Michaels and Catcher Eddie Malone are the only Sox holdouts. The club's first contingent with Michael's listed as one of the travelers leaves here Sunday for the Sox training site at Pasadena, Calif.

Cancellations Clear Way For Championship Game

Two high school games scheduled for today were called off yesterday to clear the way for the Montgomery County championship game between Bethesda and Montgomery-Blair in the Maryland University gym Wednesday.

Montgomery-Blair was scheduled to play Hyattsville, and Bethesda was down for a game with Washington and Lee on todays program.

To Protect 'Rabbit-Ear' Players

Greenberg Threatens to Boot 'Boo-Birds' Out of Ball Park

CLEVELAND, FEB. 20 (AP).—General Manager Hank Greenberg of the Cleveland Indians sounded a warning today to the incessant boo-birds: Shut up or you may get thrown out of the park.

The new Tribe boss, of course, doesn't mean all the hecklers—just "those two or three obnoxious fans in every ball park."

"Ball players have rabbit ears," he explained. Try as hard as they might, they can't shut out the boos. They always hear a boo, no matter how faint. This causes players to develop an aversion for fans."

THE FORMER batting ace pointed out that as "a player I thoroughly disliked it and as a general manager I plan to do something about it. " . . . if I can, I would like to oust these abusive popoffs from the stadium."

But the Indians leader doesn't want to be misunderstood. He's not trying to curb second-guessing. "Difference of opinion," he said, "is healthy and has been an important factor in baseball's growth.

"I'm talking about the bozo who boos a player so much that the player develops the feeling he'd rather play on the road than at home."

Hyattsville Wins County Title, 48-31

Hyattsville clinched the Prince Georges High league championship and a berth in the Metropolitan tournament by trimming Mt. Rainier, 48-31, last night at College Park.

In the first game of a doubleheader, Maryland Park nosed out Greenbelt, 38-37, on a field goal by Dickie Smith with only 35 seconds remaining in the game.

Bill Roberts and Ronnie Bierwagon took scoring honors for Greenbelt with 12 points each while Bob Hampton's nine paced the winners who took over third place in the league.

Hyattsville has a 7-1 record while Bladensburg, the second place team, has won 5 while dropping 2 decisions.

Virginia Tech Upsets W & M, Clinches Berth

Blacksburg, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—Virginia Tech clinched a berth in the Southern Conference basketball tournament by downing second-place William and Mary, 60 to 47, here tonight.

The victory atoned in some measure for an earlier season defeat at the hands of the Indians and marked the ninth straight year that the Gobblers have turned back the W. & M. in Blacksburg.

Cuban No-Hit Hero Hopes to Be a Nat

Hot ziggety, the Nats have come up with another pitching sensation.

He's 26-year-old Limonar Martinez, who recently hurled a no-hit no-run game for Marianao in the Cuban Winter League.

Senor Martinez's victim was the Alemandres club, which gained revenge a few nights later by plactering him and beisbols all over the lot to win the league title.

Martinez, a discovery of that old rhumba teacher and Nats scout, Jose Cambria, will try out at the Nats' Orlando, Fla., camp March 1.

Duquesne Wins Close One, 55-54

Pittsburgh, Feb. 20 (AP).—Duquesne University lowered the boom in the last minute of play tonight to down Indiana State College of Terre Haute, 55-54, and win its twenty-first basketball victory of the year against one defeat.

Eddie LeBaron Due Here Today

Eddie LeBaron, College of Pacific's three-time Little All-American, is due here today to sign a pro football contract with the Washington Redskins.

LeBaron was scheduled to leave Stockton by plane last night. LeBaron, the Redskins' tenth draft choice, is only 5-feet-8 and 168 pounds.

Belloise Wins TKO

Newark, N. J., Feb. 20 (AP).—Steve Belloise, 164½, Bronx, N. Y., landed a savage left hook to score a TKO over Ace Red Arrow, 161½, Oklahoma City, in 2:31 of the third round of a scheduled eight at Laurel Garden tonight.

67 Youngsters On Hand for Nats' School

Winter Garden, Fla., Feb. 20 (AP).—The Washington Senators advanced tryout school opened here today with 67 students on hand.

Thirty-one of the students have already signed Washington contracts and have had previous experience in the Senator system. The remaining 36 players recommended by scouts or called in for another look. Ossie Bluege, director of Washington's farm system, is in charge of the camp and every manager in the system will be included on the instructors staff.

Holy Cross Accepts Invitation To Play in NCAA Tournament

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Unbeaten Holy Cross' basketball team today became the first in the Nation to enter a major post-season tournament when it accepted an invitation to the National Collegiate Athletic Association tourney in New York.

Winners of 22 straight, the Crusaders were named to represent District No. 1. The announcement was made by Ray Oosting, Trinity College athletic director who is chairman of the district selection committee.

The tournament's Eastern playoffs will be held at Madison Square Garden on March 23 and 25. The Western playoffs will be held on the same dates at Kansas City. On March 28, the Eastern and Western winners will meet in New York for the title.

Although no other fives have been officially selected, it was learned that Duquesne of Pittsburgh will be invited to represent District 2. The Iron Dukes have won 20 of their 21 starts. Also considered were St. John's of Brooklyn, Villanova and La Salle of Philadelphia.

Kentucky, defending NCAA champs, and North Carolina State are the chief contenders for the District 2 berth.

It Really 'Panes' This Hockey Team to Lose

TROY, N. Y., Feb. 20 (AP).—Win or lose they've got good lungs at Rensselaer Tech. In this case the crowd shrieked so loudly that the impact sent a window pane crashing to the floor.

Campus police at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute swear they saw it happen.

It was Saturday night in the RPI field house. Springfield (Mass.) College was leading the RPI hockey team 4 to 0. Midway in the third period RPI scored three times in 55 seconds.

The 3500 spectators let lose a wild yell. The glass in a large window, cracked the day before by a wild lacrosse ball, fell to the floor. This broke the spell. RPI lost, 6 to 3.

Attention Feerick: Here's Your Man

Newport, R. I., Feb. 20 (AP).—Dave Lima, 17, a freshman at Rogers High School, scored 110 points in a basketball game today.

Dave totaled 54 baskets and two free throws in a city-sponsored league game. His team, the Community Center Boys Club, defeated John Clarke Junior High, 116 to 68.

Bullfight Fan Knifes Hero

Caracas, Venezuela, Feb. 20 (AP).—Diamante Negro, a well-known Venezuelan bullfighter, was seriously wounded by a knife blow in the chest last night after a heated argument with a bullfighting fan. An operation was performed on the master of the bull ring with many fans donating blood for transfusions.

Here's a One-Girl Gang

PENNINGTON GAP, VA., Feb. 20 (AP).—Pennington Gap High School basketball team believes it has the original one-woman team—or the nearest thing to it.

The "team" is Emma Jean Yeary, who over the weekend:

1. Flipped in 63 points Friday to set a new Virginia scoring record as Pennington Gap's girls' team defeated Keokee, 71-70.

2. Rang in another 63 points Saturday night as the Gappers fought to an 84-84 tie with Dryden's Misses in the Lee County tournament.

Emma Jean's 63 points were more than the Pennington Gap boys could register in either of two games the same evenings.

The Gorgeous One Battles Dempsey

Chicago, Feb. 20 (AP).—Gorgeous George, the perfumed wrestler, today was suspended for 60 days in Illinois because of jostling Referee Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, in a February 10 match here.

The Illinois State Athletic Commission was informed that George tore Dempsey's shirt in an argument during a bout with Don Eagle. The suspension affects a March 17 booking George had here.

2 Horses Die in Head-on Crash

Ogden, Utah, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—Two Ogden men were injured and their horses were killed yesterday in a head-on collision on the Ogden City race track.

The horses, ridden by George Johnson, 30, and Dale Knight, 25, were running in opposite directions on the track when they crashed into each other on a turn.

Knight was under treatment for multiple head injuries and possible skull fracture. He and Johnson collided in mid-air as they were thrown from their horses.

Is There Scores $23.20 Upset in Hialeah Feature

Bill Bennings Says:

Dear Folks: Laurel had hoped to have Sammy Boulmetis, the current apprentice jockey sensation at Hialeah, perform at its meeting. However, word comes from the South that Sammy, a Baltimore boy, will ride out the Gulfstream Park session, going from there to New Jersey. Charles Town will broadcast two races daily on Chuck Dulaney's WGAY show starting with the March 4 opening program. If you've wondered what has become of colorful John Red, the owner-trainer is reported to have wintered his horses at Marlboro and is getting ready to spring some surprises at Charles Town. Look for Your Host to be the winter book favorite when the Kentucky Derby nominations appear.—BILL.

Newburgh, N. Y., Feb. 20 (AP).—The Middle Atlantic outdoor speed skating championships, thrice postponed because of lack of ice, will be held here Wednesday.

Victor Rallies For 1st Win In 8 Starts

Miami, Fla., Feb. 20 (AP).—Is There, owned by C. H. Mayne of Detroit, finally won a purse here this winter as the gelding shot through between the leaders in the stretch to take the featured Orange Grove at Hialeah Park today.

Apprentice Joe Culmone found an opening entering the stretch and, obtaining racing room, moved Is There boldly in a spectacular rally. The son of Omission finished a length and a half before Mrs. H. A. Campbell's Wiley Fox, while Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's First Glance was third.

The race drew a field of 10 3-year-olds, three of which, including First Glance, are candidates for the $50,000 Flamingo Stakes.

Is There, outrun in the early stages, was seventh leaving the far turn, then fairly flew past the leaders, completing the 6 furlongs in 1:10 3/5. This was his first win here in eight starts. He paid $23.20.

The sensational riding of Sam Boulmetis again dominated the card today. He pushed home two winners in the first four races of the afternoon, increasing his total to 36 in the first 30 days of the meeting.

He seems to have the meeting's riding laurels safely tucked away, since his nearest rival, Ted Atkinson, is trailing the Baltimorean by eight markers.

Paper Cancels Bowling Meet

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—The New York Journal-American today canceled its men's bowling tournament, scheduled to start March 17, because of an American Bowling Congress rule restricting membership to individuals of the white male sex.

Entries from 1582 five-man teams already had been received.

Ole Man River, Hoppe, Mosconi Go On and On

Chicago, Feb. 20 (AP).—Willie Hoppe, the perennial world champion, and Willie Mosconi still rule the cue ranks.

They were forced into playoffs last night before nailing down their world billiards titles.

The 62-year-old Hoppe retained his three-cushion crown with a 50-28 win in 58 innings over Joe Chamaco of Mexico City. Hoppe's only loss of a match in three years had come Saturday at the hands of Chamaco.

Mosconi, the Barrington, N. J., wizard, booked his fifth world's title if the pocket billards division in a playoff with Irving Crane of Binghamton, N. Y. They ended up regulation play with 4-2 records after Crane had drubbed Mosconi in the finale 150-14 in four innings. In the playoff, Mosconi won 150-112 in 18 innings, making a high run of 77 in the second and holding the advantage all the way.

Wilson Wildcats Lose

Our Lady of Victory defeated the Wilson Wildcats, 83-82, yesterday at the St. John's gym in spite of a 31 point performance by Jim Young for the losers.

Chesapeake Census Shows Sizeable Increase in Ducks

By Ralph Murdock

THE MARYLAND Game and Inland Fishing Commission made its annual waterfowl census over the Chesapeake Bay. The estimate placed the web-footed population at 419,000, which included geese, ducks, swan, brant and coots. A breakdown of this total showed 134,000 canvasbacks, 34,800 geese and 23,000 swans. In order, according to number, followed the scaup, black ducks, bald pates, and redheads.

Murdock

The area most productive was on the Eastern Shore from the Chester River to the Choptank River with 168,000 birds. The west side of the bay, including the Potomac River showed 169,000. The northern section of the bay including the Susquehanna Flats had around 25,000. Over 100,000 canvasbacks and blackheads were feeding in the latter area during the open season. Apparently the majority had left for the eastern side of the bay. Both ducks and geese showed a sizeable increase over the previous year.

Since the close of the 1949 waterfowl season numerous requests for a split season in 1950 have been received. It is very evident that the "ducker" got his fill of a straight season in 1949. Nuff sed.

DOYLE KENDALL, a fishing guide at Deale, Md., has never let up on the striped bass since they made their appearance in the upper bay last spring. He made three trips to Bloody Point Light during the week, which resulted in catches of 48, 24, and 54 rocffish respectively. The ever-trying skipper was rained out on the remaining days.

Here's Captain Kendall's theory, "I fish almost every day. If I don't have a party I fish for market. Rockfish are bringing 40 cents a pound. Still using the small white Lusby lures with yellow heads. You can't beat 'em for year 'round fishing. A size 4-0 hook will hold the 15 pounders." He adds, "The fish will have to quit biting before I quit fishing for 'em."

THE SOUTHERN Maryland Beagle Derby Trials were held on Charles B. Iler's farm at Seneca, Md., on Sunday. The event was for all dogs born in 1949. Charles Ward, photographer, made motion pictures of the beagles in action. The films will be shown at the Sportsmen's and Outdoors show which opens at the Armory on March 3.

McGowan's 2 Victories Put W-L 2d

Special To Post

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 20.—Despite Stewart McGowan's double triumph, Washington-Lee of Arlington was edged for the State track championship by Richmond's Thomas Jefferson, 23½-20½ here today.

It was the first title for the winners.

George Washington of Alexandria, defending champion, scored only a half point on a fourth-place tie in the half-mile by Lambdin.

Two records were broken and another equalled with Bob Mayer, of Woodberry Forest's winning prep team, running the mile in 4:42.3 to break the record set last year by Bobby Jones of George Washington.

Allen Jones, of Portsmouth's Woodrow Wilson, set a new standard in the high jump with a leap of six feet, three-eighths inch. Percy Blackburn, John Marshall of Richmond, teid the low hurdle mark, 6.7 seconds.

McGowan, speedy W.-L. star, won the 50-yard dash in 5.7 and took the quarter-mile run in 57.7.

Third-place in the high school division went to John Marshall, 12½; Woodrow Wilson scored 11; Newport News, 8½, and Maury, 6. Trailing Woodberry Forest's 17 in the prep school section were Episcopal and Fork Union, each with 5.

50 YARDS—McGowan, Washington-Lee; Byrd, Washington-Lee; Criddle, Episcopal; Riggs, Woodrow Wilson. Time, 5.7 seconds.
440 YARDS—McGowan, Washington-Lee; second-place, tie between Robinson, Woodberry and Heinz, Thomas Jefferson; Gardner, Maury. Time, 57.7 seconds.
880 YARDS—Parsons, Thomas Jefferson; second-place, tie, Sanford and Gregory, John Marshall; fourth-place, tie, Jolliffe, Washington-Lee; Lambdin, George Washington. Time, 2 minutes 9.9 seconds.

Arlington Hall Wins 1st of 3-Game Series

Don Demonge, with 25 points, led Arlington Hall to a 76-58 victory over Naval Communications last night on the winner's court in the first of a three-game playoff for the Travis Trophy.

The losers' Joe Griffith won scoring honors with 26 points. The teams meet again Thursday night on the American U. court.

At Longwood

KimmelLends HelpingHand To Prep Boys

By Bill Gilbert

Some people are happy when they're making a lot of money. Others are happy when they are lending a helping hand. George Kimmel, then, figures to be twice as happy as anybody else. He is doing both.

Kimmel, one of Washington's more successful patent attorneys, is also founder and president of Longwood Prep School in Olney, Md. In three years he has personally put $500,000 into the nonprofit institution. He plans to continue that pace, too.

When the school is clear of debt the five-man board of trustees, headed by Kimmel, will take the profits and turn them right back into Longwood in the form of improvements and expansions.

Kimmel, a man of 65, was graduated from Georgetown and George Washington Universities.

He thinks that boys who lack the scholastic requirements for college admittance or whose parents lack the finances, deserve an opportunity to attend college, provided they are of good character and ability.

So Kimmel, who was forced to work nights to pay his way through college, rounds up boys who need preparatory work to gain admittance to college. He puts them in Longwood where they make up their deficiencies. Upon graduation from Longwood, they go to a college.

Those boys who are unable to pay for the schooling are given scholarships.

Kimmel also keeps an eye out for needy athletes who are good gambles scholastically. He gives them scholarships with the belief that the better a school's athletics are, the more students it will attract.

Why should one man take it upon himself to do this? Kimmel explains it this way: "A boy with a brain deserves a chance to make good just as much as a boy with money in his pocket. I've always wanted to do something for the poor boys who are entitled to education. I want to try to help meritorious boys as much as possible."

Commenting on Longwood's future plans, Kimmel says, "The sky is the limit. I believe you have to think big to be big. Bite off more than you can chew, chew it and you'll increase your chewing ability.

"Longwood has a good-sized gymnasium and a 196-by-75-foot swimming pool. A new baseball field will be ready for the coming season and we hope to have a golf course in shape by next year."

Anacostia's Barry Ryan Tops High Scorers With 89 Points

Thirteen players averaged 10 points per game or better during the six-game Interhigh basketball season. Barry Ryan of Anacostia topped the scoring parade with 89 points for a 14.8-point per game average.

Ryan and Tony Sgro of McKinley, who tied Terry Gregory for seventh place, were the only players who were never held to less than 10 points during the season. Ryan's low mark was a 13-point performance against Western and 17 points against both Wilson and Coolidge his tops. Sgro was held to an even 10 points on three occasions.

Top single game performance of the regular season was Jim Grandijan's 26 points for Coolidge against Anacostia, with Eastern's Jimmy O'Donnell rating a close second with 25 points against Wilson.

Don Scott of Wilson scored his 71 points for fourth place in spite of being held scoreless by Roosevelt.

500 Favor Bill to End Virginia Travel Bias

By Richard Norris
Post Reporter

Richmond, Va., Feb. 20 — An unsegregated audience of more than 500 persons today packed the House of Delegates as 10 witnesses testified in favor of a bill to abolish segregation on public transportation in Virginia.

No one appeared in opposition to the measure, or to one establishing a State race relations commission, as proposed by Delegate Armistead L. Boothe, of Alexandria.

The Right Rev. H. St. George Tucker, former presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, was the first witness before the House Committee on Courts of Justice.

"Unless we see that the rights of our citizens are preserved," he said, "it is as sure as can be that someone from outside will come in and tell us what to do."

Other witnesses extended Boothe's opening remarks on "states rights" and the racial problem.

"This is a pledge of our good faith," Boothe said, "that when we tell the federal government it cannot act, the State will do something positive."

Boothe's bill would repeal State segregation laws on public conveyances, but would not restrict localities in executing local ordinances. The race relations commission bill would have the group appointed by the Governor, without restriction as to race or sex.

The Rev. W. L. Ransome, pastor of a Richmond Negro Baptist Church and unsuccessful candidate for the House of Delegates last year, asked the committee to report the bill.

"To pigeonhole it, as was done two years ago, would be political expediency but not statesmanship," he said.

Among bills introduced in the House today was one to amend the State's Right-to-Work law to permit the union shop and checkoff.

W. H. W. Cassell, of Portsmouth, main sponsor of the legislation, said his bill would liberalize the present law and make it parallel the Taft-Hartley act. The union shop provides that workers must become members of a union at the end of a specified time.

Cassell's bill would legalize union shops reached by bona-fide collective bargaining and also the checkoff of union dues where it is part of a contract and agreed to individually by the employees.

$50,000 D. C. Sesqui Participation Plan Presented to Virginia Assembly

By a Post Reporter

Richmond, Va., Feb. 20. — The General Assembly today received a $50,000 plan for Virginia's participation in the Sesquicentennial celebration in the District of Columbia.

As the House of Delegates received the proposal from Delegate H. H. Adams, of Northampton, the Senate:

1. Passed the Fenwick-Clarke bill to provide an additional circuit court judge for Alexandria-Fairfax-Prince William and for Arlington.

2. Passed the Clarke bill to provide an additional corporation court judge for cities of 60,000 or more population if the Supreme Court of Appeals certifies to the governor there is such a need.

Both bills now go to the House of Delegates.

Adams' Sesquicentennial bill—asks that the Governor appoint a five-member "Virginia Washington Sesquicentennial celebration commission."

It would be responsible for the "preparation, supervision and carrying out of Virginia's participation in the commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the establishment of the seat of Federal Government in Washington."

For expenses the bill requests a $50,000 appropriation.

Joining Adams, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, as copatrons were Delegates J. Maynard Magruder and George Damm of Arlington.

Today was the deadline for introductory of general bills in the General Assembly. Hereafter only local bills, tax measures and bills carrying appropriations may be offered, as provided by resolutions of each House.

As a result, the House had received 674 bills by adjournment today. A total of 555 were introduced in the entire House during 1948 session. The Senate had received 339 bills by day's end.

108 Passengers Are Rescued From Flame-Swept Ship

Copenhagen, Feb. 20 (AP).—A transatlantic liner brought 108 passengers, most of them in their nightclothes, here today after they had abandoned a flame-swept Danish vessel in the Kattegat Strait at dawn.

The Swedish-American liner Stockholm docked with all the passengers who had been aboard the 3038-ton Kronprins Olav, after answering the burning ship's distress call.

The Kronprins Olav caught fire amidship from unknown causes, as it was en route from Oslo, Norway, to Copenhagen. Passengers were awakened about 5 a. m. and 15 minutes later ordered into lifeboats. Only a few were injured in abandoning ship.

Summary Discharges For Security Reasons Allowed in Measure

A bill that would give nine Federal agencies the authority to suspend employes summarily on security charges has been approved by the Administration and it will be recommended to Congress.

Covered by the measure are the Defense Department, Army, Navy, Air Force, Coast Guard, National Security Resources Board, National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, State, and the Atomic Energy Commission. The bill, however, wouldn't supercede Atomic Energy's present security system.

The Budget Bureau is continuing its studies to determine whether all or part of the Commerce Department should be included in the measure. Commerce officials are seeking the authority over all of its employes.

Officials emphasized that the bill is intended to cover "security" and not loyalty cases. The latter cases would be handled under the President's loyalty program.

War service and temporary employes could be fired on the spot under the Administration bill on security charges. They would have no rights whatever.

Permanent and indefinite employes, however, would be given charges in writing to the extent consistent with security. They would be given a reasonable time to file answers and 30 days after that to file appeals with their agency heads. Hearings on the appeals wouldn't be mandatory; they would be discretionary with the agency heads. But any employes cleared on appeals would be restored to their jobs and paid in full for the time they were under suspension.

In cases where the agency heads upheld the charges, the suspended employes could appeal to the Civil Service Commission and it could, in turn, try to place them in nonsensitive jobs in other Government agencies.

An attempt is likely to be made in Congress to make the bill applicable to all Federal workers.

NOTTS: The Interstate Commerce Commission has reduced from $8 to $7 a day the travel allowance for its employes. The allowance will be further cut to $6 after 14 days at any temporary-duty station. The law permits payments up to $9 . . . Thacher Winslow is resigning from the Labor Department to take over the office here of the International Labor Organization . . . Civil Service today will start to accept applications for photoengravers. The jobs, open at GPO and the Bureau of Engraving, pay $2.63 an hour.

BOND HEARING: A subcommittee headed by Senator Hoey (D., N. C.) will begin public hearings at 10 a. m. Friday on the several bills to either reduce or abolish the premiums an estimated 500,000 Federal workers must pay for fidelity bonds. The insurance companies are expected to present a plan for a "blanket" bond to cover Federal workers at a reduced rate.

GIFTS: The Civil Service Commission is opposed to proposals to outlaw the exchange of gifts among Federal workers. It would not be "desirable," it informed Representative George Miller (D., Calif.) in a letter, to prohibit gifts for birthdays, weddings, retirements, etc. Any restrictions on such gifts, it said, should come within the various agencies.

Miller was informed, however, that the solicitation of funds from employes to buy gifts for supervisors and officials was prohibited by law. It suggested the law be amended to give the Justice Department enforcement authority.

The Californian, a member of the House Civil Service Committee, said he had written the commission to inquire into the law after he had received numerous complaints from employes who charged they were constantly forced to contribute to buy gifts for their bosses.

GAO: William L. Ellis, chief of General Accounting's Office of Investigations, has appointed two new assistants. They are: Robert F. Cartwright, former inspector of the FBI who served that agency for 20 years, and Francis T. Hatchett who was promoted from a supervisory job. The agency's investigative staff is being completely reorganized under Ellis.

Falls Church Heads Vote Annexation In Fairfax

Suit Authorized In Move to Take Territory From Adjoining County

The Falls Church City Council last night adopted a resolution authorizing its attorney to proceed with a suit for the annexation of nearly 11 square miles of adjacent Fairfax County.

The lengthy annexation proposal contends that residents of the zone just outside the city are in an urban area which requires services that can better be furnished by an urban administration than by a "rural-type government such as exists in Fairfax County.

The proposed annexation zone lies to the north, east and south of the present city limits which includes about three square miles. Within the proposed boundaries are such heavily populated developments as Tremont Gardens, Jefferson Village, Fenwick Park, Tyler Park, Devonshire Gardens, Willston, West-Lawn, Sleepy Hollow, Ravenwood and Malbrook.

City Attorney LaRue Van Meter said a certified copy of the ordinance would be filed in Fairfax County Circuit Court this week. Notices of the city's intentions to sue for annexation also will go to individual members of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors.

Under Virginia's annexation law, the suit would be heard before a three-judge court.

The council also adopted a resolution urging the Virginia General Assembly purchase Lake Barcroft for use as an area recreational center. The lake, which occupies part of a 600-acre tract and serves as a reservoir for the Alexandria Water Co., has been offered for sale by the utility.

Hyattsville Told 'Watch' Not Necessary

The Hyattsville City Council was told last night that a maintenance watchman at the spur track of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad which crosses Washington Baltimore blvd. in Hyattsville is "totally unnecessary."

The remark was made by B. & O. safety engineer D. A. Steele after the council had petitioned for the watchman. Automatic gates are used at the intersection at present, and the railroad representative declared they were adequate protection.

The council approved petitions for construction of sidewalks on the north and south sides of Jamestown rd. from Ager rd. to 31st ave. and on the south side of Jamestown rd. from 31st ave. to Lancer dr. The city engineer was instructed to seek bids for this work.

Data Sought By Greenbelt

The Greenbelt City Council last night asked the Public Housing Administration, the city's present owner, what public lands and buildings will be dedicated to the city when it is sold.

The PHA has announced the city will be sold to the highest bidder within several weeks. Council members said they expected some of the public property would be dedicated to the town, and wished to know the extent of it.

The council also instructed its city manager, Charles T. McDonald, to prepare a tax calendar for the city and announced a special meeting will be held this week to decide if the city desires to be included in the area now served by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.

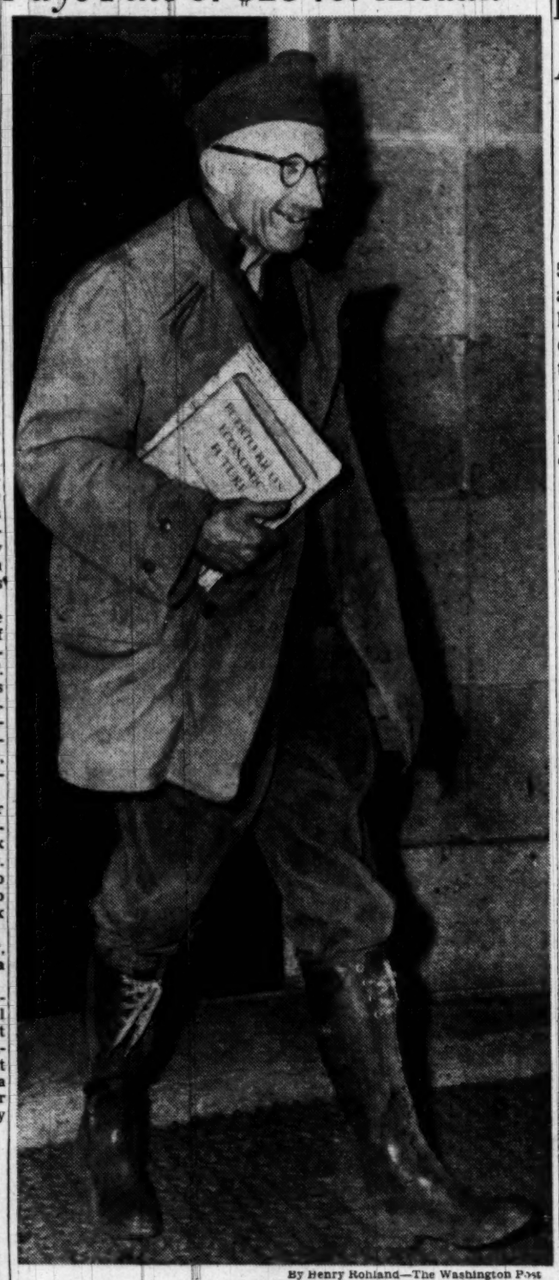
Rep. Crawford Pleads Guilty, Pays Fine of $25 for Assault



By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

THIS WAY OUT—Michigander looks pleased with himself as he takes his leave of Upper Marlboro "pokey," carrying his weekend reading matter

A $25 fine, $3.50 in court costs, and several times that amount in flash bulbs and film marked the end yesterday of the case of the State of Maryland vs. Representative Fred L. Crawford (R., Mich.).

The legislator pleaded guilty in Marlboro Police Court to a charge of assaulting his 22-year-old former employe, Horatio (Ray) Hanbury. Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie Prior to the imposed the fine. hearing, Prince Georges County authorities tried for two nights and a day to dislodge Representative Crawford from their county jail, without success.

After his first offer to post a $200 cash bond was refused Saturday, Representative Crawford insisted on remaining in the jail until his hearing yesterday. Offers of real estate and even personal recognizance bonds would not tempt him to leave the cell block.

Representative Crawford insisted two principles were at stake:

1. An individual should have the right to post legal tender as bond and not depend on professional bondsmen or other Maryland property owners.

2. A Congressman should not ask nor receive special consideration.

Cause of the one-sided fisticuffs between the 62-year-old legislator and his former-boxer employe was referred to in court yesterday only as a "personal" matter. But Hanbury told reporters some details.

In addition to working in Crawford's office, part time, Hanbury works and lives on the legislator's 260-acre farm on Allentown rd., Friendly, Md., also part time, and studies law under the GI bill at Southeastern University here.

"Something came up in the of-fice Friday," he said, "and on Saturday Crawford referred to it. I told him that 'that girl has told you another damn lie.' That's what led to it."

Under questioning by reporters, Hanbury said the girl in question is Miss Ruth Peters, who is on the secretarial staff in Crawford's office.

"'You or no other s-o-b is going to talk about that girl' he told me," Hanbury said, "and then he hit me in the face below the cheekbone."

After the argument and "slapping," Hanbury went before Justime of the Peace Nalley Cox at Oxon Hill and obtained the assault warrant. After it was served, police took Crawford before Justice of the Peace Irving Traband at Marlboro. It was Traband who first refused the cash bail bond and later tried unsuccessfully to persuade Crawford to leave the jail.

As to his stay in jail, Crawford said he enjoyed it, that he was fed well, but that the mattresses are "not too clean."

He said he almost finished a large book he carried, "Puerto Rico's Economic Future." He had it with him in court. An associate said he is ranking Republican member of the Public Lands Committee which deals with affairs in the island of Puerto Rico.

When the session opened yesterday in the ordinarily quiet court room, there were approximately 200 present, 50 of them jammed in standing room in the rear. Magistrate Bowie estimated half were reporters.

An hour after his release Crawford appeared on the floor of the House, dapper in a blue suit, and freshly shaven.

Police Beat Brushes for Dope And Find It; Salesmen Held

Roland Webber, 34, a Fuller Brush salesman, needed a new kind of brush yesterday—one guaranteed to brush off persistent policemen.

Brook E. Scoggins, 32, accused Webber of stealing $1040 from a suitcase, so police charged Webber with grand larceny.

Then, in looking through Webber's car, detectives found $200 worth of marijuana and morphine tucked among Webber's brushes.

Police tacked on two more charges—violation of the Harrison Narcotics Act and violation of the Marijuana Tax Act.

Webber and Scoggins both live at 2909 Porter st. nw. Police were called there Saturday afternoon because the two men were quarreling.

After narcotics had been found in Webber's car, police said, he admitted the theft of the $1040 from the suitcase and said he had hidden it at the home of a friend, Hawley Garran, 35, of 37 Rhode Island ave. nw.

Detectives accompanied Webber to the Rhode Island ave. address. Webber looked behind a mantlepiece and announced the money was gone. He said Garran was the only one who knew the money was there.

Later, Garran denied knowledge of the theft or whereabouts of the money. He was charged with grand larceny.

They were arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence who continued the case until March 15. Garran was freed in $1500 bond but Webber couldn't raise $4000 bond and went to jail.

2 Men Ordered To Pay $120 Each To Assault Victim

Two men convicted of simple assault on a third man were placed on a year's probation in District Court yesterday on condition that they each pay $10 a month for the next year to the victim.

The odd sentence was imposed by Federal Judge James W. Morris upon Alfonzo Saunders, 19, of 23 Fenton st. n.w., and Carlos Gomez, 18, of 19 Fenton st. nw.

The men had been charged with robbing Benjamin Mercer, 1103 L st. nw. of $11. But a District court jury brought in a verdict of simple assault only.

Man Killed By Car in Alexandria

Ninety-Year-Old Pedestrian Victim; Fireman Dies as Truck Overturns

A 90-year-old man died at 5:05 p. m. yesterday in Alexandria Hospital, less than 24 hours after he was struck down by a car at the intrsection of Washington and Oronoco sts., Alexandria.

The victim was Freeman Murray of 813 Princess st., Alexandria. Officials at the hospital reported he sustained head injuries and fractures of both legs.

Police charged Dr. William A. Fuller of 715 S. Washington st., driver of the car, with failure to yield the right of way to a pedestrian. A hearing in Alexandria Civil and Police Court was continued yesterday morning until Friday.

To Study Details

Howard W. Smith, jr., Commonwealth's attorney, said he would study details of the accident to determine if a manslaughter charge should be lodged against Dr. Fuller.

The accident occurred, police said, at 6:22 p. m., Sunday. Murray, they reported, was walking west across Washington st. when struck by the physician's northbound car. Dr. Fuller, a civilian physician at Fort Myer, said he was going 20 to 25 miles an hour, police reported.

James L. Wright, jr., 26, Jessups, Md., volunteer fireman, was killed and another fireman injured Sunday when their truck overturned on a curve.

The fire truck was en route to a small fire near Annapolis Junction, Md., when it failed to make a curve and overturned, throwing Wright, son of Dr. LeRoy Wright, warden of the Maryland House of Correction, Jessups, to the ground. Lawrence Deutsch, 36, also of Jessups, riding on the back step with Wright, also was thrown and suffered minor injuries.

Wright died at St. Agnes Hospital, Baltimore. The driver, Bernard L. Gardner, 36, of Jessups, was charged with manslaughter, according to Maryland State police at Waterloo, Md.

The driver of a car that rammed head-on into a Greyhound bus near Woodbridge, Va., early Sunday morning, causing minor injuries to 10 passengers, was reported in critical condition last night at Mount Alto Hospital.

He is William Douglas Reid, 24, of Triangle, Va. Physicians at the hospital said he sustained a fractured skull and right leg.

Group Asks School Levy For Military

A new organization of commissioners of revenue in northern Virginia has proposed that tuition fees be applied against tax-exempt military personnel whose children attend local schools.

Arlington Revenue Commissioner Harry K. Green, permanent chairman of the newly formed group, said it had approved a resolution asking local school officials to apply the tuition to parents who claim tax exemption under the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act.

He said copies of the resolution would go to school officials in the three cities and six counties represented in the new organization's membership.

It is the feeling of members, Green said, that many service families "are enjoying all the advantages of local and State government in Virginia and yet do not contribute a single cent for the support of either Government."

William A. Early, Arlington school superintendent, said he had not yet received the resolution.

However, Early said, the Virginia legislature voted in 1948 to include in its appropriation for county and city schools a special fund for this purpose. He noted also that the Army pays Arlington County tuition fees for children of personnel stationed on the Fort Myer reservation.

The new organization's membership includes revenue officers in the cities of Alexandria, Fredericksburg and Falls Church and the counties of Fairfax, Arlington, Loudoun, Prince William, Fauquier and Stafford.

Md. Man Who Had Towel in Abdomen Seeks Damages

A Maryland war veteran appealed to the Supreme Court yesterday to help him collect $100,000 damages on his complaint that Army surgeons left an 18-by-30 inch towel in his abdomen after an operation.

He is Arthur K. Jefferson of Joppa, near Baltimore. District Court in Baltimore threw out the suit on the grounds the Federal Tort Claims Act, under which he sued, does not cover servicemen on active duty.

Jefferson said the operation took place July 3, 1945, at Fort Belvoir, Va., but that the towel wasn't discovered until another operation eight months later. He said he is now unable to make a living as a civilian because of his several operations.

Fine Arts Boys Show Flair For Smoke-Screen Technique

Ah, sweet mystery of life at last I've found you! Oh, at last I know the secret of it all! —from "Naughty Marietta" by Victor Herbert

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

It was quite a day for the Commission of Fine Arts yesterday.

In the afternoon members inspected, at the scene, plywood mockups of statues proposed for the Lincoln Memorial and of Memorial Bridge.

But in the morning . . .!

In the morning they met in solemn conclave on "restricted matters," and their session had the air of top-level brass discussing an improved H-bomb.

"Restricted matters," declared H. P. Caemmerer, commission secretary, "that won't be given to the press."

It was almost as if the cold war between the commission and the President had broken out again over "that balcony" for the White House.

Hush-Hush

Through morning and afternoon, through thick and thin—from the commission office in the Interior Department Building to the very middle of Memorial Bridge—secrecy was the byword.

At the bridge, it was the following chain of command in buck-passing:

A commission member to Commission Chairman Gilmore D. Clarke to Commission Secretary Caemmerer.

Said Clarke, absorbed in taking a picture of the bridge.

"Sorry, have to talk to Caemmerer. He's that little man in the glasses."

Said Caemmerer: "All I can say is that it's restricted stuff."

The press: "By whom?"

"By the War Department. (He obviously meant the Defense Department.) Call them. They've got press officers."

Such dialogue was repeated, more or less, in the commission's office, which comes complete to little plaster statues and 20—count 'em—rubber stamps in a "lazy Susan" contraption.

Strictly From Coleslaw

The only change was that Caemmerer reported that news would not be given out without a release "because that's not the way to grow cabbages."

Cabbage or not, the commissioner's "restricted" discussion centered over a memorial for the Unknown Soldier of World War II—a matter of interest to more than the board's seven arbiters of art.

That fact came out several weeks ago, in the President's budget, and in subsequent stories.

But as Commissioner David E. Finley, director of the National Gallery, said:

"We have a rule. Only the chairman or the secretary can give out information. We never do, for that might lead to confusion."

Sharp Cuts In Order as Chest Okays '50 Budgets

Total Allocations 17 Percent Less Than Committee Planned To Give Agencies

Sharply slashed 1950 budgets for Community Chest supported agencies were approved yesterday at a special meeting of the executive committee of United Community Services.

Budget Committee Chairman Robert W. Wilson said it was necessary to cut 1950 precampaign approved budgets because the 1950 Chest campaign fell a litle more than 10 percent short of its goal.

Wilson pointed out that total allocations are 17 percent less than the Budget Committee approved for agency minimum needs after exhaustive study prior to the campaign, and 30 percent under what the Chest-supported agencies originally requested.

The allocations total $1,917,787.54 which is 3 percent or $54,800 more than the same agencies received last year.

The agencies also anticipate non-Chest income totaling $1,252,031.83 which gives them a total operating revenue for 1950 of $3,169,819.37.

However, this is $334,042.55 less than the "minimum needs" budget prepared before the campaign.

"If it is possible," said Wilson, "to assess human needs in terms of dollars, then we can say there will be $334,042.55 worth of unmet human needs in the District of Columbia this year."

There are 54 agencies sharing Chest funds. A UCS spokesman said the reductions were not made on an "across-the-board" basis. Instead, consideration was given where the need was most acute.

The ax fell most heavily on the Boys Club of Washington ($25,657 is trimmed from its precampaign budget of $135,471), the Family Services Association ($30,730 was lopped from its $168,806 budget), and the Salvation Army (reduced $19,854 from its original budget of $181,260).

The paring was light on some agencies and several escaped with no cuts.

At yesterday's meeting Frank R. Jelleff, president of the UCS, submitted the name of W. Herbert Gill, assistant to the president of the Washington Gas Light Co., to be chairman of the UCS budget committee until February, 1951.

Jelleff also submitted the names of 14 other persons to be appointed to the budget committee.

Nominated to terms that will expire in February, 1951, were Robert W. Wilson, executive assistant to the president of the Potomac Electric Power Co., and F. Elton Rogers, vice president of Thompson's Dairy.

Nominated to terms that expire in February, 1952, were Mrs. De Forest Van Slyck, former chairman of a special UCS committee on child welfare services, and Fred A. Toombs, assistant secretary of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Terms Expire In '53

Jelleff nominated 10 persons to terms that will expire in February, 1953. They are:

William W. Parsons, administrative assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury.

John Holland, a partner in the Maryland Super Market.

Patterson H. French, assistant to the director of the United States Bureau of the Budget.

Maurice L. Nee, treasurer of the P. J. Nee Co.

Warren M. Andrews, branch head electronic services, Naval Research Laboratory.

Morton Liftin, lawyer in the Claims Division of the Department of Justice.

Philip W. Amram, partner in the law firm of Guggenheimer, Unermeyer, Goodrich & Amran.

Prince Georges GOP Attacks Sothoron Bill

New Case Reported

Safe Loot Recovered In Field

Safe squad detectives yesterday recovered most of the loot taken in one weekend safecracking and immediately were given a new case

The new case was reported by Mazo Lerch Co., wholesale grocers, of 357 Virginia ave. sw.

The company's warehouse office was entered and a safe pried open. The thief, or thieves, had stolen $573 from the safe and then ransacked desks and taken a small amount of change.

Yesterday morning, safe squad detectives returned to the office of the Dr. Pepper Bottling Co., 6101 Blair rd. nw., where more than $1300 was taken from a safe Saturday night.

A special money chest (actually a safe itself) had been taken from the company safe. Apparently the yeggs had been unable to solve the special lock on the 300-pound money chest and abandoned it in an open field about 300 yards away.

When opened, the money chest was found to contain $810. The yeggs still had $538 for their night's work, however—cash in the safe but not in the money box.

The Republican State Central Committee for Prince Georges County has joined the ranks of organizations opposed to the Sothoron "home rule" bill.

The measure, sponsored by State Senator L. Harold Sothoron, Prince Georges Democrat, has been described as a "home rule" bill for the county.

However, the Republican State Central Committee, through its chairman, John R. Fletcher, charged that the bill will provide "even less home rule than we have at the present, since the bill gives the County Commissioners power to wrest the handling of county matters from any vestige of control by the voters."

"No limitation of power and no standard is prescribed by the bill," said Fletcher. "The merit system provision is a joke since the bill merely authorizes the County Commissioners to provide for such a system but does not require them to do so. They may table this issue at their whim."

Fletcher said county Republicans, along with several other groups, believe a survey should be made of the county's government needs before legislative steps are taken. Last Thursday, the County Commissioners refused a request for such a survey.

"This is beyond party lines," said Fletcher. "All voters, Democrats and Republicans as well as independents, should be aroused by this attempt to insult their intelligence. It is time for all citizens to voice their objection . . ."

Mrs. J. Vincent Falisi

Mrs. J. Vincent Falisi, 59, wife of Colonel Falisi, retired Army Medical Corps officer, and a resident of Washington for several years before the war, died Saturday at her home in El Paso, Tex.

A native of Pine Bluff, Ark., Mrs. Falisi lived here during the 1930s while her husband was stationed at Walter Reed Hospital, where he was in charge of the laboratory.

Col. and Mrs. Falisi had lived in El Paso since his retirement in October, 1947.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. George Kumpe of 1507 Foxhall rd. nw., and Miss Laurita Falisi of San Francisco.

Search Pressed For Hamilton Bank Robbers

Metropolitan police and the FBI reported no new developments yesterday in the joint investigation into the holdup Friday of the Shepherd Park branch of the Hamilton National Bank.

The robbery of the bank branch, at 7731 Alaska ave. nw., netted three smooth-working holdup men $28,351.

An FBI spokesman said the local field office is still running down every possible clew and continuing to question witnesses.

Lieut. E. E. Scott head of the Metropolitan police robbery squad, said police still believe the stolen car found abandoned Friday night five blocks from the bank was used by the holdup trio to make theri getaway.

2 Motorists Indicted for Manslaughter

Two motorists who figured in separate fatal accidents in Arlington last month were indicted on manslaughter charges yesterday by an Arlington grand jury.

They were Walter Ford, 37, of 337 I st. sw., and Army Sergt. Marvin E. Taylor, 33, of Fort Belvoir. Both are to be arraigned in Arlington Circuit Court this afternoon after the grand jury completes its deliberations on additional presentments.

Ford was the driver of an automobile that struck down 12-year-old Freddie Lehman, of 117 S. Aberdeen st., at Lee blvd. and Park dr., January 27.

Taylor was the operator of a car that crashed into a trailer-truck on Route 1 at Glebe rd. January 9, resulting in the death of another Fort Belvoir soldier, Sergt. Roy Jackson.

The grand jury brought in 29 criminal indictments against 12 persons. Among them was Willis J. Thomas, 22, of 2111 S. Kenmore st., who was indicted on nine separate counts of housebreaking.

"How to Read a Book Review," will be the subject of a talk by Riley Hughes, lecturer in English at the School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University, at the Study Guild Catholic Library, 1725 Rhode Island ave. nw., at 8:15 tonight.

Jury Indicts Woman on Theft Charges

Mildred Pardo, 30, also known as Sally Rogers, was indicted yesterday by the grand jury on charges of robbery and grand larceny in connection with the theft of $2180 from two visiting salesmen.

Police said the woman was identified from pictures at police headquarters. She is still at large.

Complainant Michael Grossman, 52, of the Bronx, N. Y., told police he met the woman at the entrance to the Statler here last October 22 and was drugged after drinking with her in his room. When he awoke, he told police, not only was the girl gone but also missing was $540 in cash and a $600 ring.

Jack Blaustein, 51, of the Bronx, N. Y., told police he met the same woman last November 3 near the Harrington Hotel. She shared a drink with him, he fell asleep and awoke to find he had been relieved of $290 in cash and $750 in jewelry.

The woman was named in a list of 42 indictments returned yesterday by the District grand jury. Charges in four cases were ignored.

Dan Wadsworth Lee, 25, of 1426 12th st. nw., was indicted on a charge of manslaughter growing out of the traffic death of Wallace Jones, jr., 32, Dunbar Hotel, last November 14.

Lee was accused of negligence after his car collided with a trailer truck at 11th st. and Maryland ave. sw., November 14. Jones, who was a passenger in the Lee car, was killed in the crash.

Virginia Bowman, 29, of 1248 Union st., sw., was indicted for second-degree murder in the fatal shooting of her common-law husband, Onnie Lucas, 32, last January 18.

Louis W. Tate, 30, of 916 S st. nw., was indicted on charges of forgery and uttering and false pretenses in the passing of an allegedly bad check for $3265.50 last Jnauary 27.

Judges Seek Laws For Suspensions Without Probation

The Municipal Court judges are seeking legislation which will enable them to suspend sentences in certain cases without placing the defendant on probation.

This was announced yesterday by Chief Judge George P. Barse following a meeting with the other judges, all of whom were present except Judges Ellen K. Ready and Aubrey B. Fennell who are on sick leave.

The judges' move stemmed from a Municipal Court of Appeals opinion last week which held that the common practice of releasing minor offenders on personal bond without placing them on probation was illegal.

Yesterday Judge Barse said the judges had decided unanimously to communicate with the District Commissioners urging congressional action on a proposed amendment to the District Probation Act covering "mitigating circumstances."

Harris Epstein Dies; Noted Engineer

Harris Epstein, 60, an outstanding structural engineer for the Navy Bureau of Yards and Docks, died yesterday shortly after he arrived for work at the bureau annex at Memorial ave. and Arlington Ridge rd., Arlington.

Mr. Epstein had driven from his home at 1362 Tewkesbury pl. nw., and was parking his automobile when he suffered a heart attack. He died in the dispensary of the annex shortly afterwards.

As head of the waterfront structures section of the bureau, he had designed piers, quay walls and graving docks at many of the Navy's principal installations in the United States and in the Pacific.

Among the graving docks he had designed were those at Pearl Harbor in which most of the fleet damaged by the Japanese attack of December 7, 1941, was salvaged.

Others were at Mare Island and Terminal Island in California and at Puget Sound, Wash. He had also designed the foundations for the Navy's 450-ton overhead crane at Hunter's Point, San Francisco Bay, described by officials as the largest of its type in the world.

Rear Admiral Joseph F. Jelley, chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, said:

"He was a tower of strength to this bureau, and his passing is a great blow to us, both as a friend and as an outstanding engineer."

A native of Minsk, Russia, Mr. Epstein came to this country in 1907. He studied at the Cooper Union Day School in New York and at the City College of New York, where he received a civil engineering degree.

He joined the Bureau of Yards and Docks on December 11, 1917, and had been there ever since.

Mr. Epstein was active in the Zionist Organization of America, Technicon Society, and Cosmos Club.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ruth R. Epstein, two daughters, Mrs. Rhoda Gould of New York and Mrs. Gladys Zelinsky of Athens, Ga., and two grandchildren. He is also survived by his mother, Mrs. Lena Epstein of New York; four brothers, Dr. George E., Morris, Harry and Samuel Epstein, all of New York; and two sisters, Mrs. William Goldman of Long Island, N. Y., and Miss Freda Epstein of New York.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. today at the Danzansky funeral home, 3501 14th st. nw. Interment will be in Adas Israel Cemetery.

Russell Wilson Dies; Equipment Salesman

Funeral services for Russell T. Wilson, 45, a sales representative who died Sunday, will be held at 11 a. m. Wednesday at the Ives funeral home with interment at the National Memorial Park Cemetery, Falls Church, Va.

Mr. Wilson, who was employed by L. S. Julien, Inc., auto equipment dealers, had been connected with the automotive industry for 20 years. He was a member of the Theodore Roosevelt Lodge 44 of the Masonic Order.

He is survived by his wife, Agnes, of 2023 N. Pollard st., Arlington, Va., and by three children, Elizabeth, Russell and John. Also, four brothers, Eaton J., Mazenas, Raymond and Philip Wilson, and two sisters, Mrs. Merle Manger and Mrs. Adele Prince.

Opie O. White

Funeral services for Opie Otie White, 79, a retired coal miner who had been living in Silver Spring about a year, will be held at 2:30 p. m., today at Bell, W. Va.

Mr. White died of a heart attack Saturday at 201 Timberwood ave., Silver Spring, the home of a nephew, Scott White, and a grandniece, Mrs. Kathleen Wyatt.

Mrs. Beckett Funeral Rites On Wednesday

Funeral services for Mrs. C. Edward Beckett, whose husband was physical director for the Central Young Men's Christian Association for 31 years, will be held at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Loudoun Park Cemetery, Baltimore.

Mrs. Beckett, who was 78 years old, died Saturday night at her home, 1826 Kenyon st. nw. She had been ill a year.

Born in Jersey City, N. J., Mrs. Beckett moved to Baltimore with her parents as a child and was educated there. She later taught school in that city for several years.

The former Miss Helen Elizabeth Quackenboss, she married Mr. Beckett in 1892. He died in 1943.

The couple came here in 1900 when Mr. Beckett took over duties at the YMCA. Mr. Beckett earned national recognition when he devised the so-called "bottomless" basket for basketball to replace the old type peach basket tacked on the wall.

Mrs. Beckett was an active member of the Calvary Methodist Church here and for 35 years had been a member of the Lebanon Chapter No. 29, Order of the Eastern Star.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Edmund C. Wallis, 3140 19th st. nw.; a grandson, Hugh B. Wallis, 6100 14th st. nw., and a great-grandson, Bruce Allen Wallis.

Col. Rose Dies; Former NRA Official

Lieut. Col. William Watts Rose, U.S.A. (ret.), former deputy administrator of National Recovery Administration, died yesterday at the Baltimore Marine Hospital.

Col. Rose

Colonel Rose was 66, and has lived the past several years at 1661 Crescent pl. nw.

He was the retired executive vice president of the Gray Iron Founders Society, Inc., with headquarters here.

Born in Harrisburg, Pa., Colonel Rose was graduated from West Point in 1906. He served in the Philippines and Corregidor until 1910.

During World War I, Colonel Rose was in command of railway artillery in France where he won the Purple Heart and Distinguished Service Medal.

He retired from the Army in 1919 to join the foreign service of Bethlehem Steel Corp., serving in Brazil a number of years.

Colonel Rose was named deputy administrator of NRA in charge of heavy industry in 1934. Two years later he was elected vice president of Gray Irons Founders Society.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Maria Boynton Carroll, and a son, William Watts Rose, jr., of New York City.

Services will be held at Fort Myer Chapel at 11 a. m. Thursday. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

MORNING COUGHS
Often Due to Bronchial Asthma

Do you cough and cough, especially mornings and at night? Do you choke, gasp for breath, wheeze and often can't sleep? The cause of these devitalizing symptoms may be recurring attacks of Bronchial Asthma. In such cases, the very first dose of MENDACO usually starts right now, working through the blood and thus reaching lungs and bronchial tubes, to help relax that clogged up stuffy feeling in the bronchial tubes, then helps Nature loosen and clean out thick, strangling phlegm. This helps you get good fresh air into your lungs and promotes restful sleep. Ask your druggist for MENDACO now. Satisfaction or money back guaranteed.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief — help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Alexandria Blaze Injures Fireman

A fireman was injured shortly after 7 p. m. yesterday while fighting flames that burned out a duplex frame house and a shed in a court back of the 300 block of N. Alfred st., Alexandria.

The victim was Pvt. Noble Smith, a volunteer assigned to No. 4 Engine Company. Private Smith was treated on the scene for a lacerated nose.

The fire apparently started in the shed to the rear of the house and then spread to the dwelling. Cause was undetermined, firemen reported.

100 Residents Routed By 16th St. Blaze

More than 100 sleepy-eyed residents were routed from their beds at 4:45 a. m. yesterday by a fire in the eight-story Ravenel Apartments, 1610 16th st. nw.

Miss Mary L. Hyer and Miss Margaret Finegan told firemen an upholstered chair in their third-floor apartment had caught fire at about 1 a. m. They thought they had extinguished the blaze and retired to bed.

However, the fire apparently continued to smolder in the chair, blazed up again and spread. Miss Hyer said all their living room furnishings were destroyed and estimated damage at about $500.

Another fire occurred at 1 a. m. in the home of Wallace J. Dyar, at 3752 McKinley st. nw. The flames were confined to a first-floor stairway and one wall was slightly damaged.

The fire is believed to have started in a box of papers near the stairway.

On Civil Defense

Citizens Seek Role In Parley

The Interfederation Council last night asked that it and its member organizations be represented in the scheduled discussion of civil defense planning announced recently by the District Commissioners.

The resolution, proposed by Delegate Daniel M. Greene of Prince Georges County, asked that the chairman of the council and presidents of the five area civic groups it represents be invited to the parley which will take place in about a week.

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young, who announced the coming meeting, said on Saturday that its purpose will be to explain the Commissioners' basic civil defense policy to city officials and other groups of citizens concerned.

Meeting at the Engineers' Club, the council also adopted a resolution submitted by District delegate Soterios Nicholson calling for an end to wartime excise taxes.

The council also voted to support the Prince Georges County Civic Federation in its request that the wooded areas of Greenbelt be turned into a national park.

A motion by T. Oscar Smith of Arlington, was passed placing the council on record opposing the Stennis amendment to the Hatch Act.

Fort Davis

The Fort Davis Citizens Association last night addressed a letter of welcome and a pledge of support to Miss Eleanor P. McAuliffe, who was recently appointed principal of Sousa Junior High School.

The association asked, at its meeting in the Ryland Methodist Church, that the order banning the importation of milk from outside the Washington milkshed after June 30 be held in abeyance pending settlement of the pending anti-trust suit against area milk producers.

Other resolutions adopted asked Congress to provide funds for a new Anacostia River bridge in the new District budget and asked for paving of Highwood dr. from Carpenter st. to Branch ave. se.

Chevy Chase

The Citizens Association of Chevy Chase last night indorsed Walter M. Bird for the Junior Chamber of Commerce outstanding citizenship award for 1949.

Bird, president of Shepherd Park Citizens Association, has been nominated for the award by the Federation of Citizens Associations.

FBI Agent Francis Crosby described operations of the FBI at last night's meeting in Chevy Chase Community Center.

Lincoln Park

The Lincoln Park Citizens Association last night voted to oppose the application of the Northeast Citizens Associtaion for membership in the Federation of Citizens Associations.

The group took its stand because the applicant association failed to stipulate its boundaries.

Meeting in the Epworth Methodist Church, the group reiterated its opposition to the proposed transfer of Central High School to Negro use and its opposition to home rule for the District.

Capitol View

Lieut John B. Monroe of the Fourteenth Precinct Station last night told the Capitol View Civic Association that youthful gangs around the area's school were pretty much under control.

Attorney Jerome Clark of the Public Service Title Co. also spoke at the meeting in the Richardson School.

Express Charges On Newspapers Hit by Publishers

The American Newspapers Publishers Association protested to the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday that rates charged by the Railway Express Agency, Inc., for transporting newspapers are too high.

Representing 777 newspapers in this country, Canada, Alaska and Hawaii, the association asked that the company be required to put into force rates which would be "just, reasonable and otherwise lawful."

A number of members, the petition said, ship newspapers by express in interstate commerce.

Transportation of newspapers requires a minimum of service in contrast with other traffic, the association said.

It cited that no pickup and delivery services are performed by the express company and said the company assumes no responsibility for loss and damage to newspapers.

Frank Sublett Dies; Retired Businessman

Harrisonburg, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—Frank L. Sublett, 80, retired businessman and originator of the valleywide movement which resulted in the organization 26 years ago of Shenandoah Valley, Inc., died today at a nursing home.

Born at Staunton, Va., he came to Harrisonburg in 1900. He first presented his idea of a Valley Chamber of Commerce in an address before the Harrisonburg Rotary Club in the fall of 1923.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. John Catlin, of New York, and Mrs. James Warren and Mrs. Charles Nelson, both of Harrisonburg.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed tonight.

Home Workers For Red Cross To Meet Tonight

Workers of four residential division units in the forthcoming Red Cross campaign for money will meet at 8:30 tonight at the auditorium of the Washington Gas Light Co., 11th and H sts. nw.

Meanwhile, nine Red Cross First Aiders who have given at least 500 volunteer hours in first aid work in the last five years were presented with medals at a special special meeting of instructors at Central High School last night.

The First Aid medals were presented to Misses Elsie Bennett, Helen Dinwiddie, Eva Lackey and Bradley Thompson, Mrs. Chrissy Mansfield, Julian Colangelo, Cecil G. May, Clifton Moore and Leo Scott.

U. S. Treatment Of Spain Bad, Farley Says

Spain has had bad treatment from the current Administration, former Postmaster General James A. Farley told a group of more than 900 Georgetown University students last night.

Speaking on the topic, "Politics from the Inside," the former Democratic leader said the North African invasion in World War II would not have been possible without the active cooperation of Spain.

Farley's speech was the second in the "William Gaston Lecture Series," sponsored by the junior class of the College of Arts and Sciences in honor of Georgetown's first student.

In reply to a question from the audience, Farley said whatever was done at Yalta was done in good faith.

D. C. Car Tags, Registration Top State Average Over 100%

District residents pay upwards of 100 percent more to obtain registration cards and tags for motor vehicles than the average charged residents in the 48 states, the Commissioners Traffic Advisory Board was told last night.

The statement was made by Fred Haller, vice chairman of the board, after a nation-wide survey conducted jointly with the American Automobile Association.

Haller said the high costs are causing many motorists to register cars in other states and as a result the District actually is losing revenue. The D. C. cost for a low priced car, he said, is $87, the average for all states, $39.67.

Haller pointed out, however, that in many States motorists are not required to pay a property tax on the car at the time of registration as is required in the District.

A. Julian Bryawski, chairman of the board's education committee, announced that a traffic safety booklet, "The Story of the Walking Dog," prepared by board members, Lee Gerlach and Mrs. Elinor Kirwan, has met with such success that more than 100,000 copies have been requested.

In his report Traffic Director George E. Keneipp said Washington traffic increased more than eight percent over 1949 and new neon "no left turn" signs be tried at several street intersections, replacing painted signs.

'Good' Schools Held No. 1 Need In Child Care

Good schools are second only to well-balanced parents in the proper emotional development of children, Dr. Benjamin Spock, director of the Rochester (Minn.) Child Health Institute, declared here last night.

But Dr. Spock, author of a standard text on child care, warned that the American public is not doing as much as it should in promoting proper educational systems. He was the first speaker in a series of three lectures planned by the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene.

"If we are pretending we are interested in mental hygiene," he told an overflow audience at the Interior Department Auditorium, we'd better see to it that we do our best in getting good schools . . .

"It is always up to the parents of 'now' to see that this is done."

Properly selected and trained teachers are only part of the problem, the pediatrician-psychiatrist asserted.

Classes should be small so that the most valuable teaching techniques can be employed.

The curricula of schools, Dr. Spock continued, should be concerned with teaching children "how to live with other people" rather than aim for education for cultural or vocational ends.

Nursery schools, he said, can be invaluable for pre school youngsters, particularly if they come of small families living in space-restricted quarters.

For such children, he said, it can help end "that terribly exclusive feeling of having the exclusive ownership of the mother." For the parent, it can provide a place to observe child behavior under circumstances where the parent—without embarrassment—can ask for and receive guidance.

Brotherhood Week Observed

Secretary Tobin Urges War—on Prejudice

By Genevieve Reynolds

SECRETARY of Labor Maurice J. Tobin yesterday called upon the American people to be alert participants in the "war on prejudice."

He spoke before the Women's Division of the National Conference of Christians and Jews in an observance of Brotherhood Week held at the Shoreham Hotel.

Mrs. Truman and Mrs. Alben Barkley were among the distinguished guests of honor at the program, as were Mrs. John Sullivan, wife of the former Secretary of Navy, and Mrs. Tobin, the speaker's wife. Mrs. Oscar L. Chapman, wife of the Secretary of Interior, presided.

The Labor Secretary, who is Washington Area chairman of the National Brotherhood Week, said that each person must take affirmative action against discrimination and bias.

"It is not enough to have a strong faith," he explained. "That faith must be as active as it it is strong. It must be a dynamic factor."

Need for Harmony Always a Challenge

Secretary Tobin emphasized that the need for harmony and unity among our peoples has always been a challenge to Americans of goodwill. "That need now has become a life and death matter," he insisted.

He pointed out that our country dare not be divided now while facing the menace of world totalitarianism.

Nor can we afford to keep our prejudice warm at an hour when the nation should be prepared for any eventuality. "The hard fact is that Democracy will live or die, sink or swim, survive or perish, in accordance with its capacity to make and keep our people absolutely one and absolutely inseparable."

The National Conference of Christian and Jews for 22 years has been combating prejudice and promoting understanding and cooperation among all religious groups.

The Secretary said that the NCCJ's program "has even penetrated the area of business and industry, because prejudice involves an economic as well as a social and spiritual loss. That loss has been estimated to be as high as 25 billion dollars a year."

To reduce the enormous economic cost, human relations prijects have been launched in factories and department stores, he explained, adding, "Representatives of great corporations, like General Electric and great unions like the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, have been drawn into this fight for democratic good will."

Plan Faith Forums To Discuss Creed

Other speakers included Mrs. Frank A. Linzel, Washington area director of NCCJ; Mrs. John F. Victory, Mrs. Bernard H. Chandler, and Mrs. Ralph Raphael Tourover, cochairmen of the Women's Division.

Mrs. Chandler said the Women's Division has planned a series of educational programs called "Faith Forums", in which all the faiths will be explained in turn. First on schedule will be March 7 when the Jewish faith will be discussed.

Mrs. Tourover said that the Women's Division conducts round table programs in Wilson Teachers College and other schools.

She said that the council also cooperates with the D. C. public schools and the United Community Services in building goodwill and brotherhood. The council conducted a "particularized study" to help DPs become adjusted to life in this country.

Other features on the program were an opening prayer given by Mrs. Julia West Hamilton, president of the board of the Phyllis Wheatley YWCA, and solos by Miss Kay DeWitt.

John L. Sullivan Speaks at Luncheon

In two earlier programs yesterday, former Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan, national chairman of Brotherhood Week; clergymen of the three faiths, and a Negro woman educator stressed the need for greater unity and of extending democracy.

Sullivan, who spoke at a Variety Club luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel, said Americans must explore new approaches toward greater trust, confidence and respect among our different groups.

The progress now being made in relations among various races and creeds in this country can be accelerated, he said, as differences in background and culture are now overemphasized.

The surest and most effective countermeasures we can take here against "the godless propaganda of the Communists" is to create "the fullest and finest flowering of true democracy and true equality," the former Navy Secretary declared.

Brotherhood Lack Hurting Thousands

Lack of brotherhood in Washington today is hurting thousands of people, declared the Rev. Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive director of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Dr. Reissig, who spoke at a morning program at the Departmental Auditorium, said we must tackle such problems as our underprivileged youth, dependent old people, housing, the racial situation and failure of the Community Chest campaigns.

When we meet such human needs, he said, "we are likely to find our brother."

Mrs. Inabel Burns Lindsay, dean of the school of social work at Howard University, told the same audience that no sanction must be given to prejudice, which, she said, was rated by psychiatrists as the No. 1 neurosis of our sick society.

While some wartime gains have lasted, she said, "we still have no FEPC law."

Other speakers at the program, whose chairman was Secretary Tobin, were the Rev. William J. Rooney, professor of English at Catholic University, and Rabbi Solomon H. Metz of Adas Israel Congregation, who declared we hate not people but "images of people" set up by our prejudices.

where clothes are young, alive and vibrant with colour.

• See how white becomes brighter, fresher against good grey wool.

• Think how much dash a wing-sleeved cape-coat can add—in citrus yellow or glowing red—
And know that it's the newest look of fashion.

• Ponder on the resourcefulness of the cape again in a three-piece suit that combines spring plaid with grey.

• How divinely you'll dance in Emily Wilkins' whirling shorter-than-long dress. Seen in Vogue and especially good in tie silk with red-on-navy polka dots.

"It's a Great Year to Be Sewing"

Mmm! Quality Goods! Just Feel the Fabric

By Peggy Preston

EASILY the most interesting feature of 1950's spring fashion picture are the fabrics. Silk jerseys, permanently pleated . . . cottons that are crease-resistant . . . wonderful, washable nylons in a dozen new weaves . . . crisp pure silks, and wools so sheer they resemble crepe de chine. These are but a few of the charmers.

Indeed, it's a great year to be making your own clothes. For there is real excitement in handling these bright, new fabrics. Yards goods departments of local stores, handsomely stocked in colorful bolts of materials are a dressmaker's delight.

Fabrics Plentiful

Contestants in The Washington Post Sewing Contest, opening March 1, will find special pleasure in visiting these wonderlands, for in them they are bound to find the right piece of fabric for the garment of their choice.

There is, of course, as every seamstress knows, an ideal fabric for each type of garment. In our contest there are eight classifications, each one filling a different fashion category. Fabrics used will vary according to the classification you wish to enter.

Keeping in mind the needs of contestants, we recently toured the town's major yards goods shops. Matching fabrics with classifictaions was an easy job. For there is something for everyone. You'll find quality and quantity in a wide range of price ranges.

Suit and Coat Group

In the coat or suit division, for instance, there are handsome tweeds, gabardines with twill weave, or sheen finish; suede finish wool coating; and wools with crepe-like texture for softly-tailored garments of this type.

Checks are top fashion news for spring in the suit category, and you will find them in all sizes and types of fabric. Plaids, not so prominent at this season, are also available, although they are apt to be done in cotton or taffeta, rather than wool.

Cottons in bubble or blister weaves are attractive for tailored summer suits. Dressmaker suits for spring will look well in the deep-ribbed ottomans or failles, or in the wool and rayon bengalines.

Light-Weight Gabardines

The bengalines make up into good-looking tailored dresses, which come under Classification 2. Light-weight gabardines also fill the bill quite nicely.

If fragile, feminine clothes are your favorites, then you will like Classifictaion 3, which calls for a soft dressy dress. Here your choice of fabric is almost limitless. A few we noticed were silk or nylon jerseys, permanently pleated; pure silk prints, light-weight tissue crepe, yarn dyed silk taffeta, shantungs and nylon crinkle sheers. The latter will be ideal for a Washington summer.

Date or school dress for juniors, Classification 4, can be made from anyone of a hundred fabrics. Date frock could be done in taffeta or faille, with white pique for an attractive accent. For school time, the separate idea could be employed. Here plain and checked wool combinations could be interesting, or an outfit in one of the heavier cottons would be equally attractive.

Elegance Allowed Here

Classification 5 includes evening, lounge, beach clothes or negligee ensembles. Here price and taste will play a major roll. If elegance is your dish then you can flirt with the idea of the exquisite imported silk laces we saw in one store; or the beautiful flower printed chiffons from France, found in another. Silk surahs, shantungs, georgettes are other suggestions for evening wear. Pure silks, lace trimmed can go into negligee ensembles, but if you prefer it the sheer voiles and good rayons are equally pretty, and less expensive.

Cottons, so interesting this season, that they deserve a story of their own, may be used in any one of the types of garments listed under Classification 5. But they will probably find greatest favor in the lounge and play clothes division. Here you may like the burlaps, denims and seersuckers. Or, for more feminine costmues, the new wrinkleshed ginghams, picolay, plain or printed; Guatemala peasant-type prints or non-crushable linen.

Cottons for Youngsters

Cottons too, will be important if you enter Classification 7 or 8, requiring clothing for children. Printed crease-resistant voiles are adorable for small fry. Other fabrics that are suitable include dotted swiss, lawn, broadcloth, organdy and transparent cottons. Swiss openwork fabrics in organdy and voile are charming for party frocks, but on the practical side are the chambrays, linens and dark cottons, considered very chic for little girls this year.

WHAT TO SELECT?—Fabrics for spring are so lovely and varied that contestants in The Washington Post Sewing Contest, opening March 1, will have a hard time making a choice among them. Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl Has Been Drifting Into Mental Depression Since Exceedingly Patient Suitor Finally Quit Her Because of Her Unkind Ways; She Asks Help

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I hope that you may be able to suggest a solution, or even an approach to solving something that has caused me great distress this past year. Prior to this difficulty I was quite confident and feared little insofar as the social world is concerned.

The origin of the difficulty goes back, I think, to a certain man who was very much in love with me and catered to me inordinately. I never felt anything for him, but was greatly flattered that he endured as much from me as he did. Then one night he simply failed to keep a date, and never called me again. I became terribly depressed about this, even though I recognized that it was only my pride (nothing more) that was hurt.

This episode seemed to undermine my confidence greatly, and I began letting little things, that ordinarily wouldn't bother me, make me feel even more inferior. After several months of this decline, I felt myself becoming extremely nervous in my job, and very self conscious in the presence of friends and co-workers. Perhaps my imagination played a large part in this development, but whatever the reasons, I find myself in an extremely unhappy state today.

Panic Grips Her Often Nowadays

I AM CONSIDERED quite pretty by most people, I have a good education, and at this time I am engaged to be married. But no matter what praise or commendation I receive, I can't seem to shake off the feeling of almost total inferiority. I worry about my job, because it is such that I must face people constantly during working hours; and sometimes a fear comes over me, so intense that I want to run away—but I cannot afford to do that.

Please don't suggest psychiatric treatment. I can't afford it, and besides I feel that with some helpful advice and prayer, I ought to be able to cope personally. In reading this, you probably are wondering how anyone could let herself fall into such a state; but believe me, it is very serious, and I shall sincerely appreciate your comment. L. W.

Trying Too Hard to Protect Self

DEAR L. W.: You say you are engaged to be married at this time, but isn't that a white lie, inserted to disguise your identity? It seems improbable that you are engaged, when one considers the nature of your difficulty, which has to do with increasingly frightened and steadily growing emotional isolation from other people.

To interpret emotional isolation, we may liken it to a person's being marooned on a desert island, with a sea of loneliness washing in on all sides, and with nobody caring enough about the stranded person to give his whereabouts a second's thought,—while up and down around the island, passenger ships steam purposefully by, aglow with the festive bustle of seemingly happy group activity.

How does the emotionally isolated person get where he is, engulfed in the dread sensation of being overlooked and forgotten there, an object of no concern whatever (he feels) even to those who see his plight? He finds himself cut off from the sanctuary, or security, or reassurance of reciprocal intimate devotion, due to trying strenuously to build a wall around his feelings, presumably to protect himself from being "hurt" by other people.

Insight, Courage, May Solve Problem

HE IS AFRAID to expose his heart, as it were, afraid to reveal his poignant hunger for "acceptance" by someone; afraid to make a move in the direction of love, lest his wistfulness be mocked and his overtures spurned. So he tries to put a bold face on his situation, both subjectively and socially, by making like he is self-complete, hence sardonically aloof from any need of, interest in, or sympathy for the so-called softer sentiments that sustain the spirits of average folk.

The social effect of this performance is to drive people from him, turn them against him, etc.,—and the isolated individual then assumes it's because he's "inferior," or that they dislike him for inexplicable cause, when from the onlookers' view, he is simply forbiddingly cynical and cold. This kind of drift makes bad little boys and hateful little girls; and eventually leads, in grown-up years, to that mysterious panic state that haunts you now—unless somewhere along the line, a good understanding and dauntless human being comes to the rescue, to give the despairing "isolationist" a redemptive experience of steadfast interest that melts his barriers.

Understanding is half of cure, the saying goes, so perhaps this explanation of your difficulty will help some. But a good relationship with somebody is the real antidote; and if you cannot afford the service of a psychiatrist or psychoanalyst to give you the pitch of a healthy exchange, then you've simply got to summon the courage to drop your defenses without further coaching, and bare your heart to life's "slings and arrows," as you try to be friends with people, on terms that give them an even break. For support in this, read Henry Drummond's classic "The Greatest Thing In The World" (Harper & Brothers). M. H.

Your Figure, Madame

Keeping Shapely Can Be a Simple Habit Once You Get a Head Start

By Ida Jean Kain

WILL POWER is a set of habits. Keeping shapely can be beautiful habit. But first, clear the decks of a misunderstanding. Most overweights contend the spirit is willing but the flesh is weak. In truth, it's the spirit that's weak.

There's a familiar phrase, "I'd rather be overweight than give up the foods I like to eat." Nothing very willing about that spirit! The lyrics may be slightly different, but it's the same old tune. So pull up a chair, and let's talk it over . . .

It appears that you have the fixed notion you must choose between two evils—either give up all your favorite foods for good, or reluctantly accept the excess pounds. You are positive you would be more unhappy about the first choice than the pounds. Of course, you could exert will power for the duration of a diet, but what would be the use, you protest, since you would always crave those foods?

In effect you reason, "Wouldn't it be dreadful if I could never eat anything I wanted . . . why a good figure wouldn't be worth it . . . I like to eat, pass the gravy!"

NOW LOOK at it from another angle. Change that around and see if you don't favor this idea . . .

"Wouldn't it be wonderful if I did not crave too many of the foods that make for fat . . . then keeping normal weight would be a natural."

That's more like it, and if you would be happy to be in that enviable position of not wanting to overeat and of not craving the calories that lead to corpulence—fine. What it takes is sincere desire on your part . . . I'll furnish the dietary know-how. Together we can work a miracle!

First, realize that your craving for sugar-coated calories is due to habit. Regardless of how strongly you may feel on this point, there is nothing in your system that demands them. Habit has the upper hand. Now the trick is to make habit serve you, instead of allowing it to be your master. Hold on . . . this will not take the pleasure out of eating. You'll always enjoy good food. But you can break the habit of craving to overeat, and only overeating makes fat.

HOW DO you start? Start strong on the slimming course of eating. A determined start always brings an energy release that leads to action. Energy and action are what it takes to form a good habit. You can't be energetic on flimsy fare, so this time you're going to eat to reduce.

Here's a promise—if you will go along with me on this new way of eating and not permit a single exception until these new food habits are fully formed, then you can eat as you please. You will be able to take a rich dessert or leave it . . . or any other food. You will be in control—happy day!

Action for today: Eat for less weight.

Color Comes First When Women Choose Home, Builders Are Told

By Conrad P. Harness
Post Reporter

CHICAGO, Feb. 20. — Women are playing a steadily increasing role in the styling, development and production of the American home, it was evident here today.

The gentler sex trotted out its experts in the fields of design, furnishings and color to tell an estimated 1000 home builders how to build a better house.

For example, Mrs. Beatrice West told an audience that color literally sold hundreds of houses. Using color slides, she showed how "yesterday's" house, all white with blue shutters, was dull, monotonous, unattractive and pallid. The house of today, she said, must be designed to meet the buying public's demand. And that house must boast a new color scheme, with plenty of bright hues.

Color Clinic

Today's big developers send in their preliminary architectural plans to Mrs. West at the Rahr color clinic, in New York. There, every factor is studied—orientation, relation of one house to the other, and the overall harmony of the project, regional preferences and popular color trends.

Mrs. West spoke before the annual convention of the National Association of Home Builders here at the Stevens Hotel.

She said that particular care must be taken in today's large scale housing developments to avoid an appearance of sameness and monotony.

Color planning was said to begin at the roof down. "If roof colors are not right to begin with," she pointed out "not only does the color scheme of a single house fail, but that of the entire community."

Basic Color Schemes

She explained that in the vast Levittown housing project on Long Island, for which she was color consultant, she used nine basic color schemes and five structural front elevations, with only one house in every 45 alike. Over 4000 homes were built there last year to sell at $7999.

She advised the builders here that they could no longer ignore color and survive in a competitive market. "Surveys by the Rahr color clinic prove that the majority of women consider color before design," she added.

"There is an old Chinese proverb that says 'a hundred men may make a house but it takes a woman to make a home.'"

Awards to Students

Awards were made yesterday to 5 young women architectural students, winners in a special contest on home design. Out of 120 entries, the vast majority were of contemporary, modern design.

It is significant that not a single entry was for a two-story house. All were low-slung bungalows planned to fit family needs in the middle income group. All featured lots of picture windows and all but three entries had flat or semiflat roofs. That type of design definitely seems to appeal to the Nation's youth.

Texas Roundup Honors Clarks

By Marie McNair

THERE was reason enough—if there need be any—for Representative and Mrs. Clark W. Thompson's cocktail party yesterday at the Carlton Hotel.

It was to honor a fellow Texan, Justice Tom Clark, first from his State to sit as a member of the Supreme Court. And Mrs. Clark was there to share honors with her husband.

About the only people at the party who weren't wrapped up in winter clothes were the foursome in the receiving line. Both ladies were in black, Mrs. Clark's crepe frock made with a wide-necked lace bodice and Mrs. Thompson wearing a stiff black taffeta gown with winged drapery at the hips. There were orchids—purple and white on their shoulders.

"Cold" said Mme. Bonnet as she and her husband the French Ambassador were practically swept in the front door by the wind. The Speaker of the House, Sam Rayburn, seemed to be constantly surrounded by the ladies, friends sought the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder with inquiries about Drucie and Johnny. "They're back" said Mrs. Snyder, "in their own apartment and busy moving their wedding presents in."

Mrs. Stanley Reed, was early, was joined later by Justice Reed. As the House had adjourned early yesterday afternoon, husbands were able to come with their wives. I saw Representative and Mrs. Olin Teague, Representative and Mrs. Ken Regan, Mrs. Albert Thomas, Texans all, Senator and Mrs. John McClellan, Senator and Mrs. Estes Kefauver, and in a group, the Cliff Davises from Tennessee; Representative and Mrs. Percy Priest from the same State, and E. L. Bartlett, delegate from Alaska, and Mrs. Bartlett.

Early Arrivals

The Postmaster General, Jesse Donaldson, and Mrs. Donaldson were among the first arrivals. So were Admiral and Mrs. Clark Woodward and Representative and Mrs. Karl LeCompte and Representative and Mrs. John Taber.

Mrs. Paul Porter, chatted with Mrs. Lamar Caudle; Mme. Wellington Koo, sparkling in black velvet and crystal, took in the scene from the sidelines.

General Conger Pratt was there, and Mrs. Pratt, with Mrs. Edward Martin, wife of the Senator from Pennsylvania.

Saw Representative and Mrs. Mike Mansfield trying the broiled oysters on the half shell from a table where the Texas lone star glistered in ice; General and Mrs. O. P. Smith, Mrs. Henry L. Roosevelt sampling the buffet; and Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador, talking to radio's Horace Heidt.

Said "how-de-do" to Mrs. Walter George, the Peruvian Ambassador and Senora de Berckemeyer and the Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggmann.

Making the Circuit

Gen. and Mrs. Wade Haislip made the circuit; and skirting through the throng was Mrs. George Malone. The Finnish Minister, Dr. K. T. Jutila, was there without Madame, and Mme. Dendramis, wife of the Greek Ambassador, who reported that the Cavalcade of Greek Fashion on April 13 is such a sellout that already an extra room at the Mayflower has been engaged.

And—there were Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mr. and Mrs. James Murray, the Chilean Ambassador, Felix Nieto del Rio, just back from Santiago; the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de la Colina and Representative Lowell Stockman, the tallest man in the room.

Then—Mr. and Mrs. Roy St. Lewis—Peggy having been first to Mrs. Randall Hagner's tea; Mr. and Mrs. Robert LeBaron, Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken, Fred Roy talking to Mrs. Newbold Noyes; Mrs. Hope Ridings Miller, Mrs. George Holmes, the Spanish Ambassa-Holmes, the Spanish Ambassa-Lequerica, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Shears and Representative and Mrs. John J. Allen, jr.

Hayes, on Wax, Will Speak at Benefit

THE voice of Helen Hayes will be heard by recording at the Mary MacArthur Memorial Fund Ball on Friday night at the United Nations Club. Proceeds of the ball will go to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in memory of Miss Hayes' daughter, who was a victim of the disease last summer.

Miss Bethel Leslie, who is in rehearsal in Boston in Miss Hayes' new play, "Wisteria Trees," and Miss Patricia Kirland, are cochairmen of the memorial fund in New York. They were Mary MacArthur's closest friends. The honorary committee includes such famous stage names as Katherine Cornell, Maurice Evans, Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt.

On the Washington committee are the Belgian Ambassador, Baron Robert Silvercruys; Mrs. Marshall Allen, Mrs. John A. Croghan, Representative John Kennedy, Mrs. John Ward Cutler and Mrs. Goerge I. Wheeler, 2d.

Prizes at the dance will include two tickets to the New York opening of "Wisteria Trees" contributed by Miss Hayes and an Easter weekend at Bedford Springs Hotel in the Poconos.

Meyer Davis music will play for dancing.

The British Ambassador, Sir Oliver Shewell Franks, is expected in town today after a three-week visit in London. He returned on board the Queen Elizabeth which was due to dock last evening in New York.

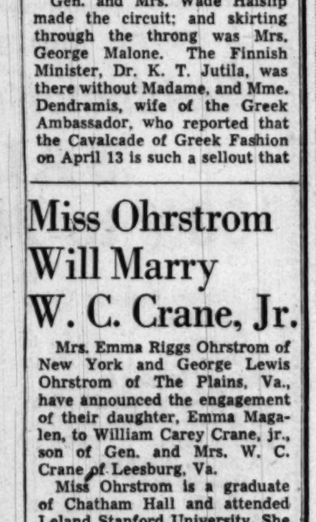
A small dinner was given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Carroll Graves at their home on Foxhall rd.

Miss Ohrstrom Will Marry W. C. Crane, Jr.

Mrs. Emma Riggs Ohrstrom of New York and George Lewis Ohrstrom of The Plains, Va., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Emma Magalen, to William Carey Crane, jr., son of Gen. and Mrs. W. C. Crane of Leesburg, Va.

Miss Ohrstrom is a graduate of Chatham Hall and attended Leland Stanford University. She is now a student at Radcliffe College.

Mr. Crane was graduated from Deerfield Academy, Deerfield, Mass., and is a member of the class of 1951 at Princeton.



Bachrach

MRS. JOSEPH W. REAP, the former Miss Anne Fortune McHale, was married Saturday morning at Holy Trinity Church. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. McHale of Carbondale, Pa., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael B. Reap of Dunmore, Pa. Miss Therese McHale was her sister's maid of honor, and Lincoln White served as best man. The newlyweds will make their home in Washington

Feathering a Nest Is Easy When You Already Have the Feathers; Here's How to Start That Quilt

DEAR ANNE:

I have an old-fashioned feather bed which I wish to make into two quilts. Where can I find information on making such quilts at home? Also, where can I procure the materials (frames, etc.)?

Celia Keller,
2830 Thirty-First st. se.

Several local stores carry either quilt pattern books, quilting frames or quilt covers stamped for appliqueing and quilting. I haven't found any with all these supplies. However, you can get the books (issued by Clark) at a 7th st. department store, (telephone number, NAtional 9800). Frames and stamped quilt covers are sold by an 11th st. shop (telephone, MEtropolitan 9334). An F st. department store expects a shipment of quilt frames in about a week (telephone, DIstrict 5300).

DEAR ANNE:

How can you clean a Numdah rug at home?

Numdah rugs are pressed and matted into shape—not woven—so the only completely safe way to clean them is to vacuum or sweep them very carefully front and back.

If their condition requires more far-reaching methods, you might either (1) Have them dry-cleaned professionally; (2) Shampoo them gently at home with a soft brush and good rug shampoo; (3) Or try what F. P. M., a reader with considerable experience with Numdahs, once wrote us she does. This is to wash them out in the bath tub without rubbing, then hang them across the middle and let them dry. F. P. M. warned that the border on one of her rugs ran with the washing, but said the others came out beautifully.

EVERYBODY seems to agree that chimney soot is a fire hazard. The question is, how to get rid of it. Several readers have offered suggestions. From Alexandria, Mrs. J. P. writes:

Dear Anne: Since you have lately printed two items on the danger of soot in fireplace chimneys, I would like to say this: Haphazard methods, such as using chemicals or salt (salt puts out the fire in the grate) are not reliable. We used one chemical formula now on the market and had a fire in the upper part of the chimney. I heartily recommend having the soot removed mechanically. If one burns logs only, and not coal, a couple of tin cans in the fire at all times seems to keep the soot at a minimum."

Another reader wonders whether here, as in some cities, fire departments will remove chimney soot for a small fee.

Sorry, but the answer here is "no." We checked with the Fire Marshal's Office in the District of Columbia, and also in Alexandria. Both offices report they are too busy fighting fires to do any chimney sweeping. They recommend that householders consult any one of several Washington firms in the business of chimney tidying.

One such company can be reached at North 5974. Incidentally, a chimney should be cleaned anywhere from once per season to once every three years, depending on amount and type of fuel burned.

Due to a typographical error, the telephone number of a K st. shop selling unfinished oak furniture appeared incorrectly in this column yesterday. The correct number of the shop is Sterling 6548.

Anne answers questions through her column only. We regret that time does not permit direct mail or telephone replies. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

PETUNIA!

My washing was done
At a quarter to nine
And one minute later
It friz to the line!

Next cold washday, Petunia, moisten a small muslin bag, put 4 tablespoons of salt in it, and rub it along your wire clothes line. It's a sure preventive.

Melwood Minutewomen to Meet

Dr. Leon H. Hetherington, chief of the division of tuberculosis control of the Maryland State Board of Health, will address the Melwood Minutewomen at 2 p. m. today at the County Service Building, Hyattsville, Md.

The Minutewomen were organized last May as a special project of the Women's Club of Melwood. Their welfare program was entered in the "Build a Better Community" contest sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

They have now grown into a county-wide network of volunteers helping the community's needy by spreading information about welfare agencies, public and private; by gathering clothing, medical supplies, plants, fruit seedlings, canning jars and other items for the underpriviledged, and by operating a motor corps to drive patients to hospitals and clinics.

The group meets the third Tuesday in every month.

Girl Scouts Begin Annual Cookie Sale

Girl Scouts of Montgomery County have begun their annual cookie sale commemorating the thirty-eighth birthday of the founding of girl scouting in America.

Orders for the cookies, which this year will be vanilla and chocolate cream-filled, are being taken now. The cookies will be delivered after March 6.

Bulk orders for service clubs, churches and women's groups are being accepted by the neighborhood chairmen.

Boost for Barter By Mrs. Willkie

By Richard L. Coe

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE: Mrs. Wendell Willkie's personal appearance boost for Virginia's Barter Theater before the State Assembly may assure continuance of the State's yearly appropriation to this truly State theater . . . Founder Robert Porterfield makes the solid point that his summer company lures tourist trade to Abingdon and that his three touring groups help keep the folks down on the farm during the fall, winter and spring . . . Virginia's 100 counties are all visited, as well as 22 other States . . . At that, $10,000 a year isn't much and it certainly puts the Old Dominion on the theater map . . . ANTA has just lent Barter $3500, as it did last year, which latter loan has since been repaid . . . One Barter company did "Dangerous Corner" over at lively Arlington Farms last week, and it was a well-done job . . . Live theater at movie prices is quite a thing to pull off, and this company boasted a skilled leading man in Australian Peter Pagan; a Melbourne lass tells me Peter's quite a lad down there. He was the romantic lead in "The Overlanders" and was fine in "Dangerous Corner."

MARGARET GATESON checked into the Mayflower last night, first time she's been down here since "Sweethearts," but then there was a theater! . . . Marjorie's here to appear this morning before the House Ways and Means Committee with James F. Reilly, of the League of New York Theaters, and Louis M. Simon, of Equity, in an attempt to get that 20 percent tax on theater tickets reduced . . . Commedienne Gateson's TV-active now, the other night going back to stage training to cover a gaff . . . Playing a scene in bed for "One Man's Family," Marjorie's head stopped a picture that fell from the wall above . . . Rubbing her pate, she ad libbed: "We'll have to do something about that picture."

BORIS KARLOFF, after an Atlanta visit in "On Borrowed Time," tells Actor Oliver Thorndyke about his theater-in-the-round experience. "I loved that arena staging, except for opening night. I paced out my entrance in the dark, groped for a chair and sat, but when the lights came up, I was sitting in the lap of a woman in the third row!"

ALEXANDRA DANILOVA, for whom the only word is fabulous, danced one of her happiest roles the other night in Constitution Hall, the Glove Seller in 'Gaite Parisienne." . . . Even on that limited platform the Massine ballet was a joy, and with Leon Danielien as the Peruvian, it was a happy finale for Ballet Russe . . . Somehow it seemed a privilege to watch Danilova in that role; from the St. Petersburg Imperial Ballet to American citizenship and a triumph on a platform in our chatoic Capital is a large leap even for a ballerina.

ELEANORA MENDELSSOHN is another European-born who glories in her United States rank . . . Long one of Max Reinhart's lights in Berlin and one of Europe's most distinguished actresses, Miss Mendelssohn is now playing the legal-minded madwoman in "The Madwoman of Chaillot" and has triumphed on the few occasions she's taken over the title role for Martita Hunt . . . Last week in Baltimore I asked if she'd like to play the role in Berlin and she quickly replied: "Not on your life. Martin and I (Martin Kosleck is her husband) went to Europe two years ago and I never want to go back again. All I want is a career as an American actress." . . . National playgoers will recall that career was started on E st. in '40, with Elmer Rice's "Flight to the West."

INGRID BERGMAN'S—and Rossellini's—name is dragging them into Keith's for "STROM-boli," which will hold over for a second week; there was a decided drop after the unanimously rough reviews came out, but the curiosity seekers saved the ship over the weekend and another week is assured.

SHIRLEY BOOTH, after a career as stock company leading woman and all sorts of personal hits, finally nets stardom in Broadway's new "Come Back, Little Sheba." . . . After her opening the other night in former Drama Critic William Inge's drama, Shirley entered Sardi's for a midnight snack . . . Her fellow Sardi-regulars rose in a body and applauded . . . Stardom couldn't happen to a more reliable player . . . Remember her querulous Mabel in "Three Men on a Horse"? "Where's Oiwin?" was the question, one of her whammiest laughs.

"CHAIN LIGHTNING," INDEED: Eleanor Parker looks like it, but "Chain Lightning" is the title of the picture about jet-flying she's in with Humphrey Bogart, opening tomorrow at the Warner

Postlude

Ballet Russe Finale Better; Miss Lear, Soprano, a Joy

By Paul Hume

The Ballet Russe pulled itself together in good shape for last night's final in Constitution Hall.

Ending their Washington run with Rodeo and Graduation Ball, they showed more style and finish than opening night.

Rodeo is one of their most successful works, requiring less staging and scenery for its effect. It depends on the spirit of the men dancing, the right sound in the orchestra, and the proper spirit of fascination in the dancing girls.

Frederic Franklin and Gerard Leavitt put proper touches on the men's work and Moscelyne Larkin showed her stuff as the brash cowgirl. The whole thing went with color and bounce. The Copland score came from the orchestra under Paul Strauss in good spirit.

Graduation ball, with familiar music by Johann Strauss, brought Leon Danielian in on of his brighest parts. Nina Novak scored in another chance to show that she is one of the most promising young dancers of the season.

Her "impromptu dance" and her sparkle and perfect line throughout brought her the biggest hand on the ballet. In the dance step competition, Miss Larkin and Jeanette Tannan won constant approval for their flashing display.

Miss Lear's Songs

Early in the evening Evelyn Lear, soprano, sang her first Washington recital at the Phillips Gallery.

Paul Higinbotham played beautiful accompaniments for her with utmost sympathy.

The program was of exquisite design. Two contrasting arias led to a group of Wolf and Brahms. These were followed by three Debussy songs and the popular Greek songs of Ravel.

Miss Lear understand musical style. She communicates the inner meaning of songs in a natural, simple way. Music with motion sounds better in her voice than quiet sustained songs, though her tone is lovely much of the time. We may make allowances for a cold last evening.

Bach must be sung according to the spirit of his text. The soprano aria fro mthe Magnificat has more jubilation in it than the over-cautious approach of this singer. Her account of the Wind Aria from Phoebus and Pan was a gem.

Alexandria Utility Tax Hit by 3 Councilmen

Alexandria's proposed five percent tax on public utility bills was hit again yesteray by the three City Councilmen who oppose it.

In a joint statement, Leroy S. Bendheim, Marshall J. Beverley and Roy C. Bragg asserted that sufficient unexpected revenue would result from the city's recent reassessment to offset the $187,500 the utility tax is expected to raise.

Crewless Yacht Found Adrift Off Tripoli

London, Feb. 20 (U.P.)—A United States Navy destroyer found a big yacht drifting aimlessly in the Mediterranean off the North African coast today, abandoned by its crew.

The 1700-ton MacKenzie, captained by Comdr. Roland O. Lucier, sighted the ghost ship about 60 miles off Tripoli. Lucier put a boarding party on the yacht, so far identified only as named Imperia, and took it in tow.

There was no indication of why the yacht was abandoned or what happened to the crew.

Bell System Net Off 4.8% During Year

By S. Oliver Goodman

The Bell System, which operates four fifths of the Nation's telephones and is the world's largest corporation, last night reported a 4.8 percent dip in net income last year.

The corporation had a net income of $240,756,005 in 1949, as compared with $229,164,784 in 1948.

However, Leroy A. Wilson, president of the parent American Telephone & Telegraph Co., said Bell System earnings on capital declined from 5.1 percent in 1948 to 4.9 in 1949.

Of Bell System earnings in 1949, a total of $232,855,465 was applicable to A. T. & T. stock—the equivalent of $9.70 a share or 70 cents more than the $9 annual dividend rate maintained for 29 years.

This compares with $222,418,868 in 1948, or $9.86 on the smaller number of shares.

Further rate increases are necessary, Wilson said, "for a very simple reason: the increased cost of doing business has made it impossible to earn a reasonable return without them."

"The rate increases that have been granted," he stated, "are only about half the current annual cost —$728 million—of the telephone wage increases made effective during the war and postwar periods. In addition to wages, of course, the costs of materials and almost everything else used in furnishing telephone service have risen substantially."

Wilson said rate increases already authorized plus those sought average only about 20 percent of Bell System revenues. The system's total operating revenues were $2,893,273,000 in 1949.

The parent A. T. & T. had net income of $228,003,399, or $9.49 a share in 1949, compared with $207,617,760, or $9.20 a share, in 1948.

HOLIDAY TOMORROW: New York and Washington security exchanges, as well as commodity markets, will be closed Wednesday in observance of Washington's Birthday. Banks and building-loan associations also will suspend for the day.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Jesse D. Gamel, formerly of Dallas, has been appointed manager of International Business Machine Corp.'s sales and services in Washington . . . Ralph C. Persons has been elevated to vice president and a director of Sun Chemical Corp. . . . Jack Godley has been named Washington manager of the Nelson Stud Welding Division of Morton Gregory Corp. . . . Frederick R. Baird, Harry S. Eldred and William W. Prince have been elected directors of Armour & Co. . . . John R. Bransford has been elected a vice president and director of Western Electric Co.

Gamel

COOPERATIVE: The Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc., a nearby Maryland, showed a net of $68,378 in 1949 or 3.1 percent on sales of $2,199,818. This compared with the previous year's net of $42,332 or 2.2 percent on sales of $1,881,509. The net is before patronage refunds and Federal and State income taxes, according to Samuel F. Ashelman, jr., general manager.

ODD LOTS: Washington DuMont dealers and salesmen will meet tonight for a special sales training demonstration in the Electric Institute Hall . . . Scott B. Appleby, a director of Seaboard Finance Co., made a gift of 1963 shares of the firm's common stock, decreasing direct holdings to 256 shares, according to a routine report to the New York Stock Exchange . . . Steel production this week was scheduled at 88 percent of capacity, lowest since the week of November 28 . . . United States Treasury bonds lost up to 5/32 of a point yesterday on some of the long-term issues in unusually heavy offering on the over-the-counter market.

ELECTION: Newly elected officers of the Federal Advisory Council to the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System are Edward E. Brown, Chicago, president; Robert V. Fleming, Washington, vice president; Robert V. Prochnow, Chicago, secretary. In addition to Brown and Fleming, the council's executive committee will include: N. Baxter Jackson, New York; Frederic A. Potts, Philadelphia, and Sidney B. Congdon, Cleveland.

EARNINGS: Chesapeake & Ohio Railway reported net income of $18710 for January, compared with 2,456,127 in same 1949 month. Other earnings statements:

Lenten Devotions To Start in Area

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Ash Wednesday church services tomorrow will mark the beginning of Lent, the 40 days of prayer and fasting preceding Easter, which falls on April 9.

Services will be held in all Roman Catholic and Episcopal churches, and in many Protestant churches on Ash Wednesday.

At Catholic and some Episcopal churches, ashes blessed during Holy Week last year will be applied to the foreheads of worshipers with the words "Remember man that thou art dust and unto dust thou shalt return."

Dr. Blackwelder

Mr. Stark

Regulations for Lent have been announced by the Chancery Office of the Archdiocese of Washington. All Catholics 21 to 59 are obliged to fast during Lent, taking only one full meal a day, a light breakfast and a light lunch or supper, neither of which may include meat.

Days of abstinence during Lent are the Wednesdays (except the Wednesday in Holy Week), the Fridays, the second Saturday and Holy Saturday until noon. Special exemptions are granted to working men.

Cathedral Service

Persons of every faith have been invited to join in a day-long Ash Wednesday service at the Washington Cathedral on the theme "God, Man, and the Hydrogen Bomb." It will begin at 10 a. m. with celebration of holy communion.

Speakers at the service will include columnist Marquis Childs, at 11 a. m., Senators Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.), and Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.) at 3 p. m., and the Rev. Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, and the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, at 4 p. m.

Noonday Lenten services will be held each day at three churches, beginning Wednesday.

Federation of Churches

The Washington Federation of Churches will sponsor the service at National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw., from 12:05 to 12:25. Opening the series will be the Rev. Louis H. Evans, minister of First Presbyterian Church, Hollywood, Calif., who will speak on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

At the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw., the rector, the Rev. Leland Stark, will speak at 12 noon Wednesday. Speaker on Thursday and Friday will be Right Rev. George Purnell Gunn. Bishop Coadjutor of Southern Virginia.

Other Ash Wednesday services at Epiphany will be at 8 and 10:30 a. m., 12:30, 5:30 and 8 p. m.

Capitol Hill daily services from 12:10 to 12:30 p. m. will be at the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, 212 East Capitol st. Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor of Reformation Church, will speak Wednesday; the Rev. Arnold F. Keller, jr., assistant pastor, on Thursday and the Rev. Robert J. Plumb of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, on Friday.

Dr. Abernethy to Speak

Dr. William S. Abernethy, former pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, will speak at spiritual life mission services today and Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. at Union Methodist Church, 814 20th st. nw. In addition to Union church, sponsors of the series are Western Presbyterian and Concordia Evangelical Lutheran.

At St. Stephen's Catholic Church, 25th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., the Very Rev. Msgr. John S. Spence, director of education of the archdiocese, will speak at 5:20 and 7:45 p.m. each Wednesday during Lent on the general theme "Making the Holy Year Holy."

Every week day afternoon during Lent, services will be conducted at Christ Episcopal Church, 31st and O sts. nw., at 5:30 p.m. for those returning from work. The Rev. John R. Anschutz will also conduct a service of holy communion and penitential office at the church at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Other services scheduled for Wednesday include:

East Capitol Bridge Bill Introduced

The House District Committee expects to take on the Anacostia Bridge "hot potato" in the near future.

Representative J. Glenn Beall (R.) and Lansdale Sasscer (D.), both of Maryland, yesterday introduced a bill authorizing the Commissioners to construct a bridge over the Anacostia in line with East Capitol st.

Chairman John McMillan (D., S. C.) of the House District Committee, termed the measure "urgent" and said he would order hearings "as soon as possible."

The city heads are battling with the National Capital Park and Planning Commission over where the bridge should be located. NCPPC opposes the East Capitol st. site and has argued for the Massachusetts ave. location.

McMillian emphasized he wants to break the deadlock, thus permitting a two million dollar appropriation in the 1951 city supply bill, now before the House Appropriations Committee.

The measure authorizes a cost of 12 million dollars for the bridge.

Auto Makers Ask House to Remove $76-$95 Excise Tax

By The Associated Press

The automobile industry asked Congress yesterday to remove the excise taxes which add about $95 to the price of the average new car and about $76 to the price of trucks.

George Romney, speaking for the Automobile Manufacturers Association, said the excises are a serious threat to jobs in the industry which in all its phases supplies one-seventh of the Nation's employment.

Dr. G. J. Gordon Starts Work At Gallinger

Dr. Gerhart J. Gordon, 46-year-old German psychiatrist, yesterday took over the duties of chief medical officer in psychiatry at Gallinger Hospital.

He is the first person to hold the $7911-a-year r-position established more than two years ago. He came to the District from the Delaware State Mental Hospital at Farnhurst, where he has been a member of the staff since 1934.

Dr. Gordon is a graduate of the University of Berlin and did graduate work at the University of Frankfurt. He is a member of the American Board of Psychiatry and the American Psychiatric Association.

AFL to Levy $2 Tax for Md. Primary

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—Leaders of the American Federation of Labor in Maryland and the District of Columbia have set out to collect $2 apiece from union members and take an active part in Maryland's primary election campaigns this summer. The contributions will be voluntary.

Advance planning on the strategy to be followed was mapped out here over the weekend at a meeting of the executive board of the Maryland District Federation.

E. W. Butler, business agent here for an AFL Teamsters Union and vice president of the regional federation, said the AFL has already decided to seek the defeat of two candidates.

They are Senator Millard E. Tydings, Democrat, who will be running for a fifth term in the U. S. Senate; and J. Glenn Beall, Western Maryland Republican, who will be seeking his fifth term in the Sixth District congressional seat.

Butler said the main purpose of the weekend executive committee session was to organize and launch a program for the Maryland division of the League for Political Action, a national adjunct of the AFL.

Clem Kreller of Washington was named chairman of the Maryland league and Robert C. Lester, also of Washington, was named secretary.

Bills Would Change Two Commissions

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 20.—Bills reorganizing administration of two suburban Maryland commissions were dropped in the House of Delegates hopper tonight just in time to beat the deadline against filing bills for the remainder of this short session.

The bills, both of which were introduced by the Montgomery County delegation, would have the effect of making uniform the method of selection of commissioners both for the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission and for the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.

Under the proposed changes, each body would have five members. Headed by a chairman at a $6000 salary, to be chosen by the Governor on a full time basis.

In addition, each commission would have four other members sitting on a part time basis, at $2400 annual salary.

In the case of each commission, the membership would be composed equally of Prince Georges and Montgomery County Commissioners and the two commissioners for each County would be selected by the governing heads on a bipartisan basis.

Capt. Trapnell Given Coral Sea Command

Capt. Frederick M. Trapnell, who contends that three Navy Banshee fighters could destroy an Air Force B-36 bomber, has been given command of the 45,000-ton aircraft carrier Coral Sea.

Trapnell's transfer from commander of the Naval Air Test Center on the Patuzent River was disclosed yesterday.

More Power For U. of Md. Regents Asked

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 20.—The University of Maryland "is surrounded by more restrictions than any other State university in the country."

This is the major conclusion of a report prepared by the House Education Committee and sent to the Maryland House of Delegates here tonight.

The committee reported that under such restrictions "it is impossible to operate economically and efficiently" and it recommended:

That once the University of Maryland appropriation is made, the school's Board of Regents be given "full authority" for spending funds; that they have full authority over employes and settling of salaries of the university's academic staff; that the executive council study feasibility of "placing the responsibility for the entire personnel of the university under the Board of Regents as well as the advisability of creating its own purchasing bureau and if found desirable, to prepare the necessary legislation to cary these plans into effect."

The recommendations were contained in a 15-page report, prepared by the House Committee after it sent questionnaires to 44 State universities and colleges and made personal inspections to land grant universities in North Carolina and Michigan.

The committee stated that its research shows that governing bodies of almost all State universities "have complete authority in the expenditure of funds from all sources; after appropriation of funds by the Legislature, neither the State budget directors nor any other State agency have control over expenditures, except by way of audit, which is required in all States."

The committee wants to continue its study of the University of Maryland, and would like to give "particular emphasis to future plans and development of the university within the State's need and ability to support higher education."

"The committee can state," the report reads, "that the University of Maryland building program and requests for maintenance are not haphazardly got up, but are arrived at after careful consideration by the Board of Regents of needs as presented by the faculty and staff."

D. C. Lawyer, Main Man, Taxed Here

A District lawyer since 1934 who maintains a home and legal residence in Maine yesterday lost his claim before the United States Court of Appeals to exemption from the District of Columbia income tax for 1942-1945.

He is Henry F. Butler, who along with his wife, Mrs. Estelle K. Butler, fought the tax assessment.

Butler said that he has a Federal law practice here and "if the seat of Government moves to some other place, I move with it."

He declared he expects to spend more time in Maine than in the war years but he could not say when he would definitely return to live permanently in that State.

"I return there whenever I get a chance for business or pleasure, and I will do it more and more," he testified before the local Board of Tax Appeals.

The Appeals Court, through Judge E. Barrett Prettyman, said that this was not enough for exemption.

Prettyman quoted an earlier case in which the court ruled that "a person who lives in the District and has no fixed and definite intent to return to a former domicile is domiciled in the District of Columbia for local tax purposes."

Explosive 'Tear' Gun Costs Man Extra 180 Days

A pencil-type tear gas gun, that turned out suddenly to be a shotgun, yesterday, cost John H. Smith, of 215 L st. nw., an extra 180 days in the District reformatory.

Arrested Saturday for larceny of clothing, Smith was found carrying the gas gun. Policemen at the Second Precinct who examined it were suddenly amazed to find—by the explosion route—that the gas cartridge was in reality a .410 gauge shotgun shell.

They learned it when shot rattled off the wall. In Municipal Court, Judge Walter J. Casey gave Smith 180 days for the clothing larceny, and another 180 for carrying a dangerous weapon.

Hearing on Electoral Reform Is Postponed

The House Rules Committee yesterday put off until Wednesday or Thursday further hearings on the Senate-approved Lodge-Gossett constitutional amendment to abolish the electoral college. Several House members who asked to testify could not appear yesterday and the postponement was ordered.

Johnson Tells of Savings Under Hoover Proposal

Reorganizations made in the Federal Government during the past year eventually will save taxpayers $1,250,000,000 a year, Dr. Robert L. Johnson said yesterday.

Dr. Johnson is president of Temple University and National Chairman of the Citizens Committee for the Hoover report. He made his comments after he had talked with President Truman.

Grave Yields Moose

Palmer, Alaska, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—A funeral was delayed today while fish and wildlife agents, aided by a two truck, hoisted a bewildered mose from the open grave.

Boys Club Victory Luncheon Fete Attended by 500

Celebrating victory in the annual fund-raising campaign for the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club, more than 500 persons attended a luncheon yesterday at the Hotel Statler.

Reports showed that the $300,000 goal already has been exceeded by $5000 with funds still coming in.

Wash B. Williams, chairman of the money-raising campaign, and Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, were honored at the luncheon. Barrett was presented with a placque, and with book-ends made in a shop of one of the Boys Clubs. Williams was presented with a gavel made by youthful club members. Representatives of the city government, and a number of Federal Government departments attended.

'Mr. Jones, Meet the Master'

Will of God Induced Young Peter Marshall to Come to U. S.

FOREWORD

There are no other sermons like Peter Marshall's. For there was no other man like Peter Marshall.

The beloved Chaplain of the United States Senate, Peter Marshall passed away recently at the age of 46. He had attained a national reputation at an age when most clergymen are still unknown.

The Washington Post during the early Lenten season is publishing the richest passages from Peter Marshall's most vigorous sermons. They were preached in Washington's historic New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. They were addressed to the man he called "Mr. Jones," to the multitude of clerks and taxi drivers, butchers and housewives, motormen and the lonely girl in the hospital ward.

Taken from the book, "Mr. Jones, Meet the Master," the sermons preserve the emphasis of his words, by a special typographical style. The manuscripts are presented exactly as Peter Marshall prepared them.

By Dr. Peter Marshall

THE TAP ON THE SHOULDER

EVERY MAN in public life
every speaker who takes the rostrum every preacher who mounts the pulpit has certain reticences.
He is reticent about using illustrations out of his own experience or that of his congregation.
But the apostolic preachers and writers observed no such restraints.
Their sermons were full of their own experiences.
Lately, I have had a feeling of compulsion to tell my own story once again.
I do not know why it was laid on my heart to tell it right now.
I do not need to know.
Nor do I need to offer any apology for doing so, for did not Christ say, "Go home and tell thy friends what great things the Lord hath done for thee."
It is with the prayer that what I have to say might help others . . . that I tell you the experiences of a boy who was born within nine miles of the city of Glasgow, in the land of John Knox.
Walter Scott and Rabbie Burns.
I never knew my father . . . for he died when I was four, leaving my mother with two children, my sister being only a few months old.
Three years after my father's death, I acquired a stepfather, and my boyhood was profoundly affected by this new relationship.
I soon learned to fear my stepfather, for he was a jealous man with a violent temper.
It was worse when he had been drinking.
I had few toys.
Birthdays came and went unnoticed.
We never had a Christmas tree.
My mother's relatives never visited us, for it was too unpleasant after they left.
How I longed to get off to sea . . .
I realize now it was an escape I sought, romanticized in the glamor and the call of the sea.
I had just turned fourteen when I ran off to join the Royal Navy.
At that time the Navy signed boys at fifteen and nine months.
My career in the Navy was short-lived, for my parents secured my release because of my age.
And then I very foolishly refused to go back to school, since I had told my friends I was off to sea.
There was nothing left to do but to start working.
I began as an office boy, and enrolled in night school to study mechanical engineering.
I became a junior clerk and then a timekeeper.
For two years I worked in an accountant's office.
Then I became a machinist in an iron and steel tube works.
Then came the climax of an intolerable home life in a harangue and a violent scene when my stepfather, under the influence of drink, gave me an ultimatum to leave the house.
At the time I was earning thirty-eight shillings per week, and the outlook was none too encouraging, for I had given my mother my pay envelope every pay day and had no money saved.
I had no financial resources.
My mother's faith was simple and strong, and as I made plans to secure lodgings elsewhere, she said.
"Dinna worry, son, the Lord will provide.
He'll open up the way."
That fall, a missionary returned from China and spoke in our church to the young people.
He was not seeking money—but volunteers for the mission field.
I volunteered for foreign service.
I was free.
I had no responsibilities and I was obeying some impulse to offer my life.
As I look back upon it, I realize that it might have been the sort of thing youth loves to do, seeking glamorous adventure.
The London Missionary Society told me I would have to go through the university and have years of training.
Now, I had no money
no family to support me
no friends able to finance my education and no means of borrowing enough.
So we reached an impasse.
I had to continue working to support myself and so they agreed that I should go on and begin studying at night, matriculating at Glasgow or Edinburgh University and save as much as I could, with a view to entering the seminary the following year.
It is not easy to work ten or twelve hours a day and go to school at night. I was finding the going difficult.
In the midst of my discouragements, a cousin, whom I had not seen for nineteen years, came home from America on business.
He sought me out and told me that it was my father who had helped him to emigrate to the United States.
He too had a stepfather, who made life miserable for them all.
He too had been forced to leave home.
He too had no resources, but my father had paid his steamship passage to this land of opportunity.
Now he wanted to repay the debt he owed, he wanted to pay it to me, by offering to enable me to come to America.
It was an attractive picture.
But I had no desire to come to America.
However, I said I would pray about it and let him know.
I prayed for guidance, for the answer.
Day after day, night after night, I thought about it and prayed about it, but no answer came.
The weeks passed, and I could not understand why God did not give me a plain answer.
I was impatient.
Three weeks had gone by, and then one Sunday afternoon the answer came.
I could never describe it to anyone how I knew, but there was no mistaking it.
One moment I was walking along undecided—and the next moment, I knew it was God's will for me to go to America.
I don't think I could describe it any more accurately.
But those of you who have had experience in prayer will understand.
I prefer to say as little as possible about the first five months I spent in this country, in New Jersey.
I worked hard for long hours.
I dug ditches.
I wielded spade and shovel.
I was unemployed.
I had three different jobs in five months, but no contact with any church, no indication of any possibility of achieving my ambition and following the call.
Then came a letter from Birmingham, Alabama, offering me a position with a newspaper there.
Should I go South?
Was this the way into the ministry?
Within a week I knew that it was.
My prayers were answered definitely and without doubt.
I borrowed money, and made my way to Birmingham.
There I found friends.
Within the space of a few short weeks, I had joined the First Presbyterian Church had been recommended by the Session as a candidate for the gospel ministry, had spoken at prayer meeting,
had become interested in the Boy Scouts of that church, and had been asked to become the teacher of the Men's Bible Class.
It was a happy and a busy year.
My salary with the newspaper was very small, and I was unable to save anything.
When the time came around for me to enter the seminary, some of my friends were quite concerned about how my theological education could possibly be financed, since I still had no money.
Call it naive if you will, I believed the Lord would provide a way . . . and so He did.
Just before I left for seminary, the Men's Bible Class pledged themselves to send me a specified sum every month while I was in seminary.
This they did for two years.
Since I supplied a church in my senior year, I was able to graduate without debt, save that obligation to the Men's Bible Class of the Old First Church, which I can never repay.
My experience with God's guidance did not end there, for in each of my first two pastorates in Georgia, I had clear and unmistakable indications as to where the Lord wanted me to go.
The historic old New York Avenue Presbyterian Church in Washington then called me, and I prayed about the matter for two or three weeks.
I simply could not feel that it was God's will for me to come, and so I declined the call.
Eight months later, the second call arrived, but this time there were factors that made it clear that it was the will of God.
I accepted the call for that reason.
During the years in Washington, I have received honors upon honors, all of which have been undeserved and far beyond my fondest dreams.
I have been honored more than any immigrant has any right to expect.
And out of profound gratitude for my adopted country, I would like in this land to live and die, and while I live to help other people as much as possible, believing that only in service to other people can I possibly express my gratitude for all that America has done for me.
For the tap on the shoulder that called me to the ministry came to me, and this is the call that brooks no refusal—to fall adoring and wondering at the feet of Christ.

God brought Moses from minding the sheep . . .
He took Amos from the herds of Tekoa . . .
From the mills, the factory, and the farm they come . . .
From the ranks of mediocrity, or the gutters of sin He calls them . . . changes them . . . and makes them His messengers.
Such was my tap on the shoulder.
"For . . . it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe."

Color Television, Inc., Wins Plaudits at FCC Tests Here

Color Television, Inc., of San Francisco, yesterday gave the first official showing of its system to the Federal Communications Commission. It won plaudits despite some unexpected operating difficulties.

Arthur S. Matthews, CTI president, told the audience of about 150 Government officials and industry leaders that a synchronizing generator, described as "the heart of the system," had been damaged in shipment from the plant.

CTI went forward with the official test with an emergency substitute for the generator which is used to stabilize the color picture.

The CTI plan will have a further official showing next Thursday in a comparative demonstration with rival color systems sponsored by Radio Corporation of America and Columbia Broadcasting System. This will be held at FCC's laboratories at Laurel, Md.

FCC then will hold further hearings on the question whether color video is now ripe for the general public, and if so what system should be adopted.

Chairman Johnson (D., Colo.), of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, which deals with the FCC field, told reporters after yesterday's test:

"It is encouraging to see another color proponent working on his system. The show was good for a first demonstration."

The demonstration was in a small ballroom of the Statler Hotel, where CTI used eight standard RCA receivers converted to color reception. The broadcast over WMAL-TV, American Broadcasting Co. outlet here, was available, in black-and-white, to regular set owners throughout the Washington area.

The company emphasized this by way of pointing up its contention that the CTI plan is completely compatible with present TV operations, and may be superimposed on these operations without loss of value in sets now held by the public.

Portions of the program were relayed to New York City and back again over the coaxial cable, and to Baltimore and return by microwave radio relay. The purpose was to show that this can be done without loss of color.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Some Suggestions for Publicity Chairmen

In an attempt to utilize this newspaper's space more efficiently, the District Line is going to try an experiment.

In the past, I have used notices of upcoming club and church events, only to find that similar notices also appeared elsewhere in the paper. There's not much point to that. So I think I'll get out of the "plug" business.

Each Sunday, the "women's" or "society" section runs a listing of club events for the coming week. Publicity chairmen for women's clubs of all kinds can get their group listed by addressing Marie F. Sauer, and getting the copy to her by the Wednesday evening before publication date.

There is also a weekly listing of P-TA meetings and events, and the deadline for this department is Friday morning. Address your communication to the P-TA Editor.

All church functions are handled by Church Reporter Martha Hall. Her deadline for the Saturday church pages is Thursday.

Miscellaneous groups that do not fall into any of these categories should bring their news notes to the attention of the City Editor. He cannot guarantee that any specific item will be printed—or that he'll be able to give it as much space as you (and he) would like.

But we are vitally concerned with cramming in all the news we can, as efficiently as we can. And the plan outlined here seems to be the best way to tackle the job.

If you could see the thousands of words of copy that do NOT get into each day's issue of a metropolitan paper, you'd know why efficient utilization of space is a major problem.

ARLINGTON BOYS CLUB; THERE! I SAID IT

GIVE-AWAYS

"Female St. Bernard would like home in country; no children—she's not very friendly." (Owens 9463.)

"Very sweet, 1-year-old mother cat; also her intelligent, affectionate, housebroken 8-week-old kittens." (Temple 8820.)

A MOTHER'S THANKS

"There was a lump in my throat when I read your item about rescue squads," writes Mrs. N. D. K. Muhlenberg of 14½ E. Myrtle st., Alexandria, Va.

Mrs. Muhlenberg's 2-year-old daughter was playing contentedly in the house one day when she suddenly fell to the floor, unconscious. As the mother reports it:

"Her breathing ceased, and I realized she was in urgent need of artificial respiration. I phoned for help, then called on my Red Cross first aid training, and began administering artificial respiration. The Alexandria Rescue Squad responded almost instantaneously. They sped my baby to the hospital, administering oxygen en route. It was their fine work that saved my child's life."

For all of the rescue squads in this area, this sort of incident is a daily occurrence. But to the families to whom it's a once-in-a-lifetime nightmare, perhaps there's a moral to the story.

The cause of the little girl's trouble? A raisin lodged in swollen tonsils, causing strangulation. It could have happened to any normal child.

KID STUFF

Gretchen Hood of 1226 Fairmont st. nw. tells me that she recently took a couple of city-bred children out to a friend's farm for a few pointers in country life.

None of the boys had ever seen a farm before, but they were too sophisticated to admit it, and tried to act as grown-up as possible.

When a pot of honey was placed on the table at dinner time, one of the lads remarked casually:

Washington Merry-Go-Round

New Chapter in Tax Fraud Tale

By Drew Pearson

Around the giant Pentagon Building, just across the Potomac, winds a labyrinth of beautiful boulevards built during the war at considerable cost to American taxpayers.

Pearson

The other day in Richmond, Va., the two builders of these boulevards, McKenzie Davison and W. J. (Doc) Hardy, walked into court and pleaded "no contest" to four of six counts accusing them of defrauding the Government of $217,806 in taxes—the same Government which paid them handsomely on war contracts.

Behind this virtual plea of guilty lies a long story, dating back to October, 1948, in which this column exposed Hardy and Davison, not only for income-tax evasion, but for political wire-pulling, concealment, and dodging. When this column published the story on October 19, 1948, it was so sensational that some papers refused to print it.

The two road contractors had made out false invoices, written checks to other contractors, who then cashed the checks themselves, and generally falsified. Yet for eight months after this column's expose, they argued, pleaded, and haggled with patient Justice Department attorneys.

Finally, last July, the case was sent to the United States Attorney in Richmond for prosecution, where, however, it dragged. And it was not until after this column, on October 21, 1949, again reviewed the lengthy delay that the tax-evading road builders finally were indicted.

Red Preparations

Perhaps the gravest briefing given to Congressional leaders since V-J Day took place at the Pentagon Building last week. The substance of the closed-door session was that Russia must be preparing for aggressive war.

The briefing was given by Lieut. Gen. Alfred Gruenther on behalf of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to members of both the Senate and House Appropriations Committees and Armed Services Committees.

General Gruenther was cautious in his statements, confined himself largely to a discussion of Soviet armed strength, let the Congressmen draw their own conclusions.

After listening to the report, however, Congressmen Engel of Michigan, Sikes of Florida and Cannon of Missouri spoke out that Russia could have only one purpose in building such a powerful arsenal: To wage war.

Here are some of the main facts presented by General Gruenther — facts which Moscow already knows since there is no particular secret about our armed strength. Russia, he said, is spending 18 percent of her national wealth on arms, which is triple what the United States is spending. Even taking our top budget figure of $15,500,000,000—which includes stockpiling—the United States is investing only 6 percent of her wealth in defense.

Russia has 40,000 tanks. This includes the best heavy tank in the world—the Joe Stalin Mark III. In contrast, the United States Army has only 7000 tanks, none of them heavy. In the air, Russia has 17,000 planes, including 300 heavy bombers of the B-29 type. Meanwhile Soviet factories are working feverishly to build a strategic air force. Production of long-range bombers and jet fighters has been stepped up.

To challenge our Navy, the Russians have 280 submarines of the latest, speediest German make. Most worrisome, however, is a new Russian torpedo, piloted by an electronic brain that seeks out its own target. This ingenious torpedo can locate and blow up a ship eight miles away.

Despite all this firepower, the backbone of Soviet military might is still her manpower, General Gruenther stressed. Russia can muster over 500 divisions at the drop of a bomb.

Gruenther also warned that we must not bleed ourselves by overspending, that some people are too concerned about security and not enough about economy. Finally, Secretary of Defense Johnson broke in and suggested that the Chiefs of Staff should join General Gruenther in answering some of the questions.

One by one, General Bradley, Army Chief of Staff Collins, and Chief of Naval Operations Sherman agreed that economy comes first. Johnson beamed like a schoolteacher whose pupils are reciting the correct answers.
